'Secret' Hydro Scheme Cited

CHILLIWACK (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and the provincial government are hiding from the public a billion-dollar make-work power construction strategy for B.C., Bill Otway, exective director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, says.

Otway said both the ministry of economic development and the Crown corporation have a master plan to build more hydro dams, pipelines and coal-fired electrical generation facilities that are geared to attracting industry to B.C., and not based on present power needs.

"There are now enough indications that they are out to attract industry to B.C. by building the facilities before the industry is here," he said in an interview.

Otway told the federation's annual convention that a campaign aimed at creating a better climate for more power development started three months ago when the economic development industry took out large newspaper ads.

He said the advertisements read: "Energy from B.C. can fuel your future. B.C. is energy-rich. Our mighty rivers are being harnessed to generate more hydro-electric power."

The advertisements also said vast deposits of thermal coal will be developed for onsite electricity generation, he said.

Otway told delegates that while Hydro has suspended its McGregor dam proposal "only the engineering studies were suspended, the flooding reserves remain."

The proposed dam, located northeast of Prince George, would divert water from the Fraser River system into the Peace River.

He said that in southeastern B.C., Hydro is studying Murphy Creek north of Trail for a dam, and has plans to take coal.

The 2,400-member federation called for a provincial energy policy that includes:

—an end to Hydro's triple role as forecaster, planner and marketer of energy;

—environmental, social and comprehensive analysis as the pre-prequisites for any energy development proposal;

—coal development must not impose an economic burden on B.C. taxpayers;

—B.C. should not allow itself to be tied to any large-scale export of power to the U.S.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips denied today that his ministry is involved with Hydro in any secret plans.

"All Hydro's known future projects are a matter of public knowledge," the minister said.

SPORTS

Victoria resident Brad Maxwell perhaps saved a goal by a desperate defensive play with the score tied in the third period and Team Canada went on to defeat Sweden 3-2 and take the bronze medals in the world hockey tournament at Prague. Later, Russia downed Czechoslovakia to win the title.

Philip Delesalle of Victoria was brilliant on the pommel horse and won the men's over-all crown in the Pacific Rim gymnastics competition Sunday at Edmonton. Page 12.

Last year, Victoria Crimson Tide jolted many rugby experts by defeating Cardiff when the reigning Welsh club rugby champion visited Victoria. That may have been a mistake because Newport, the current Welsh titleholder, was obviously prepared for Sunday's match at Centennial Stadium and overpowered the Tide 24-10. Page 12.

Golfing dentist Dave Mick captured his first Vancouver Island Open championship Sunday by edging Grant Milliken, the 1976 champion, in an all-amateur final Sunday at Uplands. Page 13.

Denver Nuggets sprung scoring star David Thompson loose for 35 points and trimmed Seattle SuperSonics 123-114 Sunday to remain alive in the National Basketball Association semi-final playoff. Page 12.

Defending champion A. J. Foyt gambled and won, but rain that wrecked weekend qualifying trials for the Indianapolis 500 automobile race may have washed Mario Andretti's hopes of winning the pole position down the drain. Page 14.

TO CATCH A THIEF

EDMONTON (CP) — A bandit wearing a jogging suit and a toque pulled off a running robbery during the weekend.

Police said the thief ran up to a wholesale grocery company employee, grabbed a cash deposit, and made a swift-footed escape.

The thief was described as six feet three inches tall, slim with blonde hair and about 25 years of age.

U.S. Fishermen Face May 26 Ban If Access Denied

TOP CANADIAN science student Alexandra Rieche, right, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Karl Riehe, 2695 Queenswood Drive, and a Grade 9 student at Arbutus secondary school, is seen here at the recent Canada-Wide Science Fair, held in Sudbury, Ont. James Harkness, left, vice-presiden of Rockwell International of Canada, shows her and the two other winners, Brian Puppa of Kirkland Lake, Ont. and Andrew Robinson of Ottawa, a model of the space shuttle the students will see on the scientific journey to California they have won.

The United States has been given to May 26 to allow Canadian trollers greater access to American waters.

If this doesn't happen the U.S. has been told its fishermen will be barred from Canadian waters.

Angry at the federal government's decision to close the Swiftsure Bank on Friday to placate the Americans, members of the Pacific Trollers Associatiom doubt that the federal government will carry through with its threat.

"It will require a supreme act of faith on our part to believe that," president John Makowichuk of Bamfield said today.

"The minister (Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc) was in British Columbia on Saturday when things became worse. We tried to get in touch with him to receive assurance that they would carry through with their threat to close the fishery."

Makowichuk said all attempts to get the minister's ear had proven useless but the minister was going to try and set up a telephone conference with him and PTA manager Fred Yeung of Vancouver.

Makowichuk said the Canaian fishermen agreed to the May 26 deadline because Canadian halibut fishermen were on their way to Alasks when the Swiftsure Bank closure took place. The halibut season starts today.

"It takes $20,000 for the halibut fishrmen to gear up for this trip," he said.

Makowichuk said the PTA is planning action on behalf of all Canadian trollers but said he is not in a position to give details at this time.

He said PTA directors, like Dick Williams of Victoria and Joe Garcia of Bamfield had been to Ottawa many many times over the years and always come back empty-handed.

He said the PTA is angry because it was not consulted on the closing of the Swiftsure Bank. The Americans claim it is necessary because of the risk of killing juvenile spring salmon that breed there.

In making the annoncement that special negotiators Marcel Cadieux and Lloyd Cutler will meet in Washington May 26 for the final decision on ratification of the 1978 fishing agreement, an Ottawa federal fisheries official said the Swiftsure Bank is only fished by three or four boats.

Garcia said only four boats were fishing on the day it was closed.

LeBlanc Salmon Warning

CHILLIWACK (CP) - The federal government is prepared to get tough with any self-interest group whose activities threaten the salmon fishery, says Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

The minister told the B.C.Wildlife Federation convention that to protect fish habitats from indiscriminate logging and the use of substances such as mercury and other chemicals, broader powers will be granted under the newly-revised Fisheries Act.

The government intends that there will be no further loss of habitats, he said, and those who destroy one location should be required to create a habitat elsewhere.

Outlining the salmonid program, the minister said the hatcheries, rearing ponds, fish ladders, artificial spawning channels, stream clearing and inland lake fertilization should bring $150 million to B.C.

He also warned that while native Indians will continue to enjoy access to fish for food, the government will not tolerate a commercial fishery disguised as a food fishery.

His ministry, he said, also is planning to introduce a saltwater sportfishing licence, but no date has been set.

Youth Is Killed When Jeep Rolls

Fredie Lanoue, 17, of Logan Street, Saanich, was killed when the jeep in which he was a passenger rolled on top of him Sunday at Jordan River.

Driver Raymond Gustafson, 19, of 648 Grenville, received undetermined injuries and was admitted to Victoria General Hospital for observation. His condition was satisfactory today.

A second passenger, Joseph Leroux, 17, of 1037 Russell, was treated for minor injuries and released.

According to a passerby the jeep was being driven on West Coast Road at the Jordan River campsite, where it apparently turned off into an unpaved parking area and began swerving in loose gravel.

A two-car head-on collision on Trans-Canada Highway near Bamberton about 6:30 a.m. today sent three unidentified persons to hospital in Duncan with multiple injuries.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said a Shawnigan Lake man with a woman passenger was driving one car and a woman was driving the other vehicle on wet pavement about a quarter-mile north of Bamberton lookout.

Italian Voters Swing Behind Moro's Party

ROME (AP) — Initial returns from Italian local elections showed a strong swing today to the Christian Democrat party whose leader, Aldo Moro, was slain by the terrorist Red Brigades.

As the votes were being counted, the Brigades struck again, seriously wounding an official of a car factory in Bologna.

In the northeastern city of Trent, partial returns from Sunday's voting showed the Christian Democrats scoring a strong increase in their share of the vote while the Communists and Socialists lost some ground.

Political analysts had predicted a strong sympathy vote for the Christian Democrats after the Red Brigades kidnapped and killed former premier Moro, the president of the party, but the shift seemed to be stronger than predicted. Moro, 61, was kidnapped March 16. His bullet-riddled body was found in Rome last week after the government refused to deal with the terrorists who demanded the release of some of their comrades.

The government is Christian Democrat but is supported in Parliament by the Communists, the nation's second-largest party.

In the Bologna incident, police said three men and a woman jumped out of a car, shot 48-year-old Antonio Mazzotti as he was entering the Menarini car factory and fled in the car. It was found abandoned in the vicinity a few minutes later.

Mazzotti, who heads the Menarini personnel department, was wounded in the legs, stomach and chest, police said. He was reported in critical condition.

A few minutes after the attack an anonymous telephone caller told the Bologna office of the Italian news agency ANSA: "This is the Red Brigades. We have executed Dr. Mazzotti of the Menarini, a servant of the state."

CBC STRIKE CANCELLED

TORONTO (CP) — CBC announcers in Toronto, members of Canadian Union of Public Employees (CUPE), cancelled an illegal strike planned for today, a spokesman said.

George McLean said Sunday the walkout was cancelled because members of other CBC unions might be unwilling to cross the announcers' picket line.

'No New City' On West Bank

Times News Services

Israel plans to expand an existing area of Jewish settlement on the occupied West Bank of Jordan in line with a decision made by the government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin in November, a government official said today in Tel Aviv.

The official, an aide to Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, denied a report on the state-supervised television Sunday that plans were underway to build a city in the area, situated 22 miles south of Jerusalem on the road to Hebron.

Sharon is charged with carrying out settlement policy.

Begin's government, under intense criticism from the United States because of past decisions to build Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Sinai, has frozen all new settlement activity in those areas as a matter of policy.

"The government has decided there will be no new settlements, and this will not be a new settlement and we're not intending to build a city," the official said.

What will be built, he said, will be a shopping center-like

Que. Tax Payback

OTTAWA (CP) - Finance Minister Jean Chretien announced today in the Commons the government will pay the millions earmarked for Quebec in the federal budget back to individual federal taxpayers by reducing their federal income tax payments.

Chretien said the Quebec government would get only the $40 million already announced to compensate for selective sales tax reductions, the rest going directly to the three million federal taxpayers in the province.

Zaire Seeks Help After Attacks

Times News Services

KINSHASA, Zaire — About 4,000 Zairean rebels allegedly spearheaded by Cuban troops have again attacked Zaire's copper-rich Shaba province and apparently captured the strategic mining town of Kolwezi, prompting President Mobutu Sese Seko to ask other countries for help.

Persons in Brussels and Paris claiming to speak for the rebels denied Zairean charges the Cubans were involved, that the attack originated in neighboring Marxist Angola, and that the revolt was aimed at winning Shaba's independence.

Zaire is the former Belgian Congo and Shaba was called Katanga then. The invaders are members of the Luanda tribe who fled to Angola after the defeat of the late Moise Tshombe's Katangan secession movement in the 1960s, after the Congo got its independence from Belgium.

The official Zaire news agency AZAP said about 4,000 invaders in civilian clothes infiltrated Kolwezi, 40 kilometres from the Zambian border, and launched an attack there Sunday night. In Brussels, the Belgian foreign ministry said some fighting was still going on there Sunday night.

AZAP said Zairean troops repelled another attack Sunday at the town of Mutshatsha, 100 kilometres west of Kolwezi. It said Cuban troops were with the invaders there.

A Belgian spokesman in Brussels said the invasion "looks at least as serious" as the last one.

Confirmation of the Cuban involvement was not available.

Last year, in March, between 2,000 and 5,000 Katangan exiles crossed the Angola-Zaire border 500 kilometres west of Kolwezi and advanced toward Kolwezi along the Benguela-Kolwezi railway. They occupied about one-third of the province, but the intervention of Moroccan troops bolstered the Zaire army, and the invaders were driven back across the border in late May.

This time the Katangans apparently took a short cut across Zambia.

CLOSE ENCOUNTER IN ARGENTINE?

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A long, cylindrical object fell to earth May 6 and disappeared in dense jungle near the Argentine-Bolivian border, Argentine newspapers reported today.

The English-language Buenos Aires Herald, in a report from the border province of Salta, 1,900 kilometres northwest of here, said U.S. experts from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) arrived in the area today to investigate the sighting.

BOYS CHARGED WITH SNIPING

Two 16-year-old boys have been charged with criminal negligence causing bodily harm in the sniper wounding of a woman motorist in the Uplands district Thursday.

Oak Bay police said the pair, both residents of the area, were taken into custody Saturday and later released to appear this week in juvenile court.

Police seized a .22 calibre rifle and ammunition in investigating a series of incidents in which shots apparently were fired at passing vehicles.

Driver Sarah McKnight, 44, of Esquimalt, was wounded in the shoulder by a bullet which entered her car as she drove in the 3300-block Ripon just before noon.

Iran Supresses Protest

TEHRAN (AP) — Troops and anti-riot police patrolled the streets of this Iranian capital today after opponents of Shah Mohammed Reza Pahlavi ordered shopkeepers to close and motorists and pedestrians to stay off the streets.

It was estimated that more than one-half the city's one million motorists heeded the stay-home order, but most shops were open. Small groups attacked stores and traffic in two outlying areas of the city but fled as soon as the police arrived. No casualties were reported.

Nine persons were killed and millions of dollars worth of property destroyed in anti-government riots in 34 cities last Tuesday. Troops fired tear gas and bullets into the air to disperse thousands in Tehran's main street on Thursday.

The government's opponents, estimated by it to number from a few thousand to 35,000 all over the country, include conservative Moslem religious groups, Islamic Marxists, the Tudeh Communist party and others.

The rioting last week was touched off by conservative Moslem leaders who want the return of mosque lands leased to farmers, a ban on liquor stores and movie theatres and repeal of reforms giving women greater freedom.

Other opposition groups are demanding political freedom.

POPULATION BOOM IN NORTH

YELLOWKNIFE, N.W.T. (CP) — The population of the Northwest Territories is expected to grow more than 40 per cent in the next 10 years — three times as fast as the national average.

Territorial government projections see the population expanding from its present 46,385 to 65,560 by 1988, an increase of 41 per cent. The projections indicate Yellowknife could be home to more than a quarter of the territories' population in a decade.

The growth is indicated in a set of statistics compiled by the territorial government's department of planning.

Report Blames Mrs. Gandhi

NEW DELHI (AP) — An Indian government inquiry said today former prime minister Indira Gandhi declared an emergency in 1975 and arrested a number of opposition leaders so she could remain in power.

The long-awaited report, released in Parliament by Prime Minister Morarji Desai, said there was no evidence of an internal threat to India's security, the excuse Mrs. Gandhi used to justify the imposition of authoritarian measures.

Mrs. Gandhi was soundly defeated by Desai's coalition in the election she called last spring.

"Thousands were detained (during the 19-month emergency) and a series of totally illegal and unwarranted actions followed involving untold human misery and suffering," said the inquiry commission, headed by retired chief justice J. C. Shah. The commission heard scores of witnesses since its hearings began last September.

The 60-year-old Mrs. Gandhi "misused her position, abused her authority and subverted well-established administrative procedures and lawful processess," the report said.

Legal proceedings have begun against the former prime minister and her son for refusing to testify before the commission. If convicted, they face a maximum sentence of six months in prison, a fine amounting to $125 or both.

area to serve the half dozen kibbutzim (communal settlements) known collectively as the Gush Etzion bloc near Hebron. About 200 families live there.

Ashraf A. Ghorbal, Egyptian Ambassador to the United States, said Sunday his country wants any peace settlement to include a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan, gradual Middle East disarmament and an international fund to rebuild the war-torn Middle East.

In a speech at St. Anselm's College commencement ceremonies in Goffstown, N.H., Ghorbal also called for Israel to give up her atomic weapons and said money now being spent on weapons could be used for the peace fund.

The proposal was part of what Ghorbal described as his government's first official, comprehensive reaction to peace pleas made by Prime Minister Begin during his recent United States visit.

He called for:

—Withdrawal to "known international boundaries" and creation of a Palestinian state on the West Bank of the Jordan River.

—Gradual arms reduction and establishment of the entire Middle East as a nuclear-free zone.

—Establishment of a peace fund "to rebuild the area and raise the standard of living of all its people."

Meanwhile, President Anwar Sadat has ordered a referendum in which Egyptians will be asked to bar Communists from positions of influence, prevent the comeback of politicians from earlier eras, and set out new guidelines for the country's politics and press.

The referendum, in which 10 million Egyptians are expected to vote, will take place next week.

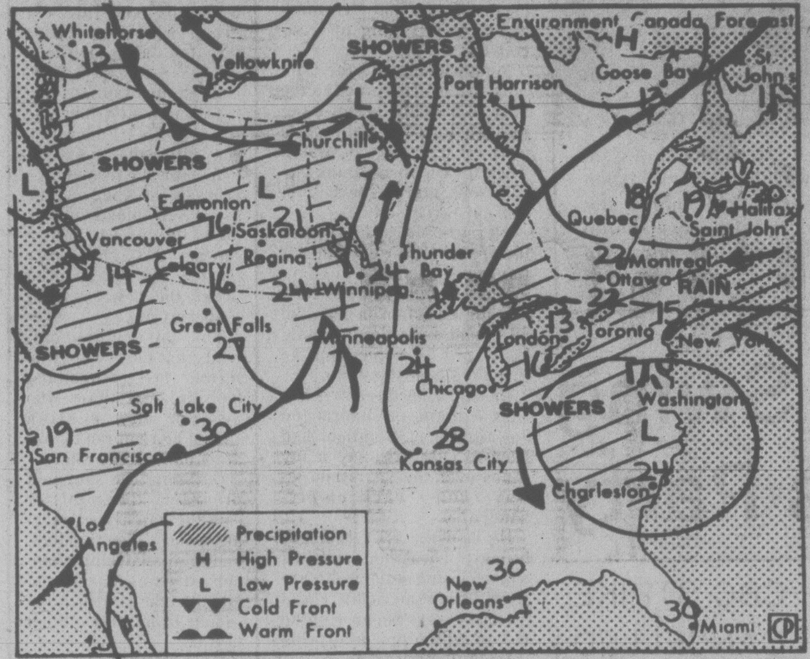
the weather



Map valid until midday Tuesday.

A persistent low pressure centre offshore at upper levels in the atmosphere still plagued most of B.C. this morning. Skies were cloudy and showers were reported from many divergent areas. Showers will continue today over all areas of the province and isolated thundershowers are expected over the south coast and most of the interior. A new system moving eastward to the west of the weather ship will reach the coast on Tuesday. It will bring a band of cloud and rain to the north coast but a weak ridge of high pressure ahead of the system will bring an end to the showers over the south coast and most of the interior and there will be a few sunny periods. Afternoon temperatures Tuesday will be a little warmer than the very cool readings experienced over the weekend.

Revenue Pie Sliced

The provincial government has turned over cheques totalling $120,000 to four municipalities in the Capital Region.

Receiving $30,000 each under the new Revenue Sharing Act were Saanich, Central Saanich, North Saanich and Sidney.

Similar cheques are being issued to every municipality in B.C.

Municipal Affairs and Housing Minister Hugh Curtis said the cheques represented only the basic grant and that municipalities will be in line for further funds calculated according to population, assessment and expenditure.

Cost-shared and special-purpose grants will also be available to municipalities for such items as water facilities, roads and planning.

Curtis said it is too early to calculate how much shared revenue will eventually be distributed this year, but added the total value of provincial grants will reach an all-time high.

Run-Away Horses Reined in by Queen

LONDON (CP) — Shouting "Whoa! Whoa!" Queen Elizabeth grabbed the reins of four frightened horses dragging an overturned coach Saturday and with her husband, Prince Philip, brought them to a halt.

The incident occurred during a horse show on the grounds of her estate at Windsor Castle while the Queen and her husband were watching from a parked jeep.

The carriage overturned while manoeuvring around an obstacle on the course. The occupants of the coach, four soldiers from the Royal Household Cavalry Regiment, were thrown clear. One of them was slightly injured.

Capt. Nicholas d'Ambrumenil, who was in charge of the carriage, said the horses dragged it for several hundred yards and "I saw the Queen step forward to shout 'Whoa' and take hold of the reins."

"Then Prince Philip came up and they both quieted the animals while the carriage was put back."

Prince Philip, a competitor in the event, drove a coach-and-four over the 18-mile course and finished third.

Problems Plague Site One Hydro Dam

Workmen constructing powerhouse

HUDSON'S HOPE (CP) — British Columbia Hydro's Site One power dam in northeastern B.C. is being plagued by problems with soft rock and delays in delivery of parts for four Russian turbines.

Project manager Chris Boapman says he is also upset by the anonymous phone calls and letters which are dispatched to news reporters — apparently by workers — whenever there is a problem on the site.

The $500 million Site One project, located on the Peace River, was started in 1974 and was scheduled to have two of its four Russian turbines operating in 1979 and the next two in 1980 for a total capacity of 700-megawatts.

Due to rock problems, only the first unit will be installed by next year. Some parts of the work have been finished ahead of time, however, and the final delay may only be a matter of weeks or a few months.

The problem involves some horizontal seams in the rock which have been found to contain soft muck.

To quarantee stability, more rock has been removed and the holes filled with concrete, which Boapman says is probably stronger than the rock.

Boapman said he is not happy with the quality of workmanship on the Russian turbines.

The turbines have not yet been installed in the dam, although some preliminary parts are in place and two Russians are on the job. They are required under their contract to build and install the turbines but Hydro inspects the work.

Later this month the water wheel for the first turbine will leave the Soviet Union by ship for Vancouver and will be transported to the dam site.

The 600-ton wheel, nine-metres in diameter, is too unwieldy to be transported by highway or railway so it will be barged and trailered to the dam site over logging roads and lakes. The barge will have to be taken apart several times during the trip.

Colby Recants

NEW YORK (AP) — In the days when the CIA's paramilitary skills were freely in use around the world, he sent the first sabotage teams into North Vietnam.

From those clandestine beginnings grew the intense U.S. bombing of North Vietnam and the commitment of 550,000 U.S. ground troops. The man who admits to starting it all, William Colby, later director of the CIA, now believes it was all a mistake.

In his book published today by Simon and Schuster, Honorable Men: My Life in the CIA, Colby argues that "whether we would have won or lost," the only way to have sensibly fought the Vietnam war was at the village level as a political struggle against the Communists, using only Vietnamese forces.

Colby went on to play a major role in counter-insurgency and pacification programs in Vietnam, but in his book he clearly believes that it was then a lost cause.

As CIA station chief in Saigon in 1963, Colby writes of attending a Hawaii conference where plans were discussed to step up the war. He tried to convince then-defence secretary Robert MacNamara that the sabotage teams sent into North Vietnam had disappeared quickly from radio contact and possibly were captured "and that putting such teams into the north did not and would not work."

Colby says that MacNamara "listened to me with a cold look and he rejected my advice."

Colby criticizes the late president John F. Kennedy for going along with "what I still consider the worst mistake of the war, the American-sponsored overthrow of President Ngo Dinh Diem," and writes that earlier two "high-ranking" United States officials clearly implied that the CIA should assassinate Ngo Dinh Nhu, Diem's brother and opponent of U.S. plans for reform.

New Trial For Murder Sought

A new trial will be sought for a Victoria woman serving life imprisonment for the murder of her elderly cousin.

Lawyer Robert Gardner, of Vancouver, is preparing a petition seeking the new trial for Elouise Roads Wilson, 49, who is also a lawyer.

She was convicted of the Dec. 2, 1975 slaying of her 69-year-old cousin Marion Hamilton in the victim's mansion in the Shaughnessy area of Vancouver.

The Crown claimed Hamilton was murdered for a $175,000 inheritance that would have gone to the accused.

Gardner will argue in the petition that the death of Hamilton was possibly suicide and not murder and that the victim died after draping a piece of twine around her own neck and then looping it over a door handle in her home.

Agency Shuts

VANCOUVER (CP) — A travel agency, specializing in trips for East Indians, has closed down.

Worldways Travel of 246 East Broadway had been in operation for less than six months.

The manager, Anil Khosla, said Sunday the firm was a branch of a Toronto and Montreal company owned by Ravi Sharma.

Supermarket Contol Hit

KITCHENER, Ont. (CP) — Control of food production should be taken away from corporation-owned supermarkets and given back to farmers, delegates to a workshop on the future of food agreed.

Delegates voiced concern about statistics which show that about three-quarters of Canada's supermarkets are controlled by four major chains.

The chains, which were not named, have interests and linking directorships which extend into the farm-machinery business, banking and broadcasting, delegates said.

Farmers must rely on these companies to sell farm-grown food, buy machinery and, occasionally, borrow money from banks connected with multinational food companies.

The workshop was sponsored by the People's Food Commission, an organization composed of independent food industry representatives.

The organization has 10 commissioners representing British Columbia, the Prairies, the Atlantic provinces, Quebec and Ontario.

About 50 teachers, farmers, nutritionists, politicians and labor representatives attended the one-day conference, which concluded that concentration of ownership in the food business is threatening the future of family farms.

Greater consumer use of food co-operatives, co-operative ownership of farmland, a return to family-owned farms and state ownership of agricultural land were suggested as alternatives to Canada's current food policies.

McDermott Blasts PM

OTTAWA (UPI) — Prime Minister Pierre Trudeau is too preoccupied with bolstering his sagging popularity in time for an election to deal with the country's economic problems, the head of Canada's largest labor organization said on the weekend.

"(Trudeau) is preoccupied with his own indecision as to whether or not he should or should not call an election and if so when, so that there's a moratorium on any serious parliamentary activity," Canadian Labor Congress leader Dennis McDermott said in a Standard Broadcast News interview.

McDermott said government programs to find work for the country's more than a million unemployed could take as long as two or three years to begin to be effective. He said the prime minister was only concerned with the short-term goal of surviving another election, to be called sometime in the next twelve months.

The head of the 2.3 million-member congress said he was willing to discuss solutions with Trudeau but "I can talk until I'm blue in the face and that won't change it."

Trudeau must "stop the nonsense and get on with dealing and grappling with unemployment and doing something about the economic chaos.

Motorist Shot, Logger Held

LANGLEY (CP) — A 35-year-old Clearwater logger, Ronald Louie Hebig, has been charged with first-degree murder in connection with what was first believed to be a fatal traffic accident in Langley, RCMP said Sunday.

Leroy William Wannebo, 37, of Langley was killed Tuesday as he was driving off the Highway 1 freeway.

Police said the shooting was "not a random incident."

Keep John Ekstedt

Attorney-General Garde Gardom may find himself in a difficult position following his defence of John Ekstedt and his decision to go against the recommendations of the Proudfoot royal commission and allow Ekstedt to return as a consultant to the corrections branch after a summer-long leave of absence.

There will be many, both within and without the justice system, who agree with Madame Justice Patricia Proudfoot that Ekstedt's tentative probing towards a new philosophy of corrections amounted to nothing more than a wishy-washy liberalism that should not be perpetuated in the B.C. corrections system. They will undoubtedly pressure Gardom to adopt the recommendations of the Proudfoot commission holus-bolus, including the one stating that Ekstedt should not be allowed to return as a consultant.

But this is a case where Gardom should remain true to his own convictions, no matter what the one-person commission said. Although it is easy to criticize Ekstedt — as it is easy to criticize almost any senior government administrator, particularly one in such a sensitive position as the corrections branch —, the attorney-general was quite correct in stating that Ekstedt's innovations in the system, most of them much less noted than his failures, are now being emulated across Canada. It is worth observing also that most of the innovations — community work service programs, probation options and so on — exist in the community programs section of the corrections branch, not the institutions (read, jails) branch with which the Proudfoot commission was mainly concerned.

It is more than possible, therefore, that Proudfoot, through no particular fault of her own, received an off-centre picture of Ekstedt's work, hearing much more about the jails, the greatest problem area, than about the community correction programs, the greatest area of strength.

The judge's greatest criticism of Ekstedt, however, seemed to be that he had not provided proper leadership to the branch because, after three years under him, it is just beginning to develop some idea of its long-range directions. She is undoubtedly right in her view that the whole branch is still struggling to develop realistic goals and an appropriate role for itself within the criminal justice system; she is undoubtedly right too in saying that this prolonged struggle has been difficult for administrators, staff and "clients" of the corrections system alike.

But what must be questioned is the conclusion that the length of this struggle implies a lack of leadership on Ekstedt's part. Perhaps instead it is only a response to an extremely realistic view that the corrections system is an immensely complex, multi-headed animal in which the component parts (including administrators, jail guards, probation officers, inmates, first offenders, political masters, and the tax-paying public, to name just a few) must often want to go in entirely different directions.

It would have been easy for Ekstedt, or any other commissioner of corrections, to implement a single philosophy for the whole branch: the "lock 'em all up and throw away the key" school was popular for years, and would probably still be quite politically popular. It undoubtedly led to fewer morale problems among staff; everyone knew exactly what he was supposed to be doing.

In fact, there was only one thing wrong with it — it didn't work. Prisoners nearly always were released after a few months or years, and a high proportion of them came out worse than they went in.

There followed a period in which the "rehabilitation model" was popular — the idea that prisoners could be rehabilitated through compulsory education programs, counselling, and so on. Unfortunately, it didn't work much better since it is almost impossible to rehabilitate those who don't want to be rehabilitated.

Ekstedt, therefore, stepped into a situation in which it was becoming increasingly evident that it didn't much matter what went on in jails because no programs for them seemed to do any good. He did not try to evade that situation by imposing a simplistic philosophy, and that should go to his credit, not his debit.

Instead, he tried to develop more programs to keep lawbreakers out of the useless jails, and he struggled with his staff to develop policies for jails to make them the least bad places he could. And perhaps it should be pointed out that although Oakalla, Wilkinson Road and other B.C. jails are still bad places, they have avoided the worst excesses of staff strikes and inmate riots that have plagued the federal penitentiary system and many other provincial systems.

Working as a consultant, Ekstedt will be able to continue his searching for better ways to handle lawbreakers in our society. It will perhaps be easier for him to do so if he does not also have direct administrative responsibility for the corrections branch. If Gardom bows to pressure to keep Ekstedt out, both his ministry and the province as a whole will be the poorer for it.

Developments in Conflict

(The following viewpoint was written by Len Webster, editor of Construction West magazine, a journal of the construction industry in Western Canada, and appeared in the May 1 issue of Construction West.)

For a country that is becoming increasingly weighed down with committees and boards of all kinds and shapes Canada seems hellbent on achieving a world standard of mediocrity.

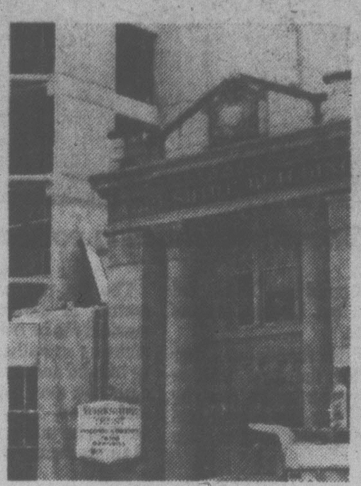
Take, for example, the question of town planning. This is a typical motherhood issue in most communities where the various safeguards and appeals are designed to protect the neighborhood to ensure that nothing too outrageous suddenly appears overnight on the local streets.

Sounds highly laudable. Unless you are a developer and become totally frustrated through the ability of the vociferous few to prevent any progress. Or unless you live in a community and wake up one day to see the most flagrant abuse of the intent behind planning regulations taking shape right across the street.

Found Everywhere

To Canada's sorrow both the above situations can regularly be found in the largest and the smallest communities in every province. Take, for example, the Greater Victoria area of Vancouver Island. Dubbed the land of the "newly wed and nearly dead," this whole area is enriched by people who make a second, even third career out of committee watching.

Two situations come to mind: On the western fringe of the Saanich peninsula, adjacent to the famed Butchart Gardens, Genstar Development Company wants to build a residential neighborhood for about 550 people on 22 acres. Mostly townhouses, the plan includes a neighborhood square, shopping facilities, marina, landscaped public boardwalk along the waterfront, etc. Although only in the draft stages, the proposal has been well detailed and exhaustive precautions have been taken to ensure that it does not impinge on the nearby gardens. (One test, for instance, involved balloons which were flown on the site of the proposed buildings to the maximum height the lowrise structure would reach. The public was then invited — defied, almost — to find the balloons from the gardens — and couldn't.)



HIGHRISE
. . grows on Fort Street.

After many, many heated and partisan debates and public meetings the Central Saanich council recently unanimously rejected the proposals. Mayor Jean Butler said he (sic) is adamant "that the world-renowned gardens be protected."

What is not being recognized is the fact that the land is derelict; a tangle of decayed trees and the overgrown ruins of an old cement plant. About the only use made of the waterfront is as a fish-cleaning site by local sport fishermen — and the area gives olfactory evidence of their works.

Not far away from Butchart Gardens, in the city of Victoria, is an entirely different circumstance. There, in a city that still boasts a large number of well-preserved examples of Victorian and Edwardian architecture, a new highrise office building is being forcibly inserted into the downtown core. The result is an absolute eyesore. The building is too high, of completely inappropriate proportions and detailing, of materials that clash with everything else around, and apparently designed with little regard for its neighbors.

Hysterical Outburst

How can this happen? In (Central) Saanich we have a hysterical outburst against a development that would enhance its surroundings, specifically designed not to impinge on adjacent works, and which would provide valuable facilities and amenities to the community.

In Victoria, however, a veritable bastion of conservatism, all the things that planning codes and committees are designed to achieve seems to have been ignored or frustrated. Not for the first time, the people of Victoria have woken up to find the skyline and streetscape unalterably changed, for the worse.

Maybe it was just that the "nearly dead" don't care, and the "newly wed" are just too busy attending to other matters.

Invitation to a Dinner Party

My sister used to hint at some dark episode in the life of our Great-Uncle Crow-Baker but she never yielded the details, probably because she thought (quite rightly) that I would write about them. It had something to do with his first wife and the daughter of that marriage. "He drove them both to an early grave," my sister said.

So all I can tell you about Uncle Crow is how he went to business in Victoria each day from his pink brick mansion which he called Sissinghurst. It stood on the present site of the Gorge Road hospital. Except in the most inclement weather he crossed the terraced lawns and walked through the woods to the boathouse. There he lowered a dinghy in which he rowed across the Gorge to the south shore, where he caught a trolley which trundled by way of the Point Ellice bridge to downtown Victoria.

He did not succeed in driving his second wife, my Great-Aunt Etta, to an early grave. She long outlived him, a round, dark, merry little woman who presided over Sissinghurst in great style, assisted as much as possible by her niece, my Aunt Jean.

Cheerful Secretary

Jean officially was Aunt Etta's companion, a sort of social secretary. She was a cheerful companion too, though all too often the asthma with which she was afflicted turned her laughter to a wheezing that was painful to watch.

Most mornings she could be found in the sunroom, half sitting-room, half conservatory. There amid the potted palms and aspidistras she reclined on a wicker chaise longue attending to Aunt Etta's correspondence and social engagements.

One morning when I was 12 years old or thereabouts, an awkward boy on crutches, staying with my Great-Aunt Margaret and Great-Uncle Billy Spinks while a broken leg slowly knitted, I discovered her there with her dark-browed, pensive sister Irene, making up a list for a dinner party. I had been sent over to Sissinghurst by car to exercise in the grounds and have lunch.

Blonde Aunt Jean raise her smoky blue eyes as I entered and regarded me thoughtfully. "And Stuart shall come to the party too," she said. "That will make just the right number."

"Stuart?" exclaimed Irene, as if the idea were preposterous.

"Stuart and Helena." That was my mother, who was coming over from the mainland for a visit soon. "I know. I shall seat Stuart beside Mr. Cuthbert-Tuttle."

Irene's dark eyebrows arched up and her sombre face crumpled with laughter. "Mr. Cuthbert-Tootle?" she said.

The two sisters shook with mirth I could not fathom even when Jean gasped out: "O de Poo." That was a family joke of my making, my rendition when an even smaller boy of an advertisement in French for a skin lotion: Eau de Peau.

Enlightenment had to await the dinner party. Aunt Etta sent her car over to collect us. I wore my blue serge suit, already too short in the legs and arms — "It must be those crutches that make your legs grow so," Mother said.

She wore an evening dress Aunt Margaret had extracted from her own wardrobe, with a fur cape to cover her bare arms. I hardly knew what to say to her, accustomed as I was to her usual "best" clothes, the uniform of a country parson's wife, navy blue skirt and jacket with the gold Maltese cross of the Women's Auxiliary on the lapel.

On the way to Sissinghurst she warned me of the perils of drink.

"If you are offered a glass of wine take it, but don't drink it," she said. "I was not much older than you when I went to a New Year's Day reception at the Citadel in Quebec. I had two glasses of sherry. My cheeks felt so hot and when we left I thought the stones of the courtyard were coming up to hit me in the face."

I was not offered a sherry or anything else in the noisy drawing-room into which we were ushered on arrival. At the dinner table an elderly maid, smiling benignly, set a glass of ginger ale by my place.

Mother, I might add, readily accepted a sherry before dinner and did not shrink from the wine which was now cascaded into her glass. The man on her right was a senator who had something to do with education, a rosy-faced person with a mane of white hair. Mother was a devoted member of the Parent Teachers Association, Edmonds Street School, Burnaby, and had plenty to say to him. He nodded pleasantly as her voice rang out. Aunt Jean had planned her seating well. The senator was almost stone deaf.

There were 15 of us at the long table. Aunt Etta presided at the top, with no one at the opposite end although a place had been set. Out of respect for the never-to-return Uncle Crow, perhaps? I had the very last seat on one side, with Aunt Jean opposite to fling me an occasional encouraging smile. I needed it, because Mr. Cuthbert-Tuttle was heavy going.

I soon discovered the cause of my aunts' mirth. Mr. Cuthbert-Tuttle suffered from an internal weakness, manifested in strange rumblings, and worse. It was like being witness to an electrical storm that grunts and flashes along the distant horizon and now and then produces a startling nearby thunderclap.

He seemed unaware of my existence but stared fixedly at my Aunt Jean. Once, after the main course, while we were waiting for dessert, he suddenly got up and vanished through a door immediately behind us, a door I never knew existed despite my long acquaintance with Sissinghurst.

When he came back and slipped into his chair again, he addressed his only words to me. "Always know the lay of the land, laddie," he said, picking up his wine glass.

I thought the evening would never end. After dinner everyone went back to the drawing-room where Aunt Jean played the piano and a large lady sang interminably in a foreign tongue. I sneaked off to the sunroom where I knew I could find something to read.

Eventually I saw Aunt Jean crooking a finger at me.

"Come on, you're going home, rotten little bear. Don't you know that when you go out to dinner you must make an effort, be agreeable and pay your way?"

I was standing beside her now and she caught my head and pressed it against her. She smelled of spring flowers. "You don't want to be another Cuthbert-Tuttle, do you?" she said.

"Cuthbert-Tootle?" I asked, grinning wickedly.

She laughed until she lost her breath and then leaned on me till she recovered it.

Going back to Aunt Margaret's in the car Mother talked about the party, which she had enjoyed. I thought of Aunt Jean and her golden hair and wished that her cruel ailment would leave her free to laugh.

Thank the Cook

We slowed at an intersection and the street light fell on Mother's face.

"And that's something you must remember dear, after a nice dinner like that. Always say thank you to the servants. I went out to the kitchen and told Wing how delicious everything had been."

"Mother!" I cried, horrified. "You didn't call him Wing? Wing is Aunt Margaret's cook. Aunt Etta's cook is Sing. Why, they belong to different — different tongs. They fight to the death — I mean, they're very sensitive about their names."

I could already see a vengeful meat cleaver descending on her skull.

We moved on into the darkness. "Oh, I know that," Mother said impatiently. "It's all right. Of course it's all right. I called him John. They all expect to be called John."

Sun Day

I am still nursing my solar-roasted face after exposing it to the sun in Beacon Hill Park on Sun-Day (May 7).

The Centre for Energy Conservation-organized festival can only be described as a real success. What a crowd, young and old and in between, fascinating people.

It was our part to display wood-burning stoves and heaters. Comments from the not-so-young were almost unanimous: we just may have to go back to that (meaning heating a home with wood). The younger ones were more positive about it and thought it is a good idea. But summing it all up, the response was tremendous.

Not all of us will ever heat our homes with the sun, the wind or wood. Not too many will complement their diets with seaweed, but I think we are going in the right direction.

The message at the festival was clear: conserve, utilize, clean up and save because there is a tomorrow. — Paul H. Kerstein, Vancouver Island Stove Shop.

Do You Care?

It never ceases to amaze me how divided people are nowadays. Regarding the letter published in the Times March 10 entitled Delinquents: There were notices of announcement of a meeting asking the public to attend March 15 at 7:30 p.m. These notices were posted at all branches of libraries in Victoria, nine different church bulletins, and apartment buildings as well. This meeting was to be held at the James Bay Community School. It was specified on the notices that the discussion would be youth and middle-aged group activity centres for the Victoria area. This meeting was to discuss how we could make use of activity centres, if we had more. Also to discuss how we could create a more social life for everyone.

Surely there are more people in Victoria who would like to see a better social life for everyone. After all, isn't lack of communication one of the main causes of divorce, marriage breakdowns, boredom, loneliness, drug abuse, alcoholism, child abuse, to name a few? How may really care? No one showed up for the meeting. I would like to hear from you, the public. — Mrs. Rita Lamb, 20-72 Dallas Road.

Downtown Planning

It is gratifying in reading recent copies of the Times that men with influence are really going to put forth their thoughts and efforts to save our city's centre. We all know that if an apple goes at the core it soon reaches right through the fruit and then it can't be saved, so I hope people in outlying areas will realize that they can benefit too if our downtown area remains healthy. I do hope that all the people connected with the planning will see the merit of each other's thinking and co-operate instead of pulling in different directions.

Mr. Bawlf's suggestion to interest another large retail outlet to invest in Victoria is very forward thinking. It is not an immediate necessity, but he is thinking of the future. Mr. Highton stresses that parking is the first priority to be considered in all future planning. It's certainly very true that the city needs the revenue from the parking meters, but I also agree with Mr. Ansell that parking will have to be free if the city centre is to be saved. The parking attendants do their work well and, of course, this is their job. There is no doubt though when a citizen has possibly spent considerably money shopping and has been detained often through no fault of his own, he returns to his car only to find a ticket on his windshield — so he has been penalized for shopping downtown. If the parking problem is not solved, the planners will be putting the cart before the horse.

Malls in the downtown area are attractive, but here again a number of parking places are lost and the flow of traffic is reduced; most use adjacent streets which can cause bottlenecks and irate motorists.

Saving our heritage buildings is necessary, but if it is overdone, too much revenue is lost and this puts a burden on the taxpayer.

In closing, as this is Captain Cook's year, his memory should be honored in this area — I feel that his character should not be smudged at this time or any time. The province of B.C., Victoria and many cities can reap the benefit of a bumper tourist year, so don't spoil the hard work that the people on tourism are doing. — Josephine R. Check, 172 Maddock Avenue West.

Copper Catch 22

By J. P. SMITH

Zambia, one of the world's leading copper exporters, produces it for 68 cents a pound and sells it for 59 cents a pound. Though it loses 9 cents a pound Zambia this year will produce all the copper it can; it is almost the only product it has to sell for dollars in international markets, and Zambia desperately needs dollars — in part to pay off debts it incurred from running its copper mines at a loss in the past.

In Joseph Heller's novel Catch 22 is a character named Milo Minderbinder who made a fortune selling eggs for less than he paid for them. The world copper market has a lot of Milo Mindbinder economics in it.

The losers, as the market is working today, are the mainly Third World exporting countries — principally Zambia, Chile, Peru and Zaire — that are having to subsidize the metal's production, partly to earn dollars and partly to provide jobs for their people. The winners are the industrialized countries that buy and use copper and which gain from the lower prices. Also winners are the big, mostly U.S.-based money-market banks such as Chase Manhattan and Citibank; they are creditors of the copper-producing countries and their interest payments come first.

Yet even though copper prices are depressed below the cost of production, all sorts of interests are buying into copper mines as well as expanding production capacity for the future. The acquisitions are occurring abroad and in the United States. Among the leading buyers are the world's major oil companies, which have quietly picked up 40 per cent of the domestic copper industry.

The reason for buying is quite simple. Most experts think the price of copper will rise rapidly in the years ahead — some forecasters see it tripling.

After oil and sugar, copper is the leading source of export earnings for the less-developed nations.

One answer to the question of the role of the Third World exporters has been offered by the British North American committee, a private organization of banking, mining, oil and labor movement leaders like the Trilateral Commission. A 1976 committee report on mineral development in the 1980s concluded that the industrialized countries will simply not make capital available unless Third World host countries provide a favorable environment.

The Case for Animal Liberation

By RICHARD D. LYONS
New York Times

The fledgling animal liberation movement, which aims at freeing the higher mammals from the types of oppression commonly encountered by human minorities, has in recent weeks won a public relations campaign in Ann Arbor and lost a court battle in Honolulu. In the broader sense, this small movement, held by some to be on the lunatic fringe of civil rights, has succeeded in calling attention to its thesis, that animals indeed do have rights.

In Ann Arbor animal lovers organized petition-signing drives in a successful effort to save the lives of six baboons that were going to be sacrificed in simulated automobile accidents at the University of Michigan. Engineers argued that the tests were aimed at perfecting safety devices that would save human lives; protestors countered that the tests duplicated previous efforts and that the baboons would die for no good reason.

In the Honolulu case, Kenny Levasseur was convicted of theft and sentenced to six months in jail for freeing two dolphins from a University of Hawaii laboratory. The dolphins were being taught to communicate with human beings and had acquired a vocabulary of 12 "words" in a $350,000 experiment underwritten by The National Science Foundation. Levasseur argued unsuccessfully that the dolphins "have rights on their own" and should not have been imprisoned.

But do animals have rights? The answer is obviously "yes," says Dr. Tom Regan, a professor of philosophy at North Carolina State University and co-editor of the book Animal Rights and Human Obligations.

"Those of us in the animal rights movement are up against the view that the world belongs to the human race and that the contents of the world have value only to the extent that they serve the human race," he said. "This is speciesism, that is, the world is here for human beings to use any way they see fit, which is the way the Honolulu case was resolved: The law regards dolphins as the personal property of those persons who hold them captive."

Is it necessary to kill so many in experiments?

Dr. Regan says the animal liberationists are not sloppy sentimentalists. "It's not crazy to believe, as some Eastern cultures do, that animals have rights. Our aim is to break some standard patterns of thought about animals that are held in Western society."

Opponents of Dr. Regan contend that animals are necessary for experiments that it would be unthinkable to conduct on human beings. They also say that in drug and chemical testing the use of rats and mice is of unquestioned value because these rodents are very much akin to man biochemically.

While the precise number of animals used in experimentation is not known, a Rutgers University study found that 80 million mammals, reptiles and birds had been used for tests in 1971, including 45 million rats and mice, 700,000 rabbits, 500,000 dogs and 200,000 cats.

Dr. Regan says that much of the research in which these animals are deliberately killed is not valid biomedical research. Further, he adds, there are other possible approaches that have not been fully explored, such as using tissue cultures instead of mammals to test drugs.

"The antivivisectionists say that the use of animals for experimentation is never justified, while the other extreme is that their use is justified for any reason whatsoever," Dr. Regan says. "My colleagues are pleading for a middle position, one that allows animal experimentation as long as it makes sense and acknowledges that animals do have some rights."

Philosophers from Aristotle to Voltaire have been arguing this point for many centuries. Aristotle held that only those beings that are able to reason are entitled to rights and that since only man can reason, animals have no rights. But Voltaire countered that because animals have feelings and are to some degree capable of understanding, they do indeed have rights. Even people who argue against animal rights believe that human beings have some obligation to treat animals as kindly as possible if only because, as Immanuel Kant said, "our duties towards animals are indirect duties toward mankind."

Vivisectionists defend animal experimentation by a somewhat different version of this argument. They say that if human beings put animals to intelligent and kindly use in the short run, they will indirectly benefit mankind in the long run. As vivisectionists see it, "intelligent and kindly" use can include experimentation; animals, they say, must be used to test new drugs, novel surgical procedures and experimental safety devices not only because using people is difficult if not illegal but because such experiments help people. Dr. Robert J. White, a Cleveland neurological surgeon, noted on removing a tumor from a child's brain that "this was a surgical undertaking that would have been impossible a few decades ago, highly dangerous a few years go, but is today, thanks to extensive experimentation on the brains of lower animals, routinely accomplished with a high degree of safety."

Many antivivisectionists agree, but they wonder if the enormous numbers of animals being killed and the barbarous manner in which many die justify the benefits. Dr. Albert Schweitzer, who believed that animal experimentation was necessary, nevertheless argued that before undertaking any experiment a researcher should ponder whether the use of a laboratory animal in a test that would end in death was of any real value to mankind. His questioning of such procedures a generation ago is exactly the reasoning on which the Ann Arbor protests were made.

The Rev. Erwin Gaedo, the Unitarian minister who led the fight against killing the baboons in Michigan, phrased the larger issue this way: "If people used their seat belts, if Detroit made safer cars, we wouldn't need these ugly experiments in which animals are forced to suffer for man's ignorance. We just can't continue to sit in judgment on these animals the way we do."

A Taste for Secrecy

THE SUN
An Editorial

It is, in a way, refreshing to have it out in the open. The department of recreation and conservation has issued a memorandum threatening the dismissal of fish and wildlife branch officials who release confidential information.

The memorandum — which confirms what many suspected about the provincial government's taste for secrecy and heavy-handedness — raises several important questions.

What does the government consider to be confidential information, for instance? What is the role of a qualified scientist or technician or any other professional who also happens to be a civil servant? What are the rights of the citizens of the province whose unique environment is often at stake when environmental decisions are made?

It has long been evident to members of the press — whose sources are forced into a Deep Throat modus operandi or refuse to speak at all — that civil servants are under a great deal of pressure from above to avoid releasing any information, confidential or not.

The pressure has not been limited to recreation and conservation department staff. Matters considered too dicey to discuss have included such petty things as whether a previously announced government study had started.

There have been repeated calls for a provincial freedom of information act. The memorandum to wildlife officials provides one more example of why such an act is necessary.

If the government does not want its civil servants to pursue an advocacy role — and it certainly is not what their job is supposed to entail — there is an alternative that might be pursued.

Provide the public through the workings of a freedom of information act with the type of information currently being leaked — information that in most cases should be made available to the public because decisions to be taken on the basis of that information will affect their environment or their community.

Civil servants whose work involves access to information that should rightly be in the public domain would then be spared an unnecessary conflict over keeping silent, revealing the information in violation of their oaths of confidentiality or quitting their jobs.

In the end, keeping information from the public hampers good government by requiring decisions to be made without the broad range of ideas and options that can be brought forward by an informed public — and an informed legislative opposition. Most important, it forces them to be made without the single most important piece of information — the knowledge of what the public wants or is prepared to accept.

It is only logical that some government considerations will be too delicate, either temporarily or permanently, for public consumption. But most information does not fall into that category, and for a government to pretend that it does says more about the insensitivity of the government than the sensitivity of the information.

A Night to Remember

russell baker

The hotel ballroom is elegant. A remnant of the Hofburg Palace perhaps. Glittering chandeliers. The tinkle of fine crystal glasses. A string ensemble (white tie and tails) plays Mozart discreetly. And there are beautiful women, yes, beautiful, but of an age sufficient to be interesting, of an age beyond jeans. They wear silks, I think, for they seem to ripple as they move.

I am not there yet. As guest of honor, I prefer to be late, the better to make an entrance. It is the event of the year. All the people who are in my debt are attending an Evening of Appreciation to express their gratitude. Such splendor. It is too much. I have told the committee it is too much, but everyone has insisted. The men wear medals. The women, those marvelously rippling silks.

* * *

Though not yet there, I can recognize many familiar faces. There, for example — over there. Yes, the Shah of Iran. He is talking to Nelson Rockefeller. About me. What a Samaritan I have been, he is saying, to have kept using my 1969 gas guzzler these past five years. Such a contribution to the Peacock Throne.

Nelson, too, is touched. He recalls that wonderful year when he escaped all income taxes. And why? Because I was there, stout chap, ever willing to help his fellow man, doing my share to overcome the Treasury shortage caused by Nelson's wonderful tax-free year.

And who are these grave gentlemen? Statesmen, surely, by the set of their shoulders and jut of their jaws. Bless me, if it isn't Menachem Begin and Anwar el-Sadat. Each has travelled all the way from the troubled Middle East for this gesture to one who has contributed so unstintingly to the support of their arsenals.

I can already hear the speeches that will be made. They are embarrassing. Reporters will write that I was heaped with encomiums. Mentally, I try to prepare a response, gracious yet self-effacing.

"Each of us," I might say, "owes the world a little philanthropy, and he who pays it today is quits for tomorrow." I reconsider that. It strikes a negative note which may trouble these people who depend so heavily upon me. Surely they will be despondent if I suggest I will not be there to help them tomorrow, and tomorrow, and tomorrow.

The crowd is swelling. There is Madame Nhu. All the way from Europe! And simply to thank me for the funds I sent to Vietnam, without which she could never have gone so successfully into European banking. And — would you believe? — Richard Nixon! Dick, Dick, old fellow, how could you have thought I would ever hesitate about keeping you handsomely set up out in San Clemente? Really now, there was no need to come all the way just on my account.

* * *

I beg your pardon? Of course, George Steinbrenner. You own the Yankees, Mr. Steinbrenner. George? Of course — George. It's nothing, really, George, my helping pay the bill for Yankee Stadium. If you'd had to pay it, there wouldn't be enough left over to bring us Reggie Jackson, now would there?

Speaking of Reggie, he is there, too. He knows who put up the money for the Stadium so George would have enough left over to bring happiness to Reggie Jackson. They say that in his after-dinner speech Reggie will promise to hit a homer for me in token of gratitude.

And so many complete strangers filling their champagne glasses. They tell me these are people who live on municipal bonds and capital gains, all of whom insisted on coming to thank me personally for helping make up the Treasury deficits created by their undersized tax payments. Without me, they say, they would be as poor as I, but all I can say is, shucks, it's not my money that makes it all possible, it's my dumbness.

* * *

And over there — that's my neighbor, Poynton. Poynton has a son who's planning to take my job if only he can get a college education. Poynton cannot afford to send the boy to college, however, unless I help pay the bill. The best way, says Poynton, is for him to deduct some of the boy's college expenses off his taxes and let me make up his shortfall with the Internal Revenue. After I have helped finance the lad to put me out of work, Poynton says, they will repay me by not grumbling too much if I go on welfare.

Poynton doesn't have to do that. He certainly doesn't have to show up for this gala Night of Appreciation. Even so, I am touched as I approach the ballroom. Overwhelmed as I enter to a standing ovation. It is too much. My heart is overflowing. When I see the Congress — the entire Congress of the United States! — joining the applause, I come near breaking down.

Spirits of ammonia are applied at my nostrils. "It's after 3 A.M.," says a familiar female voice. On television a suit salesman is trying to sell me a polyester garment.

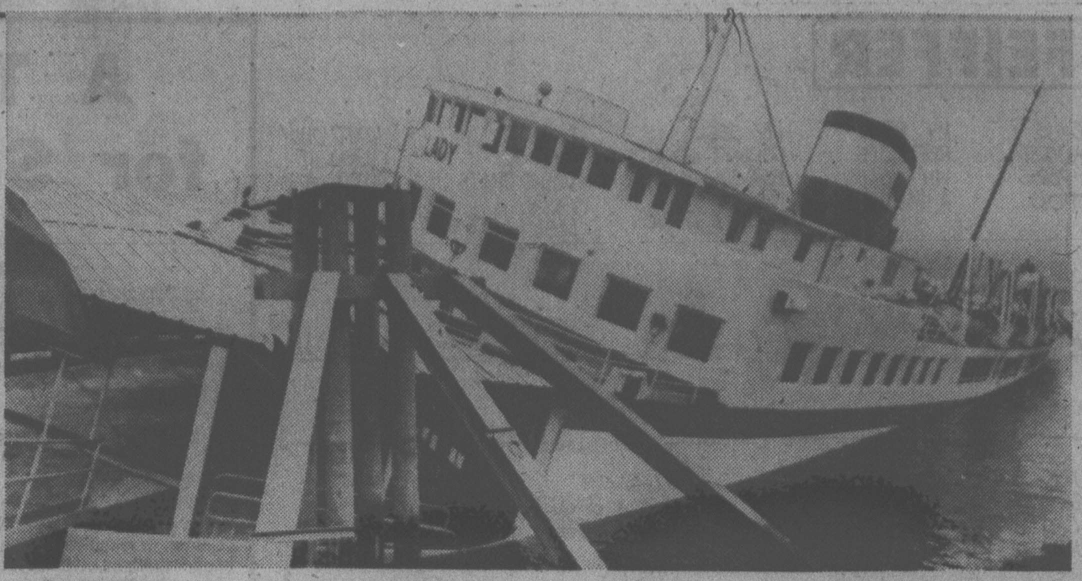
VALVE LEAKS, GRACE SINKS



VANCOUVER (CP) - The ferry Lady Grace sank at its mooring in the harbor Sunday after a valve on the 90-metre, unoccupied ship began leaking.

The ship was repossessed by the provincial government last week after its owners, Coal Harbor Maritime Leasing Ltd. of Vancouver, went bankrupt. The ferry was known as the Langdale Queen when it was part of the provincial government's ferry fleet.

The ship sank when a valve for fresh water began leaking, causing it to list. As the Lady Grace sank lower in the harbor, water entered through a porthole. Most of the main deck was submerged.

A National Harbors Board crew placed a boom around the ship to contain a small spill of diesel oil.

Maritime Leasing bought the vessel in May, 1977 and planned to turn it into a floating restaurant.

Vancouver firemen and three divers labored with a fireboat and three pumper trucks for two hours to keep the ferry's 75-year-old hull afloat.

The Lady Grace was built in Philadelphia as a 3,016-ton steam-fired coaster named the Asbury Park, for the Central Railroad of New Jersey. She later did duty as a ferry in San Francisco Bay and was brought north to B.C. in 1951 where she sailed in the Black Ball ferry fleet for 10 years before being purchased by B.C. Ferries.

She was purchased last May for $50,000 by Maritime Leasing Ltd. Although there were higher offers, the B.C. government accepted Maritime's bid because the ship would be preserved.

In September, two of her eight-foot propellers each weighing 1¼ tons, disappeared during the night.

Lakex Mines Ltd., which took over the project from Maritime Leasing, lost its lease in March from CPR's Marathon Realty.

"We haven't the vaguest idea what we'll do," said John Springer, Lakex president, who hadn't seen the condition of the Lady Grace.

Forest Bill Praised

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government's new forest legislation is "full of sound, good intentions," the president of Canadian Forest Products said Sunday.

Peter Bentley said it appears that CFP's rental and royalty payments will increase, adding that government revenues from the forest industry will vary among companies.

The three-bill package, introduced Friday by Forests Minister Tom Waterland, proposes changes in tenure on forest lands.

Bentley said he is worried about some parts of the legislation, especially those pertaining to replacement of tree farm licences.

"One of my real concerns is while the criteria for many matters is spelled out in the legislation the criteria for replacement is not," he said.

He said the tenure provisions for tree farm licence areas will satisfy financing requirements. Under the legislation, all 21-year-old and perpetual tree farm licences will be converted to 25-year evergreen (renewable) terms by 1986.

Serum to Slow Aging Being Developed

VANCOUVER (CP) - Society can expect to see important medical breakthroughs in retaining youthfulness in the next ten years, delegates to the first convention of the Gerontology Association of British Columbia were told.

Bernard Strehler, a researcher at the University of Southern Calfornia and author of a book on aging, said one of the most remarkable discoveries made is how the human cells age. These discoveries will likely make possible treatment to slow the aging process, he said.

Strehler said non-dividing cells, like those in the heart and brain, show accumulations of a varnish-like pigment which increase with age.

He said that in a 90-year-old human this age pigment may take up as much as 75 per cent of the working parts of the cell.

A cure for old age might involve injecting the elderly with amino molecules from younger people, he said.

Dugout Canoe Hawaii Bound

VANCOUVER (CP) — West Vancouver adventurer Geordie Tocher left Sunday for Seattle in the first leg of a voyage to Hawaii in his hand-carved 12-metre replica of Haida Indian dugout canoe.

Tocher, 51, is attempting to prove that British Columbia Haida Indians paddled their war canoes to the Hawaiian Islands about 1,400 years ago.

Tocher has spent 2½ years building the 12-metre Haida war canoe — the Orenda — which he carved from a single Douglas Fir log. The craft has a mast, an outrigger, and the bow and stern can be covered.

He said earlier that because the expedition has been ignored by the offices of Premier Bill Bennett and Provincial Secretary Grace McCarthy, he would not make a courtesy call at Victoria, but would go directly to Seattle.

Tocher said he received a letter of welcome and best wishes from Gov. Dixie Lee Ray of Washington.

"It was a nice gesture on the part of the governor," he said.

After spending two nights in Seattle, the three will head for Neah Bay, Wash., and then south to a point 200 miles (320 kilometres) west of San Francisco.

Tocher said that from there, because of trade winds and ocean currents, the 2,312-mile (3,700-kilometre) voyage to Hawaii should take about 35 days.

Academic Urges Killing A Sasquatch for Proof

VANCOUVER (CP) — In order to prove the legendary forest giant exists, somebody has just got to go out and kill a Sasquatch, according to Grover Krantz, a University of Washington professor, said Saturday.

Krantz was greeted by a chorus of soft hisses, in the style of a Victorian melodrama, when he made his suggestion at a weekend conference on humanoid monsters.

He said a skeleton is the only evidence acceptable to academics because films, plaster casts of Sasquatch footprints, hair and fecal samples can be faked.

"A fresh kill is the only practical way to get that skeleton," said Krantz.

John Green, an author and Sasquatch hunter from Harrison Hot Springs, also spoke in favor of the kill.

"The only argument for treating this animal in a preferred way is that we see in it a reflection of ourselves because of the way it walks," he said.

"It is not an endangered species. It exists all over North America. There are probably 100,000 of them. If by the sacrifice of one of these animals we can prove they exist, we can then take steps to protect the rest of them."

He said hunters can forget about traps and tranquillizer guns because the animals are about 2.5 metres tall and weigh up to 1,000 pounds if footprint evidence is to be believed. Rifles are the only answer.

James Butler, head of the interpretation and education section of the Alberta recreation, parks and wildlife ministry, said it is hypocritical to declare open season on Sasquatches while trying to protect them.

"Instead of shooting first, we should be trying to communicate with them first. We can capture anything we can shoot."

Heroin Centre Draws Critics

Opposition was voiced at both the provincial and local level during the weekend to the government's plans to convert the Brannan Lake youth detention facilities into a heroin treatment centre.

NDP health critic Dennis Cocke (New Westminster) said the $3.1 million project, which will have a staff of 132, is nothing more than a public relations stunt.

And in Nanaimo a number of residents said a protest against the move is planned, with a public meeting scheduled for Tuesday to discuss action citizens might take.

Cocke said the Brannan Lake centre, announced Saturday, is intended to cover up problems the health ministry is having in creating the compulsory heroin treatment program it promised in the April budget.

He said Health Minister Bob McClelland is having difficulties with the legalities of creating a new standard of health care which circumvents the law.

The legislation creating the program is yet to be introduced, but the government plans to make treatment of hard-core heroin users compulsory, removing the access to due legal process from a segment of society, Cocke said.

Saturday's announcement said the centre of the 146-acre development will be a 150-bed hospital to take its first patients next January.

The facility will include a large pool, a gymnasium, classrooms and woodworking and metal shops expected to provide about 30,000 hours of vocational training annually.

In addition, there would be two other therapeutic centres — one in the Interior and another on Vancouver Island — which would emphasize self-help programs.

Cocke said the government knows there is no sure way to cure heroin addiction and by creating such a program it is making a fraudulent attempt to prove otherwise.

A heroin treatment centre in Kentucky recently closed as unworkable after 20 years of operation, he said. There have been similar unsuccessful trials in California and New York.

Nanaimo Ald. Ada Howden and Susan Martin, spokesman for a committee urging better uses for the Brannan Lake facility, both spoke out against the government's plans to locate a heroin treatment centre at the site.

Martin said Brannan Lake should set aside for public use.

She said her committee has been campaigning for sometime to have a study done on the facility's possible uses.

Martin said the site would be better used as a senior citizens' centre, a recreation spot, or a boarding or alternative school.

Howden said she was shocked by the news that the facility would become a heroin treatment centre.

She said the community would not accept the government's decision because Brannan Lake had caused a lot of problems when it was used to contain youthful offenders.

Lawyers Sear Drug Scheme

VANCOUVER (CP) — The British Columbia government's proposed compulsory treatment plan for drug addicts is described in a bar association document as "an unprecedented and dangerous attack" on the criminal justice system.

A critique of the plan was prepared for the criminal justice subsection of the Canadian Bar Association by lawyer Warren Standerwick.

In it, Standerwick analyses the proposal prepared for Health Minister Bob McClelland by the Alcohol and Drug Commission last year.

The brief was ordered by the subsection after it met last month and agreed the treatment program blatantly contravenes the civil rights of Canadians.

Standerwick concludes the commission paper is "inaccurate and biased."

Input from those who disagree with its approach has not been sought but has actually been discouraged, and its recommendations should be viewed with healthy scepticism, says Standerwick.

"Only the most gullible reader would accept that the primary aim of the proposed plan is to treat individual heroin users on medical or compassionate grounds.

"Heroin users and, by inference, heroin usage, have been selected as scapegoats on whom the blame for the majority of all crime in our society is placed."

He says the proposal in the paper to have addicts committed to compulsory treatment by a government tribunal circumvents the judicial system and ignores due process of law.

"The hypocritical recommendations of the Alcohol and Drug Commission are an attempt to pander to the fears of the public and to convince the government to pass legislation based on an 'end justifies the means' philosophy. Acceptance of such a philosophy is always the first step to totalitarianism."

Standerwick says no legislation exists which provides a precedent to the proposed plan. But he likens the proposal to the enactment in the Second World War that committed all Japanese people in B.C. to internment camps.

Legislation for the proposed program is to be introduced sometime during the current legislative session.

Food Before Arms CIDA Chief Urges

NEW WESTMINSTER (CP) — Governments cannot afford to funnel billions of dollars into arms while people are starving in Third World countries, says a Canadian International Development Agency director.

Romeo Malone, director of CIDA's non-governmental organizations division, a federal government agency providing foreign aid, told about 70 delegates at the UNICEF British Columbia annual meeting that "we will never be able to build a peaceful world until Third World problems are solved."

He said the main obstacle to development is over-population, but it is a mistake to provide birth control without acknowledging that people in developing areas are intelligent and should be consulted.

He said although they are poor, people in developing countries have "hope and beauty," and he has been encouraged by "the tremendous power of these people who want something better."

FIVE PERSONS CHARGED AFTER EXTORTION BID

VANCOUVER (CP) — Five persons were charged Saturday in the kidnapping the previous day of a bank manager's wife who was held for $100,000 ransom.

Charged with kidnapping for ransom, extortion, and unlawful confinement were Emil Joseph Mantha, 33, Dino Franco Pitton, 22, and Robert James Welch, 19, all of Vancouver, Leah Ann Slemmer, 25, of Everett, Wash., and Leslie Roger McKinney, 26, of Snohomish, Wash.

Heather Haley, 34, was released unharmed after about three hours when the extortion bid failed. She had been abducted from her home in nearby Delta in the morning and her husband, Kenneth, received a phone call an hour later asking for the ransom money.

Arrests later in the day culminated a cat-and-mouse game that had been going on for several hours between the gang and a CBC film crew assigned to cover the story.

Minister Urged To Drop Fees

VANCOUVER (CP) — Delegates to the annual meeting of the British Columbia Association of Social Workers have called on Human Resources Minister Bill Vander Zalm to drop plans to charge fees for social services.

Delegates unanimously decried the imposition of fees on family, adoption and child counselling would be an obstacle to people seeking those services.

The organization represents 1,250 B.C. social workers.

Plans to charge families receiving counselling a user fee — based on their ability to pay according to an income test — would take effect by 1979.

Vancouver social worker Bill Douglas claimed the user fee would be a double tax since the users have already paid for these services with their taxes.

"Historically, these services have always been offered without charge," he said.

The user fee, based on income tests, is currently limited to daycare and homemaker services.

FIREMAN INJURED

Fireman Frank Alexander, 28, was treated for a sprained wrist when he fell coming off a roof during a fire at 9 a.m. Sunday on Burnside.

The unoccupied house in the 400-block received more than $200 damage from fire that started in a rear bedroom and burned through the floor into the basement.

Victoria fire department said the dwelling, owned by Ben Wosk, of Vancouver, and leased to Metro Toyota Ltd., apparently had been entered by trespassers who were careless with smoking materials.

Productivity 'The Cure'

VANCOUVER (CP) — Increased productivity is the only cure for high unemployment and inflation, W. R. Wyman, chairman of the Investment Dealers Association of Canada said Thursday.

"This is the message we have tried to get across to governments during the past year," he told the association's Pacific district meeting.

"We have pointed out the need to eliminate political uncertainty at both the federal and provincial levels, and the need to provide incentives to the private sectors."

Wyman said the association had received some satisfaction in most areas of discussion, although not as much as it would have liked.

He said a bigger proportion of savings will have to be directed into economic activity to raise the massive amounts of capital needed for future development.

Donald M. Lorimer, who was elected chairman of the Pacific district Thursday, forecast a satisfactory year for the investment industry.

He said several legislative changes are planned for the industry, including a new British Columbia Securities Act and legislation on trading in commodities futures.

Lorimer said the association also will be looking at the trading of bonds through stock exchange facilities.

J. A. Hepburn, the outgoing Pacific district chairman, told the meeting that a balanced provincial budget, a lower rate of sales tax and the improved competitive position of exports are a good sign for the B.C. economy.

Hollinger

Hollinger Mines Ltd. reported first-quarter earnings of $2,595,000 or 53 cents a share compared with $3,024,000 or 62 cents a share for the same quarter in 1977.

A. L. Fairley, Jr., company president, said a strike at Iron Ore Co. of Canada Ltd., which began in early March, will affect Hollinger earnings this year. However, he said earnings should equal those of 1977 despite the strike.

Holinger's financial statements are consolidated with those of its subsidiaries, Hollinger North Shore Exploration Co., Ltd., and Labrador Mining and Exploration Co. Ltd.

Weldwood

Weldwood of Canada Ltd. reported net income of $4.5 million or 90 cents a share for the first quarter of 1978, compared with $2.6 million or 53 cents a share in the same period last year.

Sales were $104.8 million compared with $83.4 million in 1977.

Thomas A. Buell, president and chief executive officer, told shareholders at the annual general meeting that in the first quarter of 1978, earnings continued to benefit from high demand for lumber, significantly stronger than expected domestic and export markets for plywood, and from the lower exchange value of the Canadian dollar.

"Although I do not expect the buoyancy of the first quarter to be maintained throughout the year, I am confident that this strength will continue during the second quarter," he said.

"There are indications that pulp markets may now have stabilized and we are optimistic that prices will strengthen in the second half of the year."

Buell said total new investments, including those in affiliated companies, will reach $32 million this year, up from $26 million in 1977. These investments will create about 500 direct and indirect job opportunities, he said.

As previously reported, net income in 1977 was $14.1 million on sales of $386.7 million, compared with net income of $9.4 million on sales of $331.8 million in 1976.

Newco Fin.

Newco Financial Corp. reports it had net earnings of $799,000 in 1977, up 20 per cent from $664,000 the previous year.

Newco's annual report says total income rose to $13,889,000 in 1977 from $9,599,000 in 1976. The bulk of this income comes from life insurance premiums and annuity considerations.

The company's principal subsidiary, North West Life Assurance Co. of Canada, reported a 21.2-per-cent increase in life insurance sales to $202 million from $166 million

Peter G. Ropchan, company president, said sales for 1978 are forecast to reach $300 million.

Ropchan said growth of the insurance subsidiary's newly-established operations in Quebec and Ontario in 1977 "more than justified our entry into these markets."

Crestbrook

Crestbrook Forest Industries Ltd. has reported a first quarter profit before extraordinary items of $216,000, compared with $253,000 in the same period of 1977.

After providing for payment of preferred dividends, the company lost 10 cents a common share, compared with a loss of seven cents a common share the year before.

The extraordinary item — a reduction in income tax by applying last year's losses — increased profits to $268,000, compared with $459,000 in 1977.

Net loss per common share, after providing for payment of preferred dividends, was six cents compared with eight cents last year.

Sales were $16.64 million, compared with $16.90 million.

The company said lower revenues from plywood and pulp operations as well as a shortage of rail cars for exporting lumber were the main reasons for the lower profits.

Quebecor Inc.

Quebecor Inc. reported sales of $77,836,000 for the six-month period ending March 31, 1978, an increase of 51 per cent over sales of $51,395,000 for the corresponding period last year.

Net income for the period was $2,649,000, compared with $1,974,000 last year—an increase of 34.2 per cent. Earnings per share were $1.17 for the period, compared with $0.88 last year.

Quebecor is owned by Montreal publishing tycoon Pierre Peladeau, who launched the morning newspaper Philadelphia Journal last December. The launching costs and operating loss of this newspaper amounted to $2.1 million and were reflected in Quebecor's financial statement.

Union Gas

Union Gas Ltd. reports profits of $25.3 million for the fiscal year ended March 31 before the deduction of an extraordinary item, a 4.4-per-cent increase, or $1.23 a share compared with $1.34 a share for fiscal 1977.

The lower per-share earnings reflects an increase last year in the number of outstanding common 1shares.

Sex-in-Chains Case Goes To Queen

LOS ANGELES, Calif. (Reuter) — Joyce McKinney, the defendant in Britain's sex-in-chains case, has appealed to the Queen from her hiding place in the U.S. to drop extradition proceedings against her, a friend of McKinney's said here today.

Los Angeles architect Steve Moscowitz said he spoke last Wednesday for 45 minutes by phone to 27-year-old McKinney, who fled Britain with her friend Keith May, 24, last month to escape prosecution on a charge of kidnapping and raping a Mormon missionary Kirk Anderson, 21.

"She was very distraught, almost paranoid," Moscowitz said. "I do not know where she was calling from."

Her lengthy statement in which she claims she had felt all along that she was betrothed to Anderson but the Mormon Church had interfered in her marriage plans, ended:

"Please, your majesty the Queen of England and the Director of Public Prosecution please say you will not seek extradition so I may be restored to my freedom, to my family and friends.

"My reputtation has been ruined," she said. "I have been punished enough."

In the statement setting out what she claims were her 11 reasons for jumping bail and fleeing Britain to Canada in disguise, she said she had frequently gone out with men but was a virgin when she met and fell in love with Anderson in July, 1975.

"He asked me, and I gave him, my most precious possession — my virtue," she said.

Miss McKinney denied that May was present when she made love to Anderson in September last year in what the British press has called the sex-in-chains case because Anderson was allegedly strapped to the bed.

Attacking the press for sensationalizing the case, she says: "Everybody seems to be making me out to be the villain. Doesn't anybody have feelings?

"Kirk and I fell in love and were to be married in the Mormon temple. Then, out of nowhere, Kirk was sent away on a mission and I finally located him in England.

"I went to England to marry Kirk and nothing else. I spent my life savings to get to England and brought my wedding dress and Kirk's wedding ring with me. Why am I being punished for making love to Kirk Anderson?"

Miss McKinney says in her statement she did not flee England because she was guilty. "God knows I am innocent," she says.

She claims she is now scared to come out of hiding because she feels she will be imprisoned for life. "I have served much more time than anyone would want to think about and I have been punished enough," she says.

PLO Eyes Cuba Aid

BEIRUT (AP) — Zuhair Mohsen, head of the military wing of the Palestine Liberation Organization (PLO), says that if necessary his guerrillas will not hesitate to ask for Cuban help in carrying on the fight against Israeli occupation forces in southern Lebanon.

In an interview with the Beirut magazine Monday Morning, Mohsen says he does not believe Cuba will refuse such a request.

Mohsen says a report that Cuban irregulars already are fighting alongside the Palestinians in the south is "just a rumor."

But he adds: "Should we need help in the future, there's nothing to prevent us from asking for help from any friendly country. Cuba is a friend and would not turn down our request."

The U.S. state department has reported that more than 38,000 Cuban troops are in Africa supporting various governments including the Marxist regimes of Ethiopia and Angola, and President Jimmy Carter said during the weekend that Cubans also are present in Marxist South Yemen on the southern tip of the Arabian peninsula.

Neither the U.S., Israel nor Lebanon has suggested that Cubans are in Lebanon.

Mohsen says his forces will refrain from fighting with UN troops sent in to police a ceasefire between Israeli invaders and the guerrillas, but that the Palestinians will "find a way past the wall" of the UN peacekeeping forces.

Israeli forces occupied about 1,300 square kilometres of southern Lebanon in a drive against guerrilla positions March 15-21. Since then, however, they have withdrawn to a 10-kilometre strip of Lebanon along the Israeli-Lebanese border, relinquishing the rest of the territory to the 4,000 UN troops.

Wind Blocks Green Skies

TONOPAH, Nev. (UPI) — Adverse winds forced scientists today to postpone for the fourth time an experiment which would turn the early morning sky green over several western states.

Weather predictions for Tuesday were not any more encouraging for the barium experiment which must be conducted by Saturday or postponed until a later date.

HISTORIC HOTEL DESTROYED IN FIRE

FERNIE (CP) — A fire early Sunday destroyed the two-storey King Edward Hotel, one of the town's oldest buildings.

No injuries were reported and losses were estimated at about $200,000.

Police said the alarm was turned in shortly after 4 a.m. by one of the two men believed to be staying in the hotel. A total of 16 firemen battled the blaze for about an hour and seemed to have it under control until a tank containing 500 gallons of furnace oil burst.

Oh! Calcutta! Oh! What A Flop!

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

One of the most controversial let-it-all-hang-out shows in the history of live theatre came here Sunday and flopped in a spectacular way.

"Oh! Calcutta!" a world-wide shocker for nearly a decade, featuring nudity, dirty jokes, four-letter words and similar titillations, descended on staid old Victoria with all the impact of a jello pudding.

From a box-office point of view the two performances at the municipally-owned Royal Theatre were a disaster.

The first attracted an audience of 580, the second a scant 400 for a total of under 1,000. The theatre holds 1,455.

But Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre, where "Oh! Calcutta!" plays tonight and tomorrow, has had to put on a second Tuesday performance because the original two sold out so quickly.

Why such a difference on this side of the Georgia Strait?

Interviews with civic officials, theatre buffs, church leaders and others produce this general theory:

Victoria, belieing its Victorian image of dyed-in-the-tweed prudery, batted not an eyelid at the thought of all that naked flesh and raunchy humor being unleashed on-stage at the Royal.

Instead, the reaction was one big, collective yawn, as if to say, "So what?"

Result: No public outcry, no outraged citizens rushing into print with letters to the editor, no lecturing from pulpits, no fierce debates at the municipal level between the supporters and opponents of censorhsip and, therefore, no real demand for seats.

In fact, there was nothing even remotely resembling controversy.

And "Oh! Calcutta!" whose notoriety has been fed and fertilized with well-publicized restraining orders, legal fights and clashes with bureaucracy in numerous U.S. cities, wilted under the ennui onslaught.

Contrast the Victoria experience with the situation in Vancouver, where there was heated city council argument (diligently reported by the news media) on whether the show should be banned from the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Leading the anti-porn brigade, as ever, was the worthy Ald. Bernice Gerard, who came out with such comments as: "If Oh! Calcutta! with its group masturbation, mass copulation and bondage sex is welcome at the theatre, then anything would be welcome."

With lurid denunciations like that, what promoter needs to spend money on advertising?

If ticket sales had been lagging — and according to the Q.E. manager they weren't — Gerard's outburst would surely have guaranteed that the prurient, the voyeurs and the sexually curious would trample each other underfoot in the stampede for tickets.

The interesting thing is that someone apparently tried to engineer a fuss here by sending material anonymously through the mail to a Victoria clergyman who in the past has criticized nudity and sexual permissiveness in local stage productions.

Last week, a few days before the two Sunday-night shows at the Royal, the Rev. E.A. Follows told the Times: "I have been getting anonymous duplicate copies of things like their ad . . . not from people I know.

"This has been dropped in the mail to me, and I know that it is from the promoters of this thing to stir up some local controversy so that they will increase their take at the doors. But I am not biting."

Meanwhile, there was an equal lack of interest at the civic level.

In fact, Oak Bay Ald.John Goult, the acting chairman of the Royal Theatre committee, cheerfully admitted that he learned the show was coming to the Royal only about 10 days before it opened.

And city recreation manager Jack Morgan said although he informed the committee chairman, Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie, when the first approach came last February, he had not bothered to seek the committee's formal approval to confirm the booking.

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said he had received a couple of calls from residents who were concerned that a civic theatre (owned jointly by Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay) should be used for such purposes.

But Young, who termed "Oh! Calcutta!" a lewd and vulgar show, said last week that while he was reluctant to see such entertainment inflicted on Victoria, he was also loath to issue any prior comment on the matter.

"I could rant and rave about it but I have to question whether that would only provide advance publicity," he added.

"I tend to believe that if someone is making a nuisance of themselves and you ignore them, they go away."

Judging by Sunday night's dismal turnout, that's precisely what happened.

A SHOWER of pledge money was still being counted today from the United Way's Great Kilometre Kaper Saturday. More than 460 participated, some of them seen here during a rainy start at the Johnson Street Scout House. A total of 337 finished the 10- and 20-mile courses which wound through Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich as far north as Mount Douglas Park. Some marchers had up to $300 in pledges. Every walker turning in $20 or more will receive a United Way T-shirt. (John McKay photo.)

'Touchy' Death Probed

Victoria city police today were investigating a sudden death Sunday at a Queens Avenue address in what were described as "touchy" circumstances.

Insp. Angus Stewart said no details of the fatality were being made public pending completion of the investigation.

"There is the possibility of homicide or suicide, but we don't know yet," Stewart said.

He would not reveal any circumstances, identify or describe the deceased person.

No one was being held in custody.

10 CARS IN TILLICUM TANGLES

Ten cars were involved in two separate accidents near the Gorge-Tillicum intersection Saturday.

Three persons were hurt and there was extensive damage.

Police said that shortly before 4 p.m. Jean Pelletier, 19, of 611 Constance, hit the accelerator instead of the brake when attempting to park his car at the Gorge shopping centre. He hit another car and set off a chain collision involving seven other vehicles.

About 90 minutes later on Gorge just west of Tillicum, a car driven by Margaret Brucker, 34, of 1950 Fairfield, was in collision with a vehicle driven by Nester Melnyk, 66, of 1233 Topaz.

Mrs. Brucker is in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital and her husband,Maurice, of Lloydminster, Alta., was treated and released. Melnyk also was examined and released.

Peninsula Water Rates Up 50%

Water bills for residents of the Saanich Peninsula have shot up an average 50 per cent since February when the peninsula began drawing its water from the Greater Victoria Water District's Sooke watershed.

Now the whole peninsula is hooked to the system and homeowners in Sidney, Central Saanich and North Saanich are beginning to find out just how costly the luxury of an abundant water supply can be.

Homeowners on the peninsula pay more than triple what residents in other parts of the Greater Victoria are paying.

Yet surprisingly, the peninsula residents aren't complaining — at least not in public.

"We've had a couple of callers blasting us about the bills, but not nearly as many as we expected," a spokesman for North Saanich municipal hall said.

"Most of the people seem to accept the increases as just another example of inflation over which they have no control."

North Saanich went onto the new rates on March 16, a month after Central Saanich. Sidney made the switch the first of May.

The three municipalities pay exactly the same for the water — 70 cents per 1,000 gallons — but you'd never know it by the widely different methods they use in calculating the price to homeowners.

North Saanich, for instance, charges a basic rate of $3 a month plus $1.50 for every 1,000 gallons consumed. In addition the municipality has set a parcel tax of $18 which will be included in the annual tax notice. Before the water rate was either $10.50 for 7,000 gallons or $11.50 for 8,000 gallons depending on where the person lived in the municipality.

Central Saanich charges only 58 cents per 1,000 gallons. The crunch comes in the basic user rate — $9 a month. Before, the municipality charged a flat $6 a month plus 35 cents per 1,000 gallons.

In Sidney, residents pay only for what they use. There's no base rate. The charge is a straight $2 per 1,000 gallons. But the homeowners also must pay a parcel tax of $34 a year. A month ago residents paid a minimum rate of $6.50 plus 15 cents per hundred gallons over 4,000 gallons.

Together it all adds up to the most expensive water in the Capital Region. The average family, consuming water at the rate of 5,000 gallons a month, will pay $154 this year in Sidney, $144 in North Saanich and $142.80 in Central Saanich.

By comparison the average homeowner, given the same set of conditions, will pay $49.89 in Oak Bay, $47.58 in Victoria and Esquimalt and $42 in Saanich. And in the western communities where 9,500 residents buy their water directly from the GVWD, the average will be about $51.06.

Ron Upward, manager of the Greater Victoria Water District, says one of the main reasons peninsula water is more expensive is the wholesale cost.

The water authority, owned by the four core municipalities, sells the water for 18 cents a thousand gallons wholesale. But it attaches an additional 12 cents a thousand for peninsula users to cover the costs of extending the waterline to Elk Lake.

The 30 cent rate hasn't yet been approved by the Water Utilities Commission of B.C., says Upward, but the three peninsula municipalities have agreed to pay it in a two-year contract with the GVWD that expires next May.

From Elk Lake the water distribution is in the hands of the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission which, through the Capital Region District, collects an additional 40 cents a gallon to offset costs for a 5 million gallon reservoir and a network of waterlines built to the tip of the peninsula.

Upward agrees variations in retail costs has produced some inequities in the system which should be changed. But on the whole he feels Greater Victoria residents are getting a good deal on their water.

There are some on the peninsula, however, who would differ in that opinion.

Police Accept

Things were back to normal at the Saanich police department today after members of the policemen's union voted Sunday night to accept a new contract.

The two year agreement provides for a four percent wage hike this year to be followed by a six percent hike in 1979.

The union had sought a 10 per cent wage increase over two years.

The contract also contains a cost of living allowance clause in the second year of the agreement.

Pharmacy Post

Victoria pharmacist Joseph J. Despot, former president of the B.C. Pharmacists Society, has been named president of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association effective in 1979. Leroy Fevang, a registrar of the College of Pharmacists of B.C., was named executive director of the association at its convention here.

Alderman Fears Lawsuits Over Heritage Wording

Victoria's heritage program is in jeopardy and the city could face millions of dollars in lawsuits because of badly drafted provincial heritage legislation, Ald. Bob Wright charged today.

Under the legislation, the owners of heritage buildings could demand compensation from the city if they suffered financially from heritage designation.

"We don't quarrel with the concept of compensation, but Victoria doesn't have a heritage fund (to pay the bills), and the risk we're talking about could run into the millions," said Wright.

The legal bind in which the city has been placed has frozen the designation of 32 commercial downtown buildings and council could back down on one of the structures that is facing demoliton.

Wright said that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's Heritage Conservation Act is so poorly put together there seems to be no way the city can save two old houses now facing demolition on Belleville Street.

The houses at 321 and 327 Belleville, which operate as tourist attractions known as Judge Hunter's Haunted House and The Land of The Little People, stand in the way of a new hotel proposed by A.J. Butler and Belleville Developments Ltd.

Judge Hunter's Haunted House is on the list of 32 buildings the city approved for heritage designation several months ago.

Wright said lawyers for Butler have demanded that demolition permits be issued immediately, and because of Bawlf's legislation the city is in no position to go to court to block demoliton.

The developers first applied for permits on Jan. 30 but the city held off, Wright said, in the hope that some way of saving the structures could be found.

"But we are at risk if we refuse the permits any longer and, in fact, our solicitor (city solicitor Jakob de Villiers) tells us they could go to court and get the permits immediately."

Wright said that the situation on Belleville is an immediate crisis, but that in the long run the city's entire heritage program may be destroyed by Bawlf's badly worded legislation.

"It puts our whole heritage program in jeopardy — it puts the whole city in jeopardy financially," said Wright.

"We've petitioned the minister for changes but we've go no indiciation he will."

Wright said that the main problem lies in the area of compensation.

"The act tries to compensate the owner for any possible economic loss — but if the owner feels the compensation is not fair he can take us to court and claim the difference. That's a blank cheque."

Wright said that in the Belleville Street case, where a multi-million dollar hotel project may be affected by the city's actions, Victoria could be hit with a claim for $2 million or more.

In addition, he said, there are the 32 commercial downtown buildings that are awaiting official designation as heritage structures.

"If we designate them now, any time up to a year from now the owners can take the city to court," Wright said.

He said that the Belleville Street matter will be dealt with in a planning committee meeting Tuesday and indicated it's unlikely the city will try to hold up the demolition permits any longer.

"We're not prepared to make a decision where the taxpayers could be faced with having to pay for our boo-boo," said Wright.

RECREATIONAL LABEL SOUGHT

The Central Saanich Ratepayers Association has asked Premier Bill Bennett to designate Saanich inlet as a recreational area.

The move, an attempt to ensure that the inlet is not polluted, follows rumors that Victoria's oil tank farm may be shifted to the Bamberton cement factory site on the west side of the inlet.

The inlet was designated by the federal government in the 1930's as a sport fishing reserve but the province has so far taken no steps to protect it from pollution, a danger which has been increasing over the years.

Jim Gilbert, biologist and fishing guide, said Saanich inlet is more vulnerable to pollution than most inlets in the province.

"The inlet doesn't flush itself out as others do," he said.

He said the the change of water is slow in the inlet due to weak currents.

Gilbert said the inlet is no place for industrial or housing developments.

Housing developments without adequate sewage disposal systems could also cause a serious pollution problem, he said.

The government is reported to be in favor of removing the oil tanks farm from the harbor to a site which has not yet been disclosed.

Some Notes on a Working Partnership

AMONG THE GAMES the well-married play is one which you may recognize as 'What-If.'

Win and I drifted into it the other evening. We'd settled in comfortably to watch TV, with rain and a lonely wind outside our snug house, when my wife asked a 'What-If' question.

"I was just wondering," she said. "Suppose I'd decided not to go downtown that day. Or got the next streetcar, or something."

In those now-distant years, we had drifted out of each other's ken. But that fortuitous meeting in a streetcar banging along Hastings Street in Vancouver brought us together again, and in this happy state we have remained for better or worse.

"Well," I said, slipping into the game, "maybe we'd have run into each other somewhere else."

"And maybe not," Win said. She considered a moment, while the last of our winter alder purred with a little ripple of flame in our fireplace. "We might never have met again. I wonder what would have happened?"

We weighed the bleak prospect. No good years together. No Ron. No Susan. No anything.

Then, having enjoyed the luxury of scaring ourselves with what might have happened but didn't, we returned to the very satisfactory present which finds us getting on with the adventure that started when we were young.

In this we are by no means unique. The squeaky wheel gets the grease: attention centres on men and women who don't get along — who, in fact, are caught up in an adversary situation. You know couples of that sort. They are so hostile toward each other, so jealously aggressive where the maintaining of individual rights is concerned, that it's hard to believe they wouldn't be better apart.

But, even though divorce and separation figures have climbed sky-high, there remains a comfortable majority of couples who go their unpublicized way in amity. They want to be together — they enjoy each other's company — and they have obviously discovered the secret of getting along.

I'm sure that couples of this order were living amiably under the wind in the years when woman was no better than a chattel without property rights or equality in law.

And I'm equally sure that when woman wins her ultimate emancipation, those couples who have arrived at a working partnership will be no less easy to find.

It takes more than romantic love to make a good marriage. More than anything else, it calls for a deeply-felt sense of equality: a sense of personal worth, and a respect for the worth and values of your partner.

More times than I can recall, a party to such a marriage has told me casually and without embarrassment, "My wife's a lot better at handling the money than I am. She looks after our business."

Or, "I'm all right when short-term decisions need making. But Jim's the one who does our long-term planning."

This casual appreciation of another's superiority in certain departments of the complex state of marriage tells volumes about the speaker. Trust . . . pride in a partner's ability . . . and enough personal maturity to admit a weakness . . . all are reflected in it.

Usually in a failed marriage, the villian of the piece is a stubborn and lingering juvenility on the part of one or both contributors. If you must always be right, if getting your own way matters more to you than the good of the team, stay single.

But, Lord help us, there's a great deal of luck in marriage. Luck in the choice of a mate, a matter most of us approach quite unguided by such considerations as commonsense and shrewd observation.

RUSSIANS REPLACE CZECHS AS CHAMPS

Maxwell Saved It For Team Canada

PRAGUE (CP) — Pat Hickey's winning goal notwithstanding, it may be that defenceman Brad Maxwell should be awarded the hero's role in Canada's 3-2 win over Sweden at the world hockey championship Sunday.

With the score tied 2-2 in the third period and the Canadians needing at least a draw to win the bronze medal, Swedish centre Rolf Edberg appeared to have a clear path to goalkeeper Denis Herron.

Maxwell, the 20-year-old Minnesota North Stars rookie who makes his off-season home in Victoria, was sprawled on the ice but made a desperate swipe with his stick and managed to knock the puck off Edberg's stick.

"I thought that was the biggest play of the game," said Marcel Dionne, the Canadian captain, who scored one goal and set up the winner although he was not credited with an assist.

"If they had scored it would have been a lot toughter for us to come back and tie them. But I think we deserved to win and there's nothing to be ashamed of in finishing behind the Russians and Czechs because they're good hockey teams.

In the game for the gold medal, the Soviet Union needed to win by a two-goal margin to gain its first world championship in three years. It pulled it off, taking a 3-0 lead before defending Czechoslovakia scored, then holding off a desperate Czech surge to win 3-1.

Head coach Harry Howell said the Canadians got off to a poor start. "We weren't skating too well and I think it's the first time we've seen nervousness among the players. But that was understandable. It was a pressure-packed game and the Swedes played very strongly. But our players just kept plugging along. We stuck to our system and it paid off."

Canada struck first when Dionne scored at 1:39 of the first period with Jean Pronovost assisting. But just two minutes later, with Garry Unger serving a high-checking penalty, Sweden tied it up.

A shot by Stig Ostling from the right point first hit Guy Charron's stick and was then deflected past goakeeper Dan Bouchard by Lennart Noberg.

Kent Erik Andersson broke between defencemen Bob Picard and Rick Hampton to make it 2-1 at 2:19 of the second period but Dennis Maruk set up Glen Sharpley for the tying goal at 14:04.

"We stayed with the same hockey we had played all the way through." Said Howell when asked whether the Canadians then tried to play for a tie. "That is having two men in trying to disrupt them coming out because they skate out of their own end very well.

"But we were doubly sure the third man was back to help the defence all the time and they stuck with that in the third period with good results."

In the final minute, Dionne got the puck on a three-on-two break and saw Hickey heading for the Swedish blue line.

"He knew I was going in and he just shot it." said Hickey. "It went off a defenceman, bounced in the air and then the last dfenceman (Lars Lindgren) missed it.

"I was going 100 miles an hour and I knew I was home free from the blue line in. I took a look at the goalie (Goran Ho Go Sta) and gave him one fake and shot the other way."

The time was 19:03 and it was all over.

Canada won its bronze medal with only 10 points, three fewer than last years team which finished fourth.

The medal was the first for a Canadian team in international hockey since Canada won a bronze in the 1968 Olympics.

Newport Came Prepared To Avenge Cardiff Defeat

By BILL WALKER
Times Staff

Victoria's Crimson Tide may have made a mistake last year in handing Cardiff of the Welsh Rugby Union a surprise 29-17 defeat. Because that probably explains as well as anything why there was no surprise for the Tide this year against Newport of Wales.

The Welshmen had heard of last year's stunner and weren't about to take anything for granted, even if it was only an exhibition match at the "new" Centennial Stadium. The national pride was at stake, as the Tide was quick to find out.

Newport, the 1977 Welsh club champion, simply had too much power and finesse for the Tide in scoring a 24-10 victory on the now-widened (75-yard) turf.

Granted, the Tide was minus a few of its regulars — Jim Wenman, Pat Trelawney, K.C. Walt and Garry Grant — but that wasn't the reason. The replacements played well enough. It was the superior skill of the Welsh backs plus an old-fashioned, steam-roller scrum that set the pattern.

Outweighing the Tide forwards by a good margin, the Newport forwards averaged about 230 pounds per man and dominated the set scrums while the backs, led by scrum-half Allan Evans, fly-half David Rodgers and centre David Burcher, created several fine openings. This caused the Tide to be on the defensive most of the afternoon.

And it was also a big break for the visitors in winning the toss. Newport got the wind at its back, a 10-3 first-half lead and was unlucky not to have added to that margin.

Fullback Leighton Davies kicked two penalty goals, one from about 42 yards, while missing two other attempts. Steve Willis scored one try near the flag after a smart, three-quarter movement while Newport lost another try when Willis hit the corner flag as he went over the line.

In the second half, it was still Newport in command.

After several threatening moves, flanker Bryan Lease scored a try, which went unconverted from a bad angle, to give the visitors a 14-3 lead.

Then came the Tide's best move. Pat Simmonds of Cowichan, who handled the kicking chores and otherwise also had a creditable game, kicked a penalty goal from 30 yards near the 21-minute mark and then had another opportunity lost minutes later.

That was the signal for Newport to come on again. After flanker Richard Barrell was held up over the line, Newport quickly struck again on a play from midfield from Evans to Burcher to Davies to centre Neil Brown who scored between the posts. Davies converted.

Then, to put a lock on the exhibition, and to show the Vancouver Island Rugby Union's President's XV what to expect in the next match, Newport struck again with Davies, Burcher and Willis providing the action, and again, from almost midfield. It was Willis' second try. The coversion attempt was wide.

Ray Rogers scored the Tide's only try, taking a hand-off pass from Darrell Noullette as the scrum-half was being forced into touch near the flag. Rogers spun out of a tackler's hands to touch the ball down over the line. Simmonds was wide on the conversion attempt and the match was over.

It was Newport's second win, after defeating Fraser Valley Reps 26-9 Thursday.

Newport is expected to show as many, if not more, of its consummate skills against the President's XV at Centennial Stadium, Wednesday at 7 p.m.

Bruins Checked Into Submission

MONTREAL (CP) — It was fairly quiet around the Forum on Sunday.

Coach Scotty Bowman sent his Montreal Canadiens through a light workout and Boston Bruins had high-tailed back to Massachusettes to reflect on a 4-1 loss to the Canadiens in the opening game of the National Hockey League's Stanley Cup final series Saturday night.

The Canadiens fell behind with 2½ minutes gone as Brad Park scored on a power play, but Montreal came back with two power-play goals of their own by Guy Lafleur and Yvon Lambert before the period ended.

Steve Shutt scored for the Canadiens in the second period and team captain Yvan Cournoyer wrapped things up in the final 20 minutes.

There were some impressive aspects to the Montreal triumph, including the fact they limited the Bruins to 16 shots, including just two in the second period.

"When we scored our fourth goal, that was the turning point," said Bowman. "We played much more confidentally after the fourth goal.

"If you have a lead and you have good defensive players that are executing right, it's going to make it tough on the other team."

Boston ran into some early penalty troubles as referee Bob Myers indicated at the outset that he was not going to tolerate any nonsense from either club.

Bruins' coach Don Cherry was not pleased with the official and managed to get a bench minor assessed against him after Lambert shot Montreal into a 2-1 lead at 9:53 of the opening period while Gary Doak was off serving a slashing penalty.

"But we didn't play well enough to win anyway," said Cherry.

Delesalle Brilliant

EDMONTON (CP) — Philip Delesalle of Victoria was brilliant on the pommel horse Sunday en route to the men's over-all title in the Pacific Rim gymnastics competition that featured athletes from four nations.

Delesalle, rated eighth in the world in pommel, led Canada to an impressive second-place finish behind the Republic of China in team standings before a disappointing crowd of about 3,000 in Edmonton's 15,300-seat Coliseum.

He recorded the highest mark of the day, 9.80, in his specialty, and had a solid 9.50 in rings for his lowest mark. He edged China's outstanding Huang Yu-ping by .05 for the over-all championship.

Hsiung Sung-liang and Peng Ya-Ping of China finished third and fourth in the men's event, followed by Lindsay Nylund of Australia and Owen Walstrom of Victoria.

Ma Wen-Chu of China finished first in the women's class, with Christa Canary of the United States in second place. Top Canadian was Karen Kelsall of Surrey, who finished seventh.

Chen Yung-hsien of the touring Chinese team, preparing for the 1980 Olympics and its return to world international sports, was third over-all, while Tang Hsiao-li was fifth. Rhonda Schwandt of the United States was fourth and team-mate Donna Turnbow sixth.

The Chinese won the women's team title easily, with the United States second and Canada third.

The second phase of the four-country competition, being held this year for the first time, will be staged Wednesday in Vancouver.

Nuggets Turn Back Late Sonic Charge

DENVER (AP) — A switch in defensive assignments and an effort to set picks for superstar David Thompson, helped extend Denver Nuggets' season at least another game.

With Thompson regaining his shooting touch and his confidence to score 35 points, the Nuggets held off a second-half Seattle comeback and beat the SuperSonics 123-114 Sunday in their National Basketball Association semifinal playoff series.

The triumph reduced the Sonics' lead to 3-2 in the best-of-seven series. Game six will be played Wednesday in Seattle. Game seven, if necessary, will be played Friday in Denver.

The winner of the series meets Washington Bullets in the championship round, which begins Sunday at the home of the Western champion.

Denver hit the boards with authority and got its fast break working in the early stages, opening up a 29-18 lead late in the first quarter and 61-44 at intermission.

Only the long-range shooting of Williams, who finished with 31 points, kept the Sonics in the game in the half.

"Now the monkey's on their back," Thompson said after the Nuggets bounced back from three successive defeats to stay alive. "Seattle has to win up there. I'm sure they don't want to come back here for the seventh game."

Denver's task is not that simple. Only two teams in NBA playoff history have rallied from 3-1 deficits to win a series. The Sonics also have won 19 consecutive games at the Coliseum.

"They're still in the driver's seat," admitted Denver centre Dan Issel, who scored 27 points and pulled down 10 rebounds as the Nuggets held a 55-40 rebounding edge over the taller Sonics. Issel said winning the sixth game "is a pretty good size hill to climb, but stranger things have happened."

Denver coach Larry Brown said Thompson, who had kept busy guarding Seattle guard Dennis Johnson in previous games, switched to the less-active Gus Williams because "we didn't want David working so hard at both ends of the floor."

Offensively, Thompson said he benefitted from "a change we made to set more picks so I could get free for my jumpers."

Karen: Is There Time To Be a Kid?

Jim TAYLOR

In a way it's scary: Karen Kelsall is 15 years old and already someone has written her life story.

How can a 15-year-old girl have a life story? At 15, a girl's greatest worry should be acne. Her biggest goal in life is to attract the attention of the boy two lockers down.

Fifteen-year-olds giggle and stammer and blush a lot. Their idea of heavy reading is magazines with stories like False Teeth: the Secret Heartbreak of Donnie and Marie.

Bobby Orr was 19 before they wrote his life story. Steve Cauthen was 17. David was at least 16 when he went one fall with Goliath, and at that his life was only part of a big best-seller.

Life story? You could write the life story of the average 15-year-old on a matchbook cover and still leave room for Close Cover Before Striking. Only you wouldn't do both, because it wouldn't sell.

But Karen Kelsall isn't average. At 15 she is one of the athletically chosen few—the gifted ones capable of challenging the world while her contemporaries challenge the complexities of the newest dance craze.

She is special, a gymnast with her eyes firmly fixed on Moscow and the 1980 Olympics, when she'll go after a gold medal at a doddering 17.

There are those who will say that the price has been terribly high.

Karen Kelsall doesn't live at home any more. It is her choice, and her parents'. She lives in Eugene, Ore., at the National Academy of Artistic Gymnastics. She's been spending most of her time there since she was 12, because the opportunities for training are superior to what she can get here.

★ ★ ★

In The making of a Gymnast, The Karen Kelsall Story, author Jean Boulogne outlines a typical week:

She attends high school from 8 a.m. to noon—through special arrangement with the school—and maintains an A average in mathematics, social studies, science and language arts. There is an hour's break for lunch. Then she goes to the gym and trains from 1 p.m. to 7.

At 7 they are driven back to the dormitory for dinner followed by homework or television or socializing until 10, which is bedtime.

That's the weekday routine—not counting the ballet and dance lessons squeezed in to improve her balance and expression. Saturday is free—after a four-hour workout. Sunday is clear for visiting.

In the summer months, Boulogne writes, "although Karen and the others train more hours than during the winter, they have two afternoons off. Then they go to a privately-owned health spa where they soak in the whirlpool or enjoy the deep heat of the sauna or steam room."

That, in essence, is Karen Kelsall's week.

"After a while," she says, "it just comes naturally to practice that much. Say you're on your last five routines. You're not thinking of it so much, you just do it and when you're finished you can't believe it is over.

"But I want people to understand that I enjoy what I'm doing. I love the feeling of doing something right and hitting a trick. I like challenging myself."

There is no shortage of challenges, even in the gym.

"Gymnasts always have callouses on their hands from exercising on the bars," Boulogne writes, "and it is shocking to meet someone who looks so delicate but has hands as roughened as a lumberjack's. To understand some of the dedication of a gymnast, you have only to watch them 'shave' their callouses with a razor blade. Later, as you watch them work out for an hour on the bars you know that they are experiencing pain every time they twist around, in spite of the handgrips they sometimes choose to wear."

★ ★ ★

Karen Kelsall is 15, but she's been practising for a long time. At 8 she was taking ballet and gymnastics, and learning even then about the discipline on the road to the top.

Frustrated by her inability on the balance beam, she began to cry. Her father came down to the floor, took her hand and announced "I'm sorry, but Karen isn't going to be doing gymnastics anymore."

"Your not taking her anywhere!" her coach yelled. "I'm not through with her yet. When she's finished practising, I'll send her home."

Boulogne's interpretation of the incident is interesting:

"Bobby Tudsbury, that confident young woman who believed in a firm approach, had taught the Kelsalls an important lesson: you must trust your coach!"

Personally, I'd have reminded Bobby Tudsbury that this was my child not hers, and told her to keep her big nose out of it. But theirs is a different world.

You can see the results first-hand Wednesday at Pacific Coliseum, when Karen and her contemporaries from the United States, Australia and the People's Republic of China perform in the Pacific Rim international competition.

Already they are superb athletes, wrapped up in a world they obviously enjoy.

Dick Mulvihill, master coach at the Academy, is quoted as believing that "the fascinating thing about coaching pre-adolescents is that all the determination we normally expect in an adult can be embodied in a child. He feels we don't allow enough of our children to show us how strong and talented they really can be."

Maybe. But 15 is 15, and you're only there once. There's lots of time for the Karen Kelsalls to be adults. I hope they get time to be kids.

AL SENIOR RETAINS HANDICAP CROWN

Mick Grabs First Island Title

By ERNIE FEDORUK
Times Staff

Now that he's established his dentistry practice, Dr. Dave Mick is back in business as a competitive golfer.

"It's starting to come," he said of his game Sunday moments after he picked off the Vancouver Island Open championship for the first time.

Mick held off a late rally by his opponent to defeat 1976 titlist Grant Milliken of Gorge Vale one up in the 36-hole playoff at Uplands.

At the same time, 52-year-old Al Senior successfully defended the handicap championship in the match-play tournament by defeating 16-year-old Glen Barlow of Colwood.

Although he has been considered one of the Island's premier amateurs, Mick, 27, had never won the Island Open and CFAX Trophy. He remedied that Sunday and it may be a sign of things to come.

A three-time member of British Columbia Willingdon Cup teams, Mick was forced to neglect his golf game for the past three years while wrapped up the final phases of his dentistry course and then established a practice.

"I'm playing the best I have in three years," he said. "I still can't bump-and-grind (practice) for hours, but I'm still able to get out in the evenings for a couple of holes or some practice. It's coming."

Now playing out of Colwood, Mick says he is looking forward to the summer campaign and will play in the City Amateur, the B.C. Amateur and the Canadian Amateur. . ."even if I don't make the (Willingdon Cup) team."

Sunday's all-amateur showdown for the CFAX Trophy went down to the wire but both Mick and Milliken, a Gorge Vale member, felt they "could have played better."

Mick played par (70) golf in the morning to take a three-up lead after 18. He was still three up after 27 but then Milliken made his late charge to carry the match to the final hole.

Mick actually was four up after 26 but lost the par-three 27th (ninth). Milliken then got back to one by winning the 30th and 31st holes and they halved the remaining five holes.

Milliken, 24, bore up well under pressure to carry it to the wire. Facing elimination on the 35th, he sank a very tricky seven-foot putt for a half.

On the final hole, Milliken hooked his drive into a practice area to the left of the fairway. A row of trees blocked his line to the green. Mick, in the meantime, had banged off a great drive to the centre of the fairway and it appeared that the lights had gone out on Milliken's hopes.

Milliken, however, came through with a spectacular recovery. He found a small opening through the trees. It was an almost-impossible situation. Using a three-iron, he had play the ball low to get the remaining 190 yards to the green.

Somehow, Milliken pulled it off, winding up pin-high but about two feet off the green.

"I had to gamble," said Milliken. "From where Dave was sitting, I knew he was going to have no trouble getting his par. I had to look for a birdie."

Mick didn't have trouble getting his par but Milliken couldn't get the birdie three that would have forced extra holes. Putting off the fringe, he knew it as soon as he stroked the ball that he didn't hit it hard enough.

Senior, admitting that he had "a bit of an edge" on Barlow by playing on his home Uplands course, became the first golfer in the 28-year history of the tournament to win the handicap championship on successive years.

Senior had a par-matching 70 in the morning round to go two up but his lanky blond rival bounced back to square the match after only four holes in the afternoon. They were all square after 27 but Senior won four of the next six holes to close it out.

Homer by Goudie Topples Seaboard

Norm Goudie made his last turn at bat count for everything Sunday while leading Sooke Merchants to a 3-0 decision over Seaboard Construction in a Stuffy McGinnis Men's Softball League game at Central Park.

In other games, Port Angeles Telecable split a doubleheader against Elks, winning 10-4 and losing 9-2, while Victoria Athletics dropped Ingraham Hotel, 4-2.

Goudie hit a two-out, three-run home run in the fifth inning to provide all the Sooke runs.

Ron Fedosenko picked up the pitching victory for Sooke by striking out five batters while allowing only two bases on balls and four hits.

Jim Anderson hit a home run in each game for Telecable. In the 10-4 victory, Anderson hit a single and a homer to score once and drive in four runs. But in the loss, he scored once and drove in one run with a single and a homer.

Bob Wheeler was the big gun for Elks during their win, bashing out three singles and a homer in four trips to the plate to score three times and drive in four runs.

Bob Bugslag was three-for-three, all singles, to drive in one run for Athletics while John Hughes drove in two runs with a timely single in the fifth inning.

In Heywood Men's League play, Taylor House Movers won both ends of a doubleheader against Webb and Trace, 4-2 and 3-0, while Hygrade Radio downed Remco Office Systems 7-3 at Heywood Avenue Park.

At Hyacinth Park, Victoria Skylarks topped Hygrade Radio 10-1, MacDonald's Furniture dropped Hygrade Radio 4-0 and CJVI Vicettes won twice, blanking Victoria Athletics 6-0 and defeating Butler Brothers 6-1 in Victoria Senior Women's League action.

In an exhibition game Saturday at the same site, Vicettes blanked MacDonald's, 6-0. The game is scheduled to be telecast on Cable 10 at 9 tonight.

Three Straight For Esquimalt

Esquimalt Universal Sheet Metal boosted its record to 3-0 by tripping Victoria Athletics 17-11 Sunday in a South Island Senior "B" Lacrosse League game at Pearkes Arena.

In another game, Hampton Park Hustlers edged Saanich, 12-11.

John Entzminger led Esquimalt with five goals and two assists, Brian Spaven added three goals and six assists, Kim Browning has two and five and Cleve Dheensaw was one and four. Jamie Robertson scored four goals to set the pace for Athletics, who are now 0-3.

Brett Savory, a junior "B" pickup, gave a solid performance in the Victoria net, blocking 45 shots. Al Radley and Jim Fisher had a relatively-easy time for Esquimalt, combining for 34 saves.

Tom Somner sparked the Hampton attack with three goals and three assists while Rob Clifford scored three goals and George Row added two. Jim McCreesh scored four and three for Saanich and Owen Richman added two goals. Doug Thompson blocked 41 shots on the Saanich goal and Gagg Dalj made 33 stops for Hustlers.

Break for A.J. No Help to Mario

INDIANAPOLIS (AP) — A cold, bitter drizzle washed out Sunday's qualifications for the Indianapolis 500—a lucky break for defending champion A. J. Foyt, but an apparent death blow for Mario Andretti's hopes of winning the pole position for the May 28 race.

Rain also wiped out the first day of time trials on Saturday, leaving next Saturday and Sunday as the only days remaining for qualifications.

That's just fine with Foyt, who gambled the weather would not improve sufficiently Sunday to qualify and headed south for the Talladega 500-mile stock car race.

But Andretti, who recorded the fastest speed in the history of the Indianapolis Motor Speedway, 203.482 miles per hour during practice on Friday, is committed to driving in the Belgian Grand Prix next weekend and probably will have to let another driver qualify his car here. That would mean Andretti would have to start the race at the back of the 33-car field.

Andretti's team owner, Roger Penske, said he asked stock car driver Bobby Allison, who has driven in two Indy races, to attempt to qualify Andretti's car next week.

"He did say he would be interested," Penske said, adding it probably will be sometime today before details can be worked out.

He said another possibility was having Andretti qualify in Belgium next Friday or Saturday, fly back to qualify here late Saturday afternoon and return to Belgium for Sunday's Grand Prix.

"We want Mario to fulfill his Formula 1 obligations," Penske said. "I think we can get the car in the race, but basically it would be unfair to ask him to come back on Friday."

A similar situation occurred in 1976 when Andretti had to qualify here on the second weekend because of the Grand Prix race at Monte Carlo. He was the fastest qualifier that year but had to start from the 19th position.

This time, if Allison or any other driver qualifies for him, Andretti would have to start at the back of the 33-car field.

"It's better than not starting the race at all," Andretti said.

Shamrocks Served Well By Faceoff Controllers

Charn Dhillon and Norm Baker have been providing Victoria Shamrocks with excellent faceoff control in the early stages of this Western Lacrosse Association campaign, but they haven't been neglecting scoring duties.

Again controlling the faceoffs, the Victoria holdovers also added to their early-season scoring contributions by accounting for seven goals as the Shamrocks put their offense into high great at Coquitlam on Saturday night to bury the Adanacs 22-10.

Dhillon scored four goals and Baker added three as the Irish racked up their second victory in three starts.

Victory kept the Shamrocks two points behind Vancouver Burrards. The Burrards, who have played one more game, got three-goal performances from Pat Differ and Ron Pinder to trip the Timbermen 16-11.

Goaltender Larry Smeltzer, Dan Green and Ron MacNeil also played prominent roles in the Shamrock victory at Coquitlam.

Despite the one-sided score, Smeltzer faced 54 shots and had to come up with a strong performance to hold Coquitlam to the 10 goals. He stopped Moe Jodoin on a rare penalty-shot play and also held his ground in a spirited scrap with Adanacs' Mike Mitzel.

Green and MacNeil joined Baker and Dhillon in greasing Victoria's attack. Both scored twice and also tacked on seven assists each.

Newcomer Art Webster also had a three-goal night while Chris Hall added two and singles were provided by Larry Bell, Jerry McKenna, Gord Lyons, Dave Thomson, Jeevan Dillon and Jim Gow.

Randy Bryan topped the winless Adanacs with four goals and three assists while Jim Aitchison fired three goals. Jodoin, Gilles Bezeau and Frank Neilson added singles.

At Nanaimo, Kevin Alexander boosted his league-leading goals total to 17 with five, but it wasn't enough to prevent the Timbermen from falling to their first defeat.

Dave Tasker, John Krgovich and Doug Hayes each scored twice for Vancouver while Brian Evans (2), Rick Sage, Jim Lynch, Ken King and Bob Cool were the other marksmen for the T-Men, who wound up with a 53-50 edge in shots.

Winnipeg Two Up In Series

SPRINGFIELD, Mass. (CP) — For the second straight game, Winnipeg Jets established control early and went on to a convincing win over New England Whalers in the World Hockey Association final Sunday night.

Winnipeg won 5-2 to take a 2-0 lead in the best-of-seven series with the next three games scheduled for Winnipeg beginning Friday.

Winnipeg killed off a double minor penalty in the first five minutes, allowing New England just one shot on goal while testing Whalers' goalie Louis Levasseur with three excellent shots. New England had only one more shot in the period while the Jets scored twice.

Dan Labraaten on a breakaway, Bobby Guindon, Lyle Moffat, Anders Hedberg and Ulf Nilsson scored for Winnipeg. Gordie and Mark Howe scored for the Whalers in the third period.

Patriots, Hornets Bantam Winners

Cowichan Patriots bounced Saanich Vampires 41-8 and Saanich Hornets bounced back to nudge Oak Bay 26-21 in Vancouver Island Junior Bantam Football League games Sunday at Cedar Hill Park.

In another game, Nanaimo blanked visiting Juan de Fuca Tigers, 34-0.

Eric Sandiland set the pace for Cowichan with three touchdowns, Mark Dowell added two touchdowns, Marvin Antonvik contributed the other six-pointer and Falko Heuser kicked three converts. Steve Crooker scored the lone TD for Vampires and Paul Cumberland booted the convert.

Gary Layton led Hornets, who trailed 12-6 at half time, with three TDs, Doug Waldie scored the other major and Pete Wyman added a two-point convert.

Clay Kirby supplied most of the Oak Bay points with a touchdown, two two-point converts, a field goal and two rouges. Mike Hutton also scored a TD for Oak Bay.

RACING PROGRAM BOWS TO WEATHER

Weather conditions applied the brakes to Western Speedway's scheduled racing program at the weekend.

Rain forced cancellation of Saturday's combined stock-superstock meet and attempts to stage the program on Sunday were abandoned because of wet conditions on the Langford oval.

The program has been rescheduled to Wednesday evening, with time trials starting at 6:45 p.m.

Lancers Lose A Front Office

ROCHESTER, N.Y. (AP) — Vancouver's John Craven headed in two goals Sunday and the Whitecaps beat Rochester Lancers 2-1 in North American Soccer League action.

Francisco Bolota scored the lone goal for Rochester, a club playing virtually without a front office after eight of nine administrative officials quit during the weekend.

Both of the Vancouver goals came off corner kicks taken by assistant coach Alan Hinton.

The Lancers outshot Vancouver 19-8 in the contest.

Rochester's executive head-rolling began Friday when board chairman Charlie Schiano fired Jerry Epstein, the club's publicity director. General manager Richard Kraft and others quit Saturday, leaving the club with only one administrative assistant in the office.

Second Straight for 'Rebuilders'

SUDBURY, Ont. (CP) — The New Westminster Bruins' media guide notes that the 1977-78 season was expected to be a rebuilding year for the Western Canada Hockey League club.

The Bruins won the Memorial Cup, emblematic of the Canadian major junior hockey championship, last year in Vancouver and promptly lost several stars, including defencemen Barry Beck, Miles Zaharko and Brad Maxwell.

But the Bruins fooled those who thought they were losing too much talent and capped their 1977-78 season Saturday with a 7-4 victory over Peterborough Petes that brought them a second consecutive national title.

"A lot of the guys were nervous coming into this game," said Scott MacLeod, who scored three goals and assisted on another. "There are a lot of 18- and 17-year-olds on this club, and all the guys were saying they couldn't get to sleep for an hour last night and then were dreaming about winning."

Once the puck was dropped by referee Tom Brown, however, the burly Bruins began battering the Petes of the Ontario Major Junior League and never trailed in the game.

Stan (Steamer) Smyl, a 5-foot-9, chunky worker who played on a line with MacLeod and Ken Berry, scored one goal and set up four, while John Ogrodnick had two goals and defenceman Boris Fistric contributed one.

"We're going to have a great team next year, and if things go right we could make it three in a row," said MacLeod.

Whether coach Ernie (Punch) McLean will be back behind the Bruins bench remains to be seen. McLean will discuss the Vancouver Canucks coaching job with Jake Milford, general manager of the National Hockey League club, this week.

"It was an aggressive hockey game," said McLean, a former bus driver and team trainer who now is the majority owner of the club. "I'd hate to be in a seven-game series. We wouldn't have too many players left, either side."

Defenceman Greg Theberge scored two goals for the Petes and Mark Kirton and Bill Gardner had one each.

The Petes fired 39 shots at New Westminster goaltender Richard Martens, while the Bruins had 28 shots at Peterborough netminder Ken Ellacott, selected as the week-long tournament's outstanding goaltender.

Ellacott was named the all-star goalie, with Brian Young of the Bruins and MacKinnon on defence. The all-star forwards were Kirton, Normand Lefebvre of Trois-Rivieres Draveurs of the Quebec League and Smyl.

Smyl was named the tournament's most valuable player and Kirton was selected as the player showing the best sportsmanship.

NEW ESSO EXTRA PREMIUM UNLEADED

High-octane performance that could help solve 3 problems!

This is remarkable gasoline.

Esso Research designed it to solve three kinds of driving problems for users of unleaded fuel.

- Knocking and pinging.
- Engine run-on.
- Poor mileage.

Read about them.

If your car has any one of them, the solution may be in your first full tank of new Esso Extra Unleaded.

1. Your car knocks or pings when you accelerate.

You can hear it. And it worries you.

It's that pinging sound from the engine when you step on the gas. It can also spell damage.

One of the easiest ways to handle it is to move up to premium gasoline.

Because premium gasoline has more knock-resisting hydrocarbons than regular gas.

Now, with Esso Extra Unleaded, you can put premium gasoline in a car designed for unleaded fuel.

So you can reduce—or possibly eliminate—knock.

And enjoy all the benefits of high-octane performance.

2. Your engine runs on after you turn it off.

Is there anything more frustrating than an engine that runs on and on and on after you've turned the key off?

Shaking, sputtering and back-firing as you walk away from the car.

Esso Extra Unleaded can help you reduce—or possibly eliminate—run-on. With its highly refined blend of octane-rich gasoline stocks.

If run-on with regular unleaded is your problem, move up to high-octane performance.

3. Your engine's timing could be cheating you of mileage.

You retard the engine's timing to get rid of knock.

Unfortunately, it also cuts down on fuel economy.

When we surveyed 1000 cars that need unleaded gas, we found that 1 in 7 were running with the timing retarded.

An average of 4.6 degrees.

And some of the owners didn't even know it!

If they use Esso Extra Unleaded and reset their engine timing to manufacturer's specifications they could expect up to 5% better mileage. That could be worth up to 4 or 5¢ per gallon.

With knock or run-on reduced or possibly eliminated.

MILEAGE OFFER: timing check & reset $5.95 or less.

In about 20 minutes, a participating Esso dealer will check your engine's timing.

And reset it to manufacturer's specifications if necessary.

Your car could give you up to 5% better mileage with specified timing and Esso Extra Unleaded.

Offer valid for most cars, till May 31, 1978.

High-octane performance for older cars too.

Drivers of most cars that now use premium gasoline: Esso Extra Unleaded delivers the high-octane performance you expect.

And there's no lead to deposit anywhere. So spark plugs, mufflers and tail pipes will last longer.

How much longer depends on where and how you drive. But last longer they will. That's real money to be saved.

A real reason to switch from any other premium gas you may be using now.

Now-2 grades of Unleaded

Esso Research brings you two high-quality unleaded fuels: Esso 2000 and premium Esso Extra Unleaded.

If your car runs right on regular unleaded, stay with Esso 2000.

But if it knocks or runs on with regular unleaded, switch to new high-octane Esso Extra Unleaded.

If your car needs unleaded and retarded timing's been robbing you of mileage, a reset and Esso Extra Unleaded can improve fuel economy up to 5%.

And if you now use Esso Extra, just keep coming in. Esso Extra is still high-performance gasoline. Only it's unleaded now.

New Mr. Trevino A Conservative

FORT WORTH, Texas (AP) — "Golf is a crazy game," says Jerry Pate, and along comes Lee Trevino to prove it.

With his lead in jeopardy, Trevino chipped in from off the green for a birdie, swept in with a sparkling 66 and won the $200,000 Colonial National Invitation tournament Sunday with a record 268.

"A fantastic week," said Trevino of his 12-under-par performance and its $40,000 reward. "I love it."

Trevino said he abandoned his swashbuckling, go-for-broke style for conservatism and it paid off as he fired rounds of 66, 68, 68, 66 and captured his second Colonial crown by a comfortable four shots.

"I just kept jabbing away," he said. "I think I played it very smart."

Pate knifed through the pack with a closing five-under-par 65 to tie Jerry Heard at 272 for second place. The consolation prize was $18,000 for each.

Heard, the only serious challenger in the stretch run, slipped in with a 68 after a bizarre turn of events at the 14th and 15th holes.

"The turning point was the 14th," said Trevino, who was nursing a two-shot lead, flirting with a bogey five and looking at Heard's second shot resting 10 feet from the cup.

"Everything was up for grabs," he said. "It looked like Heard was going to get even and instead he went three down."

Trevino holed out from 30 feet and Heard, the 1972 Colonial champion, missed his 10-footer.

A double bogey at the par-four 15th ended the Heard threat.

"I looked at the board when I stepped on the 16th tee and I had a six-shot lead," Trevino said. "That was it. I put my marbles away . . . I bogeyed the 17th but by then it was all over."

Tom Watson, who started the last 18 three back of Trevino, two behind Steve Melnyk and one behind Heard, took a triple bogey seven at No. 5, the most treacherous of the Trinity River spread. But he salvaged a 68 and a tie for fourth with Melnyk, who shot a 70.

Erratic Nancy Gets Third Win

LUTHERVILLE, Md. (AP) — Rookie Nancy Lopez held off a mild bid by veteran Donna Caponi Young and won the weather-plagued $65,000 Greater Baltimore women's golf tournament by three strokes Sunday.

The 21-year-old winner, from Roswell, N.M., playing her second consecutive erratic round, had two bogeys and three birdies while shooting a one-under-par 72 on the final round and finished with a 54-hole total of 212, four under par.

Young, who started the final round four strokes off the pace, twice closed to within two of the leader. She finished the round with a 71.

It was the third victory of the year for Lopez, the only multiple winner on the Ladies Professional Golf Association tour.

Defending champion Jane Blalock shot a one-under-par 72 on the final round and finished third with a 218 total.

Dale Shaw of Victoria finished with a score of 75-80-82—237.

Kingman at Home In Dodger Stadium

By The Associated Press

Dave Kingman likes to visit Dodger Stadium in Los Angeles—it's his favorite place, in fact.

As a member of the visiting New York Mets two years ago, the hard-hitting outfielder smashed three home runs and drove in eight runs.

As a member of Chicago Cubs on Sunday, he did the same thing.

"I consider this my home," said Kingman after leading the Cubs to a 10-7, 15-inning victory. "I can recall a lot of times coming here to end a long drought."

Kingman's second homer of the day was a two-run blast with two out that sent the game into extra innings tied at 7-7. His third homer was a three-run shot in the 15th inning that broke the tie in the five-hour game.

"I wasn't going for a home run the last time up," he said. "Just a single, that's all we needed. In the ninth inning, yes, I was going for a homer."

Kingman wasn't only a hitting star for the Cubs Sunday, but also made a diving, game-saving catch of a line drive by Dusty Baker with two runners on in the Dodger ninth.

"Some people around here don't think I can play defence," said Kingman. "Maybe this will change some minds."

Kingman has four home runs in his last eight at-bats and seven for the season.

In other National League games, Philadelphia Phillies defeated Cincinnati Reds 7-4, Pittsburgh Pirates whipped San Diego Padres 1-0, Atlanta Braves edged Montreal Expos 2-1 and San Francisco Giants took a doubleheader from St. Louis Cardinals, 5-4 in 12 innings and 4-3 in 10. A doubleheader between New York and Houston was rained out.

In American League action Sunday, Bob Sykes Pitched a four-hit shutout as Detroit Tigers overwhelmed Oakland A's 15-0 behind a 20-hit attack.

Rookie Clint Hurdle scored in the bottom of the ninth to provide the winning run as Kansas City Royals outslugged New York Yankees 10-9.

Fred Lynn hit a three-run homer in the fifth inning and Dennis Eckersley won his third consecutive game as Boston Red Sox posted their 10th victory in 11 games downing Minnesota Twins 6-2.

In other games Sunday, California Angels edged Cleveland Indians 4-3, Baltimore Orioles shaded Texas Rangers 3-2 and Milwaukee Brewers nipped Chicago White Sox 5-4. The Seattle-Toronto game was rained out.

Dick Ruthven scattered eight hits and Atlanta Braves scored the go-ahead run in the seventh inning on Rod Gilbreath's double to beat Montreal.

Griffith Bows; Hires Marshall

BLOOMINGTON, Minn. (AP) — Minnesota Twins owner Calvin Griffith has bowed to player-pressure and announced that relief pitcher Mike Marshall, a free agent, would be signed to a contract.

Superstar Rod Carew had been hotly critical of Griffith for refusing to offer Marshall a contract. The six-time American League batting champion accused Griffith of being niggardly and said he was not interested in building a winning team.

Carew, who is in the final year of his current contract, said he would play out his option and sign with naother team after the 1979 season. Furthermore, the 11-year veteran said he would block any trade for him, which would mean Griffith would receive no compensation for the loss of his best player.

A brief announcement issued by the Twins said that the 35-year-old Marshall had agreed to terms and would be signed to a contract as soon as a spot on the roster can be cleared, probably Tuesday.

"After several discussions with our people, the Minnesota Twins have decided to bring pitcher Mike Marshall in to work out with the club Monday," the statement said. "As soon as we can clear our roster problems, Marshall will be signed to a 1978 contract, the terms to which have already been agreed upon."

Marshall worked out with the team in Chicago earlier in the week but Griffith balked at signing the 1974 Cy Young award winner, who is reported to have made $150,000 last season.

VISTAS CONTROL PLAY BUT SETTLE FOR DRAW

BURNABY — A strong performance impressed coach Brian Hughes, but Vancouver Island Vistas still had to share a split in points with the British Columbia League Selects in Saturday's Pacific Northwest Soccer League game at Swangard Stadium.

Vistas generally controlled play, particularly in the second half, but were forced to depart with a 1-1 tie.

Vistas' Garnet Moen, jumping on Peter Zachary's rebound, staked the Islanders to a 1-0 lead in the first half and Selects' Dave Taylor tied the match in the 57th minute on a penalty shot.

Vistas had a glorious chance to wrap up a victory in the final minutes when they missed on three successive straight-on shots.

Vistas, with a victory in their first game, remain unbeaten and will face Vancouver Whitecap Reserves in Victoria next weekend. The date and site of the game is to be announced later in the week.

Bowlers Lead VP Side To Nine-Wicket Victory

Some excellent bowling helped the Vice-President's XI trip the President's XI by nine wickets Sunday in the annual Victoria and District Cricket Association exhibition match at Windsor Park.

The President's side batted first and reached 80 runs with Steve Hanson scoring 35, Mark Hillis adding 17 and Alec Porter contributing 16.

Alan Carter took two President wickets for the cost of only seven runs while clubmate Tim Brierley took four for 13.

Vice-President batters then reached 81 for one with Eric Kjekstad (33) and Jeremy Goodwin (29, not out) setting the pace.

The match also served as a trial to select a representative side to face the touring Quantas team from Australia, May 21. The Victoria XI is expected to be named later this week.

On Saturday, Alcos and Incogs recorded opening victories in the league's annual 40-overs competition.

Alcos downed Albion by 62 runs at Windsor Park and Incogs edged Castaways by one run at Beacon Hill Park.

Peter Nation scored 79, not out, to lead Alcos to 142 for four while Hanson scored 34. Albion was dismissed for 80 with Keith Dixon scoring 46.

Nation (two for five), Hanson (two for eight) and Bob McKay (two for 13) led Alco bowlers.

At Beacon Hill, Castaways reached 179 for five with Dave Shaw showing the way at 88, not out. Jim Wenman then led Incogs to 180 for five with 94 and Dave Gladders added 39.

Bob Beecher topped Castaway bowlers by knocking over for for nine.

Marathon Win

OTTAWA (CP) — Brian Maxwell beat fellow-Torontonian Paul Bannon in a photo-finish Sunday to win the National Capital Marathon in a record time of two hours, 16 minutes and two seconds.

Don Howieson of St. Catharines, Ont., finished third.

Maxwell and Bannon will represent Canada at the Commonwealth Games in August at Edmonton.

The Canadian Track and Field Association has the option of awarding the third position on that team to Howieson or Jerome Drayton of Toronto, winner of last year's Boston Marathon. Drayton pulled a hamstring muscle in Boston last month and was unable to run Sunday.

Maxwell, a University of California student, was ranked third in the world in 1977. He eclipsed the old record of 2:16:32 set by Wayne Yetman in 1976.

Bannon led for most of the gruelling 26-mile, 385-yard run with Maxwell catching up with about three miles to go and finally overtaking him.

Entrants included Victoria runners Mike Creery, who finished 36th in 2:32.46, and Bruce Shaw, who placed 43rd in 2:34.53. Tom McCarthy of Royal Roads placed first in the 45-50 age bracket in 2:45.10.

Sussex Wins Squash Cup

The host Sussex Club of Victoria captured three of five matches against Evergreen of Vancouver Saturday to capture the B.C. Squash Racquets Association Cup, emblematic of the provincial team championship.

Victoria's Stephen Pelzing, John Prissick and Rich Field provided the winning edge. Pelzing beat Paul Stevenson 3-1, Prissick topped Dick Riley by the same margin and Field blanked Bob Akune 3-0.

Evergreens' two victories were recorded by Ian Niven, who defeated Doug Campbell 3-1, and Les Jamieson, who edged Bob Croll 3-2.

BUDGETS RAINED OUT

TACOMA — The weatherman had the final say on Victoria Budgets' attempts to get into Northwest Major Men's Fastball League play.

Victoria's scheduled doubleheaders against B.N.I. Sports of Tacoma were rained out Saturday and Sunday.

Budgets, defending Canadian senior champions, will try again next weekend in Seattle. Victoria's next home stand will be May 27-28 against Vancouver in a non-league series.

LAZ BARRERA ENJOYS GOOD WEEKEND

Slew Sloshes to Easy Win

Times News Services

Seattle Slew came back to the races on a wet and windy day at New York's Aqueduct track on Sunday and ran away from five rivals in a seven-furlong allowance race, his first start in 10 months.

The 1977 horse-of-the-year splashed home 8¼ lengths in front of Proud Arion in the time of 1:22 -5 over a sloppy track. Capulet's Song finished third.

"We picked a great day, didn't we?" said co-owner Mickey Taylor before Seattle Slew went out into the rain.

The weather didn't seem to bother Seattle. The opposition certainly didn't.

With Jean Cruguet aboard, Seattle Slew took the lead from Gallant Bob approaching the half-mile pole and steadily drew away as a crowd of 16,361 cheered him.

In scoring his first victory since he won the Belmont Stakes last June 11, Seattle Slew, who carried top weight of 122 pounds, paid $2.20, $2.10 and $2.10.

The race was a prep for Seattle Slew for the May 29 Metropolitan Handicap at Belmont Park. His last start as a three-year-old was July 3 when he finished fourth in the Swaps Stakes, 16 lengths behind J. O. Tobin.

Doug Peterson, who took over for Billy Turner as trainer late last year, apparently had Slew ready to campaign in Florida in January but the colt had a blood disorder that knocked him out of training. Many people thought he would never race again.

But Slew is back and is scheduled to race for the remainder of the year before he is retired to stud under a $12 million syndication.

Elsewhere in racing. . .

The $214,550 Californian, a major test for older thoroughbred horses, was billed as an East-West duel between J. O. Tobin, the pride of Hollywood Park, and Cox's Ridge, a consistent stakes winner in New York.

But a 19-to-1 outsider, Replant, was sandwiched in between the two favorites at the finish of the 1 1-16 mile run at Hollywood Park Sunday.

The victory by J. O. Tobin, who won by 2½ lengths in 1:41, was another for jockey Steve Cauthen and trainer Laz Barrera, who teamed up with Affirmed to win the recent Kentucky Derby.

"He loves this track," said the 18-year-old Cauthen of J. O. Tobin. It was the sixth straight victory for the four-year-old colt at Hollywood Park and the payoff of $124,550 boosted his career earnings to $606,805.

Cox's Ridge, second favorite of the crowd of 36,251, finished 1½ lengths behind Replant.

* * *

Barrera scored another stakes victory when Mashteen won the $42,775 Comely Stakes for three-year-old fillies at Aqueduct although the 53-year-old trainer wasn't on hand Saturday.

Mashteen, a daughter of Majestic Prince, made her first start in New York after a winter campaign in California and scored an impressive, three-length victory over the 7-5 favorite, Tempest Queen. Mucchina, the 5-2 third choice, finished third.

Akita, the 2-1 second choice ridden by Cauthen, finished fourth in the field of six.

* * *

Bowl Game won by six lengths in the $58,450 second division and Flourescent Light led all the way in the $57,450 first division of the Dixie Handicap at Pimlico.

* * *

Odds-on favorite Radar Ahead rallied in the stretch to capture the $53,150 El Dorado Handicap by 1½ lengths at Hollywood Park.

Think Snow was scratched following an impressive workout Friday that made him a possibility for next Saturday's Preakness Stakes in Maryland.

Think Snow finished third in the Santa Anita Derby and second in the Hollywood Derby, with Kentucky Derby winner Affirmed capturing both of those races. The margin of victory in the latter affair last month was two lengths.

SCOTS FALTER AGAINST IRISH

Times News Services.

GLASGOW — Scotland, using the British soccer championships as a warmup for next month's World Cup finals in Argentina, was held to a 1-1 draw in its opening match Saturday at Glasgow against injury-riddled Northern Ireland.

Scotland's manager, Ally MacLeod, has only two more matches, against Wales and England this week, to get things right before his side's opening World Cup match with Peru on June 3.

Northern Ireland grabbed a shock lead in the 26th minute when Nottingham Forest midfield man Martin O'Neill blasted home a right-foot drive.

Ten minutes later, striker Derek Johnstone headed home the equalizer from a cross by Scotland's skipper Bruce Rioch.

MacLeod's experiment of playing two big central strikers—Johnstone and Joe Jordan—did not work, and Jordan was replaced at half-time by Kenny Dalglish, scorer of Liverpool's winning goal in the European Cup final against Belgium's Bruges in London last Wednesday.

But even the skills of Dalglish could not lift Scotland. Archie Gemmill and Rioch were strong in midfield, but Scotland looked vulnerable at fullback.

Martin Buchan, standing in for Willie Donachie at left back, was pulled off in the first half and replaced by Nottingham Forest's Kenny Burns.

Donachie will miss Scotland's match against Peru because of an International Football Association (FIFA) one-match ban.

In another opening match Saturday, spectacular late goals by Tony Currie and Peter Barnes gave England a 3-1 victory over Wales at Cardiff.

England, its confidence high after recent impressive displays against Brazil and West Germany, often struggled against a skilled and determined Welsh side.

Bob Latchford of Everton gave England an early goal in the eighth minute and Wales equalized through Phil Dwyer in the 56th minute. The match, marked by several injuries, appeared headed for a draw until Currie exploded ferocious 25-yarder into the net at 72 minutes. Barnes sealed the victory with a superb scoring shot one minute from time.

Great Comeback By Leeds in Final

LONDON (Reuter) — Leeds brought off one of the most remarkable comebacks in English Rugby League history by defeating St. Helen's 14-12 in the Cup final at Wembley Saturday, overcoming a 10-0 deficit in the first 14 minutes.

An early chorus of When The Saints Go Marching In from St. Helen's supporters in the 95,000 crowd proved premature.

Leeds gradually recovered its composure and piled on relentless pressure in the second half. It snatched victory in the dying minutes by three tries, a goal and three dropped goals to two tries and three goals.

The match-winner was fly-half John Holmes, who had a hand in all three tries and dropped a goal.

St. Helen's, seeking a sixth cup win in seven Wembley appearances, held a halftime lead of 12-5.

An Opportunity for Junior Hockey

MONTREAL (CP) — The National Hockey League and the Canadian Major Junior Hockey League appear to be ready to settle their differences concerning the universal junior hockey draft.

After a series of meetings between the CMJHL and NHL negotiating committees, NHL president John Ziegler announced Satureay his league's support of the minor hockey development program in Canada, although a formal agreement has yet to be reached.

"... We advised the major junior hockey representatives that so long as they continue to maintain and improve their development programs and continue to provide skilled hockey players, they can count on our financial and moral support."

The two bodies have been trying to come to an agreement about compensation by the NHL to the CMJHL for players selected in the amateur draft.

Both sides concur that an agreement is necessary, especially Ed Chynoweth, president of the Western Canada Hockey League and chairman of the CMJHL's negoating committee.

"We advised the National Hockey League that minor hockey in Canada needs the NHL's financial support," Chynoweth said. "We indicated that the program would need approximately $3 million over the next three years.

"The National Hockey League has advised us that minor hockey has the opportunity to receive this measure of financial support provided that we in major hockey maintain and improve our development programs.

Specifically, the NHL has said that for it 1978 drafts it will pay:

—$1,000 for each draft claim, including claims for college players but not including claims for European players.

—$9,000 for each player claimed in the first round who is signed within the first four seasons following the draft.

—$6,000 for each player claimed in the second round who is signed within the first four seasons following the draft.

—$4,000 for each player who was not claimed in the draft but was subsequently signed during the four seasons following the draft.

—$5,000 for each 40 games that a signed player plays in the NHL during the first four seasons following the draft.

"Provided there are no significant changes in the quantity, quality and skill level of the players coming out of junior hockey, the amounts to be paid to minor hockey for each player can be increased each year so that by 1980 the National Hockey League may be paying a maximum of $30,000 per player," an NHL statement said.

Lear Inventions Ran from Jets to Radios

Washington Post

WASHINGTON — William P. Lear designed and developed the Lear Jet, perhaps the most successful executive airplane in the world. He also invented the automatic pilot for jets.

For people who drive rather than fly, Bill Lear invented the car radio. Years after, he invented the eight-track stereo for cars. He held more than 150 patents.

In the late 1960s, he put $17 million of his own money into the development of a steam-powered automobile, because, he said, "I wanted to develop something that would prove that I wasn't just lucky."

Prove it to whom?

"To the world," he said.

The car never went anywhere. But when he died of leukemia in a Reno hospital Sunday at the age of 75, Lear was on the verge of producing a new executive plane, the Learfan, which is covered with molded pastic held together with glue.

Lear claimed that his new plane was the safest aircraft ever designed. It is powered by two gas turbine engines that turn a single four-bladed propellor in the rear. He said it would also prove to be one of the most economical planes ever to fly — a crusing speed of 400 m.p.h. at a rate of 12 miles to the gallon, or only 25 per cent of the fuel consumption of the Lear Jet.

"I'm not a tinkerer," Lear said recently. "In fact, I'm not very good with tools. My outstanding ability is to recognize a market and to fill it."

This ability made Lear a millionaire many times over.

He began with almost nothing. William Powell Lear was born in Hannibal, Mo. His father was a carpenter and Lear once said that "my father worked his — off to earn a decent living. I never saw anyone work so hard. He hauled oil riggings, never had proper equipment to do the job."

When Lear was 6, his parents separated and his mother took him to Chicago. He finished his formal schooling with the eigth grade. At 14 he became a mechanic and, at 16, he joined the Navy and studied radio.

"I remember working out a blueprint for my future when I was 12 years old," Lear told an interviewer for The Saturday Evening Post in 1956. "I resolved first to make enough money so I'd never be stopped from finishing anything; second, that to accumulate money in a hurry — and I was in a hurry — I'd have to invent something that people wanted; and third, that if I ever was going to stand on my own feet, I'd have to leave home."

After his First World War naval service, Lear learned to fly and worked as a radio engineer. One of his first invenstions was a non-battery home radio receiver, but it was not until 1924 that he had his first major success. He invented a radio that would fit into an automobile.

"That was so people wouldn't have to rush home and listen to Amos 'n' Andy," he said last month.

Unable to get financial backing to produce it himself, he sold the device to Motorola.

In the next several years he founded a number of companies of his own and several of them failed. He also married three times and was divorced three times. In 1934, he designed a radio frequency amplifier that could be used in any radio set. The Radio Corporation of America bought it from him for a substantial sum and Lear used the money to found Lear Avia Corp. in Dayton, Ohio.

100 MILLION WORK

WASHINGTON (AP) — The U.S. labor force passed the 100 million mark in 1977 with women accounting for most of the increase.

The labor force, including military personnel, increased by about 15 million from 1970 through 1977, reaching a peak of 101 million last year and averaging 99.5 million.

The civilian labor force reached 97.4 million last year, with women accounting for 41 per cent. Women also accounted for 57 per cent of the increase since 1970.

In 1977, 48 per cent of U.S. women were in the labor force, compared with 38 per cent in 1960.

The report said the total population of the United States on Jan. 1, 1978, was estimated at 217.7 million.

Twin Donates Testicle

SACRAMENTO (AP) — An operation in which a 30-year-old man donated a testicle to his identical twin has been proclaimed a success by the patients, one year after the surgery.

In interviews with The Sacramento Union, Tim and Terry Twomey said that Tim, who was born without testicles, now has a sperm count that indicates he can father a child, and the surgeon says Terry, who has three children, can have more.

The operation was performed at St. Luke's West Hospital in St. Louis, Mo., by Dr. Sherman Silber. A Sacramento doctor had told Tim that Silber might be able to help him, and Tim approached his brother.

"I was willing to help him out with at least half of what I had — up to half only," Terry said.

Basque Gangs Bomb Tower

SAN SEBASTIAN, Spain (AP) — Basque terrorists destroyed a government television tower and tried to storm a police barracks during the weekend, winding up a week of violence that took four lives.

Police said the Basque separatist group ETA, for Basque Land and Liberty in the Basque language, firebombed a TV relay tower in San Sebastian and abducted a motorist near Bilbao. The motorist later was found gagged, tied and unhurt but the terrorists kept his car.

In Renteria, outside San Sebastian, demonstrators protesting the slaying of two ETA guerrillas by police last week tried to attack a civil guard barracks but were routed by smoke grenades and rubber bullets, police said.

Miguel Inigo, a civil guard wounded in an ambush by Basque separatists last week, died Sunday, police said. He was the 13th victim of political violence in Spain this year.

ETA, which has been waging a guerrilla campaign for independence for the Basque provinces in northwest Spain, said it will continue attacking the civil guards, Spain's national police, and government officials until the area is allowed to have its own Basque police force.

ETA is also campaigning for amnesty for persons convicted of labor offences by the Franco dictatorship. The post-Franco government gave amnesty to Basque political prisoners last year and provisional autonomy to the region early this year.

WHAT PRICE HUMAN LIFE?

LONDON (Reuter) — It is time doctors and their governments figured out how much a human life is worth in real monetary terms, two medical researchers suggest.

Prof. W. I. Card of Glasgow's western infirmary and G. H. Mooney, doctor of the health economics research Unit at Aberdeen University, made this proposal in the British Medical Journal last Christmas, and have since received more than 100 requests for reprints.

Most of these came from developing countries wrestling with the problems of how to set up an efficient national health service with limited funds.

"There is no way of avoiding the fact that, given scarce resources, there is a finite limit to the value of life in health care," the two wrote.

"The valuation of human life should be made more rational and explicit. There is nothing inhumane in this. By doing so, the quality and quantity of health care is likely to be increased, and the onus is on those who remain unconvinced to put forward an alternative scheme."

"Medicine goes on by judgments and decision in doctors' heads," Card said. "What we would like to do is formalize it so that you could write it on the blackboard."

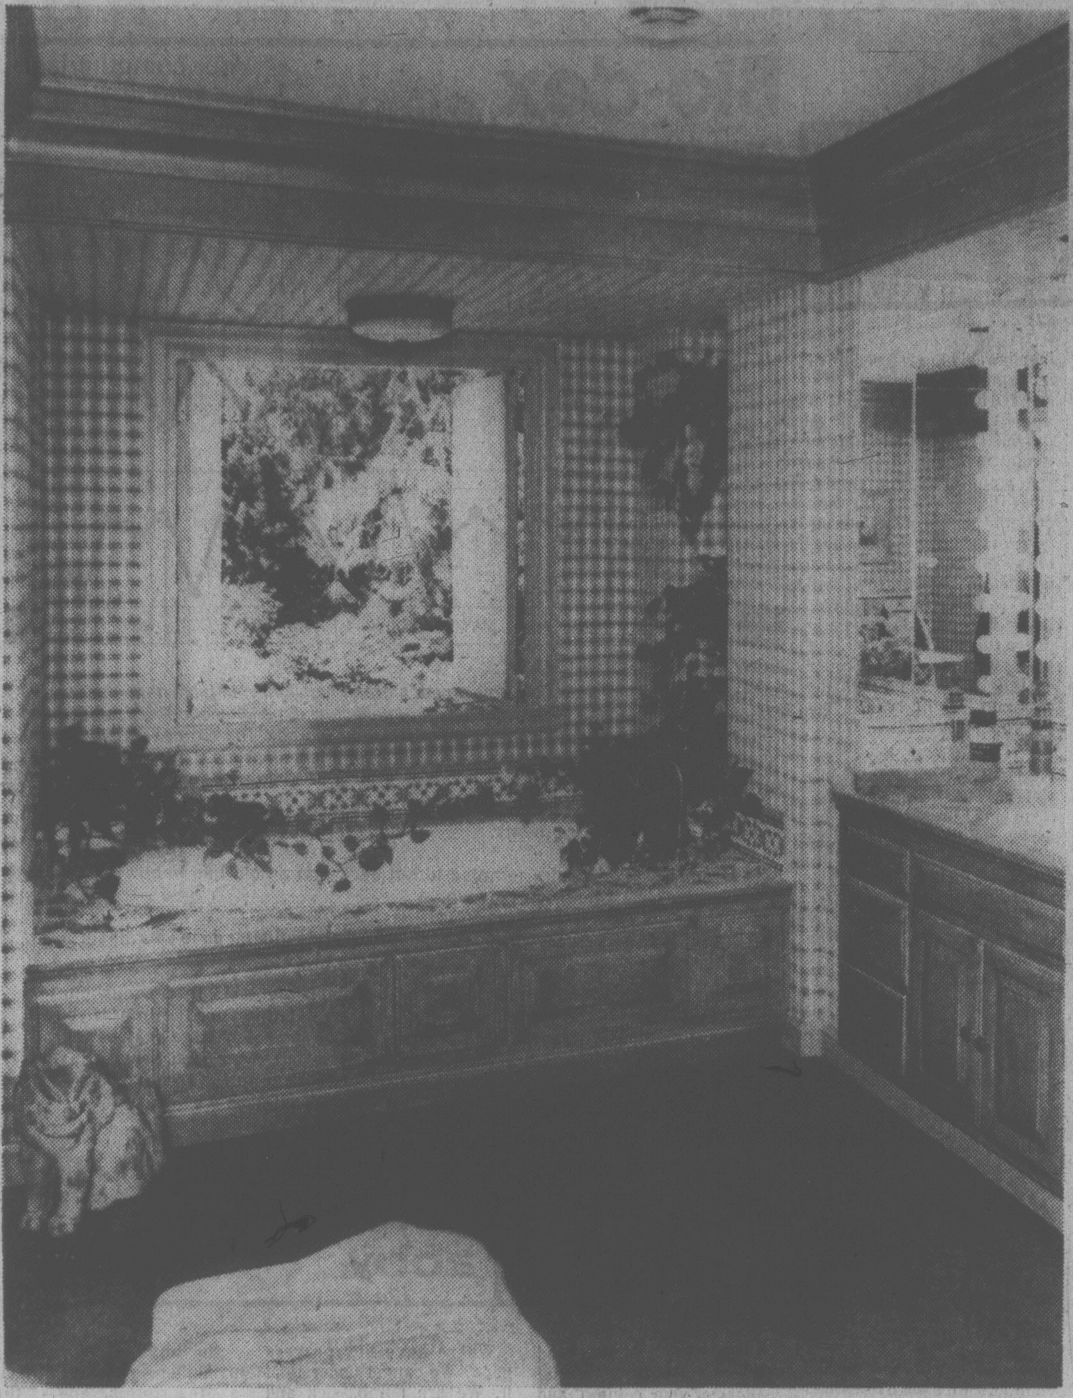
Consumers Still Spending

OTTAWA (CP) — Consumers are worried about job prospects and their financial position but continue to show a willingness to spend, saysaa March survey by a private economic forecasting agency.

The survey, conducted by the Conference Board in Canada before retail sales taxes were cut by the April 10 federal budget but after a special $100-income-tax cut which took effect in January and February, shows that more consumers feel the present is a good time to spend compared with December.

Consumer spending is being counted upon by the government as a major factor in faster economic growth this year. Finance Minister Jean Chretien says he hopes real growth will hit five per cent this year, up from 2.6 per cent in 1977.

The board says that short-term job prospects continue to cloud the outlook of consumers. The proportion of consumers surveyed who felt the employment outlook will improve in the next six months was smaller than usual.



Curtained window above the bathtub swings shut when privacy is wanted

Don't Overlook Bathroom

By PAULINE GRAVES

In dressing up homes, bath rooms often are overlooked except for paint and paper.

Figuring that the equipment dominates the room, most people settle for color choice and do little else about them, except possibly to put the toilet behind doors.

Because of their size, bathtubs usually are a focal point, and even the best designed is not particularly attractive. However, we show here a bath room, by designer Ruth Sofaer, in which the tub is so well integrated into the surroundings that it doesn't dominate at all.

First, the tub fits into an alcove which reduces the impact of its bulk. And second, wood panelling travels across the alcove front, concealing the tub's porcelain side and adding handsome architectural detail. The wood, in design and finish, matches nearby cabinets.

For further concealment of the white tub, decorative tile fills in the corners between walls and tub, and only the oval interior remains in view.

A single row of the tile lines the alcove at the tub level and also ties in with the splash on the pullman, where it is used also.

All of this enhances the tub area, even if nothing more were done. But the patterned wallpaper on alcove walls and ceiling commands attention, even though it is an all encompassing background. And the alcove is treated architecturally, without regard to the tub, with inverted shelves for plants in one wall, and a wide window in the back wall. This makes for an attractive focal point, and the tub becomes secondary.

Regular MD Visits Urged By Elderly

EDMONTON (CP) — Elderly people should find a doctor they like and visit him at least once a year, not just when they're feeling poorly, says one of this city's two nursing consultants in geriatrics.

Jan Craig, a public health nurse who has specialized in the health problems of the aged for three years, said she finds many are concerned with blood pressure, primarily because television advertising dwells on the importance of perfect blood pressure.

Many people worry about the medications their doctors prescribe, she said; often they can't read their prescriptions and want to know the ingredients.

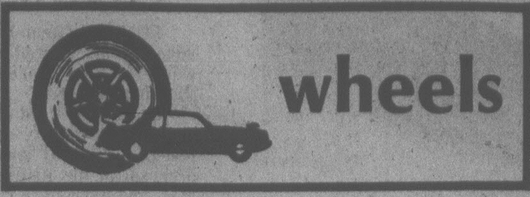
Keep Tires the Same



DEAR MIKE: Recently I bought a 1972 Volks Squareback. After owning the car a few days, I noticed that the two front tires are 5.60x15 while the rears are 6.00x15. Am I safe driving this way? Will continued driving harm the car or the tires in any way? — CONCERNED

DEAR CONCERNED: No. Problems crop up only when you put different-sized tires on the driving axle of a car. What happens is that the differential spider gears — little gears inside the driving axle that let one wheel run faster than the other when turning a corner — spin all the time. This tends to make them wear more quickly than normal.

DEAR MIKE: You mentioned an ultraviolet blacklight test for engine oil leaks. Can you explain more about this — how it works, who makes such testers, and where I might get one? — LEAKING

DEAR LEAKING: It works by putting a trace amount of ultraviolet-visible fluid into an engine, transmission, etc., than running the car, and finally shining an ultraviolet lamp up toward the leak to pinpoint where it's coming from. Many garages and filling stations have such testers. They cost upwards of $200 and aren't really practical for the home mechanic. One supplier is Ultra-Violet Products, Inc., 5100 Walnut Grove Ave., San Gabriel, Calif. 91778.

DEAR WORRIED: Don't worry. The locking mechanism in Ford inertia reels works on the principle of a pendulum. If you stop suddenly or hit something, the pendulum swings forward and locks the reel. Otherwise it's unlocked and you're free to move forward or sideways in your seat.

DEAR MIKE: We have a 1978 Mercury Monarch sedan. Concerning the shoulder harness, page 50 of the owner's manual reads, "The inertia reel allows freedom of movement, locking tight only on hard braking or impacts of approximately 5 m.p.h. or more. The reel cannot be made to lock by jerking on the webbing." The dealer can't tell me why the belt doesn't lock. I'm a bit uncomfortable with this harness system, because I have no way of knowing if it will lock at a critical moment. Does the government approve this type of belt? Can I possibly exchange the roller on this belt for one with the common locking type? What do you suggest? — WORRIED

HOW TO USE YOUR CHART:
Locate your month of birth. The dots on each graph highlight your biorhythm readouts. Check the scales on the left or right for your Intellectual, Emotional and Physical factors, from 1 to 5. Add these three numbers to obtain your Bio-dex. The Bio-dex is computed on average population age based on official Government statistics.

BIO-DEX READOUT:

0-5 Negative Cycle-	Avoid confrontation. Side-step situations that could cause arguments.
6-10 Neutral Cycle-	You're tempted to fall back into an old bad habit. Keep busy and don't give in.
11-15 Positive Cycle-	Everyone loves a winner. Just don't let it go to your head.

An impulsive decision need not be an irresponsible one. It depends on the knowledge, wisdom and experience you've accumulated in your lifetime. If you've found that past impulse decisions didn't work, perhaps you need to analyse why. If your intellectual Bio-dex is low, desire may win out over good sense. If your emotional level is low, you may miss out because you can't make up your mind. Check your Bio-dex, and trust your impulses when your levels are high.

BLIND BOY'S POSTER RULED BEST

NEW YORK (AP) — An 11-year-old Bronx boy who is legally blind has excelled 38,000 other young artists in a U.S. country-wide poster contest.

Able to see at only 20 feet what others can see at 200, Armindo Miranda's drawings were judged the best entry in the American Automobile Association's annual traffic safety poster contest.

Officials for the contest, which offers $650 in bonds as first prize, made their choice without having been told about Miranda's eye problems.

"I like to draw. I like to make things out of clay," said Miranda, who is in the sixth grade at the Lavelle School for the Blind and Visually Handicapped.

dear abby

DEAR ABBY: My husband and I have long been faithful readers of your column, and as I have no one to turn to in my hour of despair, I must talk to someone.

How does one go on when his faith in prayer is shattered and the bottom has fallen out of everything? I feel as if my life is over and even my prayers are useless now.

We adopted a little boy when he was eight days old. We loved that child more than our own flesh and blood. We prayed for him constantly. Yet, between the ages of 14 and 19 he went from skipping school to robbery and, now, to rape!

Our hearts are broken. Our son was raised in a good Christian home. We went to church every Sunday and always tried to set a good example. We never had tobacco or liquor in the house.

Where have our prayers gone? We cannot understand it. We are numb, sick and brokenhearted. God bless you if you can help us.

HEARTBROKEN

DEAR HEARTBROKEN: You speak of prayer as though it was the premium you paid for insurance against all ills and evils. It is not. Prayer is simply "a talk" with one's God. No amount of praying will protect another, in this case your adopted son, from the consequences of his own actions. Each man must do his own praying, just as each man must accept the consequences of his own behaviour.

I don't know where your son went wrong. But your faith in prayer should not have been shattered because he did.

DEAR ABBY: I work and make a pretty good salary. The guy I go with also works, and his take-home is twice what mine is, but he never seems to have any money. He's always asking me for money for gas, eating out and movies.

If he'd ask me for a regular "loan" and then pay me back, I wouldn't mind, but he always says he left his wallet in his other pants. He's a neat guy otherwise. What should I do?

DEBBIE

DEAR DEBBIE: If you give him any more money, you left your brains in your other head. Lend him bus fare and tell him to go home and get his wallet.

DEAR ABBY: My mother hasn't been to see a doctor in years, but she's always complaining about headaches, backaches, dizziness or a feeling of weakness.

She buys every kind of painkiller she can get without a prescription, and if the directions say, "take two," she takes four. She has even taken pills that were prescribed for someone else. (I've heard her ask friends and relatives if they have any pills for pain, and could she have a few.)

How can I get her to quit taking so many pills? She's not dumb. She's a college graduate. She's really a wonderful woman, and I'd like to have her around for a few more years.

LOVING DAUGHTER

DEAR DAUGHTER: Tell your mother that a pain is nature's way of telling her that something is wrong with the equipment. To suppress the pain and ignore the warning, instead of going to a physician to find out what's wrong, is foolish and dangerous.

John Travolta: Latest Folk Hero

By ANGELA TAYLOR
New York Times
(c) 1978 N.Y. Times News Service

NEW YORK — In the 50s, the gang that hung out at the bowling alley wore its hair in Elvis Presley's well-greased D.A. The 60s brought a legion of Beatle imitators, hair grew long and parents and teachers fulminated.

And just about at the point when the 1970s were going to slip by without a folk hero for the young to imitate, John Travolta hustled in with "Saturday Night Fever," and now his fans are up at dawn with hair dryer and brush to copy the every-hair-in-place, sculptured look of his hairdo.

Mirrors have gone back up on high-school locker doors and there's often a dryer and as many as five brushes on the shelf. Travolta is as desirable as dancing like him. Both take a lot of practice.

Essentially, the Travolta coiffure is a shorter version of Elvis's — but there's a difference. It has no sideburns and it doesn't move and fly around, in spite of fierce gyrations. Ideally, it takes hair that has body but is neither too curly nor too straight. It requires trimming every two or three weeks to keep it properly pruned, and frequent shampoos so that it doesn't get oily and limp.

A Travolta admirer thinks nothing of getting up at 5:30 to give himself an hour of currying and preening. Using hair spray to keep it in place is shunned by purists like Joseph de Mayo, who says that if your hair is thick, wavy and grows back from your forehead and you have it cut short and properly layered, you don't need any stucky stuff.

De Mayo ought to know. He looks so much like Travolta's Tony Manero in the film that every time he steps out on a discotheque floor, girls won't believe he isn't the real thing. Actually, he is an auditor with General Motors and has been wearing the hair style for three years. "People stop me on the street for autographs," he said. "I tell them I'm not Travolta and they ask me 'are you sure?' "

TRAVOLTA LOOK

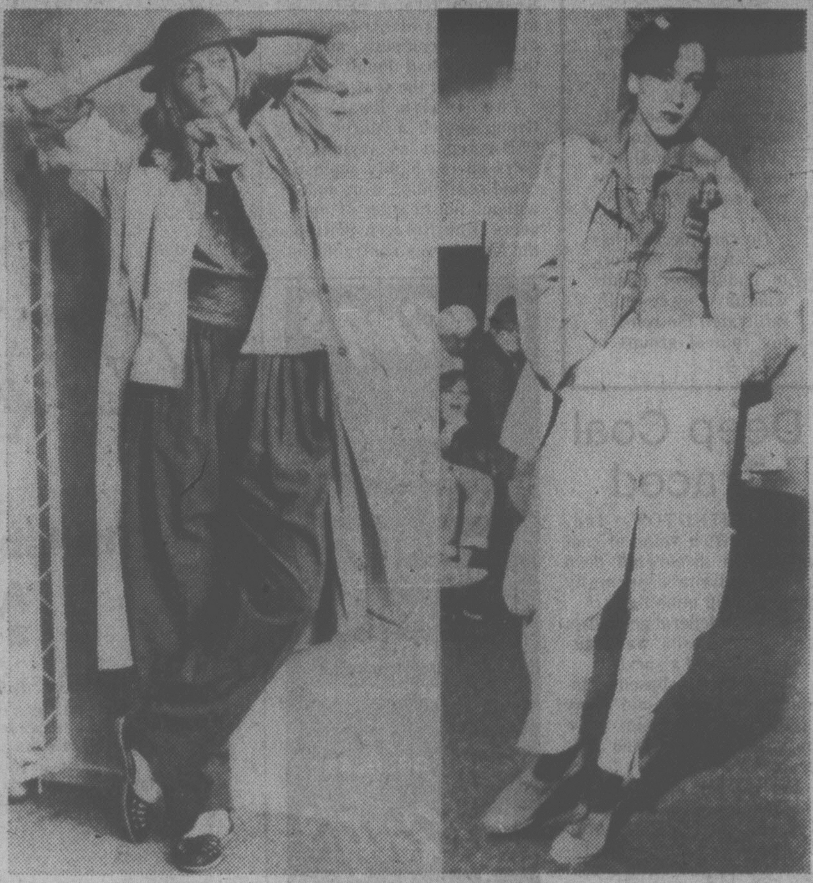
To complicate matters further, he is 23, almost the same age as Travolta (who just turned 24); both were born in New Jersey of Italian ancestry and both have brown hair and blue eyes. DeMayo is taller — 6 feet 2 — but they are built alike. He thinks that the current fad is mainly for highschoolers, but, like them, he fusses with his hair a lot.

He has it trimmed at Vidal Sassoon every three weeks and washes it every other day to keep it manageable. "Blowing it out, combing it, playing with it, takes at least 20 minutes," he said. He carries a hairbrush and touches his hair up in the men's room between dances.

Johnny Lorenzo is 17 and a senior at the Herbert H. Lehman High School in the Bronx. He doesn't think he looks like Travolta, but girls admire his hairdo and so he works at it. "My mother says I'm not like him except how much time I spend in front of the mirror."

Out of his school briefcase emerge three brushes: a small round one for the front of his hair, a medium-sized one for the top and a wire-bristled affair that looks like a dog brush for the back. He thinks that Travolta made looking good stylish among the young, but that it's his hair and the way he dances that have made him a fad, not his clothes. "They're the polyester look; there's nothing distinctive about them."

Since he lives in Queens and has a long subway trip to school, he gets up at 5 to work on his hair before starting out. He and his classmates hate windy days because that messes up their morning's work. "And I hate anybody to touch my hair."



INDIAN-MADE clothes in latest Western styles include those by Willi Smith for Willi Wear (left) and Paul M. Ropp for Indian Nepal (right).

Fabrics Of India Spread

By ANNE-MARIE SCHIRO
New York Times

NEW YORK — First it was the Beatles. Now it's Seventh Avenue. India keeps getting discovered. While the Beatles and their followers were interested in Eastern philosophies, the gauze shirts and embroidered peasant tops they were wearing in the 60's started a fashion trend among the young. Soon there was a proliferation of little shops selling inexpensive Indian-made gauzes which became a uniform topping for jeans.

★

Now designers have discovered India as a source for special fabrics as well as for the factories to turn those fabrics into fashionable clothes that can be sold at moderate prices. D. D. Dominick, Willi Wear and Paul M. Ropp have all found success in the last year with their made-in-India designs, most of which sell for well under $100.

Finest in Style for N.Y.'s Finest

NEW YORK (AP) — Fashion-conscious New York isn't going to let its police department become unstylish.

Halston, the fashion designer, has been put in charge of designing new uniforms for the men in blue.

Police Lieut. John Tarpey of the chief of operations' office met with Halston for preliminary talks on the uniforms.

Halston described the current dress as uncomfortable, outdated and unsuited to the extremes of New York weather. He said he will try to combine style and practicality in the new uniforms.

"We want our officer to be the best-dressed police officer in the world," he said.

Halston is undertaking the project at no cost to the city or the police department.

One who makes draperies for others advises beginners to make sure the fabric they buy is cut from a straight edge and cut off in a straight line. You can lose inches of fabric if the yardage is cut at an angle. Also, if you buy a remnant with no shrinkage label, make an extra deep hem or whip in a tuck in the backside to allow for shrinkage. If necessary, let out the tuck and there's no rehemming chore.

Terrorism Declines

WASHINGTON (UPI) — An expert on political terrorism says the phenomena currently is declining but the danger remains that terrorists could obtain nuclear or chemical-biological devices that could destroy an entire country.

Walter Laqueur, international authority on political terrorism now in the Centre for Strategic and International Studies at Georgetown University, said there is less terrorism today than there was five or 10 years ago.

Terrorism has decreased in the Middle East, declined "sharply" in Northern Ireland and "disappeared" in much of Latin America, he said.

Laqueur appeared less optimistic about the future, saying he saw "some potential grave dangers ahead."

"There is a possibility of terrorists getting hold of weapons of what is technically called 'superviolence' — not only nuclear but biological and chemical weapons as well," he said.

"With these weapons of superviolence, one perhaps can destroy a whole country. Admittedly, this is illogical aand irrational ... but the problem is that terrorists frequently are not rational people."

Soviet Rebel Chief Placed on Trial

MOSCOW (AP) — Yuri Orlov, founder of the Soviet Union's best known dissident group, pleaded not guilty today to charges of "anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda," Tass reported.

The Soviet news agency said questioning of Orlov began after he made his plea at the opening of his trial in a Moscow courthouse. His wife and two sons were admitted to the courtroom, but friends and foreign reporters were barred.

Tass said Orlov agreed with the facts stated in the indictment but not with the interpretation put on them.

Two founders of the Georgian branch of Orlov's Group to Promote the Fulfilment of the Helsinki Accords in the U.S.S.R., also went on trial today in Tbilisi. Tass said they pleaded guilty to charges of anti-Soviet agitation and propaganda.

Like Orlov, they could be sentenced to seven years in a labor camp plus five years internal exile to a remote area of the Soviet Union.

Orlov, a 53-year-old physicist, founded a group to monitor and publicize the Soviet government's failure to comply with the human rights provisions of the Helsinki Agreement. He was arrested in February, 1977, and held incommunicado for 15 months while the government prepared its case against him.

The indictment said that from 1975 to 1977, Orlov prepared and circulated documents that "slandered the Soviet Union's political and economic system, its domestic and foreign policies and called for the overthrow of the system and struggle against it."

Policemen who surrounded the Lyublino district court in southeast Moscow allowed Orlov's wife, Irina, and two sons to enter.

Nobel Peace Prize winner Andrei D. Sakharov, about 20 more of Orlov's friends and 50 foreign reporters were refused admission to what Tass described as an open trial.

The defendants in Tbilisi were Zviad Gamsakhurdia and Merab Kostava, both 39. Gamsakhurdia worked on underground journals and wrote articles on prison conditions and economic problems. Kostava is a musicologist who wrote for dissident publications.

Terror In U.S. Unlikely

BIRMINGHAM, Ala. (UPI) — Former FBI Director Clarence Kelley says he doubts recent outbreaks of terrorist activities will spill over into the United States.

"This is not good hunting ground for terrorists," said Kelley during a workshop on terrorism at the University of Alabama-Birmingham Saturday. "It is not a good feeding ground for radical dissidents."

Kelley, an adjunct professor in the Department of Criminal Justice at the university, said U.S. extremist groups such as the Weathermen have shown little activity over the past few years and "the strength and sophistication of the Bureau (FBI) and local law enforcement agencies will contine to deter it."

He said the FBI has an extensive network of undercover agents who have successfully infiltrated the remaining radical groups in the U.S.

Deep Coal Traced

BLOOMINGTON, Ind. (UPI) — Rich veins of coal have been discovered deep under Indiana's normally shallow strip mine fields.

State and federal geologists said the deposits were discovered during a survey.

The scientists, based at Indiana University, said many of the new rich veins were between 500 to 1,000 feet deep.

Curtis Ault, a member of the Indiana Geological Survey, said the holes have been drilled to locate and accurately assess the state's coal reserves.

Nader Called Irresponsible Over Scaffold Safety Claim

CHARLESTON, W.Va. (UPI) — A spokesman for the Occupational Safety and Health Administration has denied charges that the agency failed to heed its own warnings about the safety of a scaffold at Monongahela Power Co.'s Willow Island Plant.

The scaffold collapsed last April 27 and sent 51 construction workers plunging 170 feet to their deaths.

OSHA Communications Director Frank Greer said in today's edition of the Charleston Gazette that the charges, leveled by a Ralph Nader Group, were "unfair and abundantly irresponsible."

He said the report issued last week by Nader's Health Research Group distorted memos and OSHA reports to make it incorrectly appear that OSHA had doubts about the safety of the scaffolding.

The Health Research Group quoted a March 1977 OSHA report as saying repairs on the highly sophisticated scaffolding were made without notification of engineers from Resarch Cottrell, the New Jersey contractor in charge of the project. The Nader group indicated the repairs were made improperly and may have been a factor in the collapse.

According to Greer, the OSHA report said the scaffolding needed repairs when it arrived at the plant, not after it was put up. He also said the repairs were expertly made before the scaffolding was used on the cooling tower where it eventually collapsed.

"At one point, our inspector climbed the scaffold and examined it," Greer said. "He said it was expertly put together."

Greer said the Health Research Group also distorted a memo questioning whether the scaffold could support four times its weight. "There was no definitive answer that the scaffold could not," he said. "Rather, we believed the scaffold was very strong."

The Health Research Group charged that the weight memo was ignored or misinterpreted by OSHA regional administrator David Rhone, who is in charge of OSHA's probe of the accident. The group claims this is a conflict of interest.

Test-Tube Babies All White?

LONDON, Ont. (CP) — The head of the Ontario royal commission on declining school enrolment says test-tube babies may save Canada from what he calls racial suicide.

Commissioner Robert Jackson said he is worried about the eventual extinction of Canadians of European descent and that test-tube babies "may be a possible way out of the difficulties we're in."

Declining birth rates are a worldwide problem in developed countries "so the only immigrants we can get are from countries of uncontrolled fertility," he said in an interview.

He said Canada's steadily dropping birth rate means the country will have to rely so heavily on immigration to bolster its population that its character will change from a nation of predominately European descendants.

Massive immigration of persons of different race, creed and color may or may not be a good thing, but it will mean a major change in the country's character, he added.

Earlier, in a speech to a conference of high school guidance counsellors, Jackson said he was taking a hard look at test-tube reproduction, not to solve the impact of fewer babies on the educational system "but to see for society as a whole what the alternatives are."

He said secondary schools facing an enrolment drop of 113,000 students by 1986 "are going to get murdered." Programs and teacher jobs will suffer losses, he added.

Jackson also said he is considering a proposal for round-the-clock access to affordable day care to encourage female shift workers to have children.

He said the 1976 Ontario census figures, which showed 170,000 15-year-olds and only 118,000 two-year-olds, reflect that women are waiting longer to bear babies and are having bearing fewer of them.

Economic factors are behind the decline and economic forecasts show little hope of financial improvement in the next decade, he said.

"Will women by then have decided careers are for them, not home life?", he asked, adding that when the economy improves the birth rate may not.

Jackson is scheduled to report his recommendations, on handling the prolems of declining school population, in August.

Affluence Causes Cancer?

HALIFAX (CP) — Bowel cancer may be an affliction of the affluent, suggests Dr. Michael Hill, a British researcher.

He outlined while here as a guest lecturer a project on which he and others are engaged which is aimed at predicting which people within a group will develop bowel cancer.

"As you go up in the world, your cancer goes down in the gut," he said in an interview.

Worldwide studies show a higher incidence of the disease in areas of heavy meat consumption such as northern Europe, the United States, Australia and the River Plate than in under-developed, largely vegetarian countries.

The phenomenon was first described by Dr. Dennis Birkitt, surgeon photographer-lecturer who became known as "Britain's Bran Man" for his advocacy of dieting to include bran as bulk.

Maps first indicated bowel cancer was a diasese of the Ango-Saxon race, Hill said. However, Orientals such as Japanese immigrants to California developed similar susceptibility in the second generation after their move.

This indicated the causes were more likely environmental than genetic, Hill said.

Within North America, three areas seem to have a significantly lower bowel-cancer rate — Florida and the southern parts of Texas and California. These areas grow citrus fruits, rich in vitamin C and people therefore have access to abundant supplies of cheap lemons, oranges and grapefruit.

The bowel-cancer rate is lower in England, where less meat is eaten, than in Ireland and Scotland.

Hill's research study, on which biochemist Ian MacDonald of Dalhousie University is collaborating, involves 10,000 persons who live in Wales, Scotland and England.

Men between 45 and 75 years of age are being divided into normal and high-risk groups. The latter group includes those who have already had cancer, ulcerative colitis or familial polyposis.

Stool samples are being collected and medical records will be followed closely for 10 years.

"If they had Mother's Day on Monday, you wouldn't have to do all this laundry."

The Bridge Expert

By FRED KARPIN

Against a suit contract, when partner leads a card that is obviously a singleton, and you win the trick with the ace, it is almost automatic for you to return that suit so partner can win the trick by trumping. But there are days when it is wrong to return the suit immediately, as is demonstrated in today's deal.

North-South vulnerable.
North deals.

NORTH

♡ 8 3

♣ K 10 7 6 4

SOUTH
♠ K 10 8 6 5 2
♡ K 7
◇ K 8 7
♣ 9 5

The bidding:

North	East	South	West
1 ◇	Pass	1 ♠	2 ♡
2 ♠	3 ♡	4 ♠	Pass
Pass	Pass

Opening lead: Five of ◇.

When West opened a diamond into North's first-bid suit, there was no doubt in East's mind that West was leading a singleton. This "fact" was confirmed when, on East's ace, South dropped the king (West would not have led the five of diamonds from a tripleton 8-7-5 combination into North's bid suit).

Upon winning the opening lead with his ace, East paused for reflection. If he returned a diamond for West to trump, where would the defenders get the two additional tricks needed to defeat the contract? Certainly they couldn't make any club tricks; and South, for his leap to four spades, surely had the spade king. So the defenders would make no spade tricks.

And West couldn't have the ace and king of hearts, for if he did he would have led the heart king initially instead of the wishful thinking lead of the singleton diamond. Thus, reasoned East, to defeat the contract the defenders had to make two heart tricks.

And so, at trick two, East led the jack of hearts, which South covered with the king. Upon winning with his ace, West now made a fine play by underleading his queen of hearts, hoping that his partner possessed the ten. East won this lead with the ten and now returned a diamond, which West ruffed for the setting trick.

It will be noted that if East had played back a diamond for West to ruff at trick two, declarer would have fulfilled his contract. All the defenders could have made from here in would have been West's ace of hearts, for dummy's diamond suit would consist of four winners.

CAPRICORN (Dec. 22-Jan. 19): Collect information, prepare, analyze, strengthen position by having facts at hand. Get concepts on paper — publish, publicize, advertise. Another Capricorn is in picture — so is Cancer native. You learn in which direction to place energies.

AQUARIUS (Jan. 20-Feb. 18): Someone, who once did you a favor, seems now to want a return, at a ridiculous cost. Key is to maintain balance, humor. Compute interest), potential. Partner or mate discusses budget. Gemini, Sagittarius figure prominently.

PISCES (Feb. 19-March 20): Someone "up there" likes you. Adversity is cast aside as you emerge victorious. Aquarius, Taurus, Scorpio persons play key roles. Accent on meeting opposition, holding your own, becoming familiar with legal rights and permissions.

IF MAY 16 IS YOUR BIRTHDAY you are studious, meditative, an introvert with the clang, clang of creativity bursting at the seams, rolling thunder for a creative outlet. You get chance this year for expression in way that is you all the way. If single, love and marriage are part of your 1978. July is an outstanding month for romance — and business. Pisces, Virgo persons play important roles in our life. You have proverbial second chance to "make good." You meet people, go places, do things and breathe in aura of creativity atmosphere.

FUN WITH FIGURES

By J. A. H. HUNTER

Susan was waiting at the terminal when Ron arrived. "You don't seem to have many passengers," she said. "I've been watching them come in."

"About average for midweek," her husband replied. "The men came to one fewer than half of them, the women one fewer than a third, and kids one fewer than a quarter of them. Funny fractions!"

How many passengers in all?

(Answer tomorrow)

Friday's answer: Magic Square had magic total 50, the numbers were from 5 to 20 inclusive.

Mr. Hunter answers all letters: ideas welcomed.

Ex-Australia PM Menzies, 83, Dies

SYDNEY, Australia — Sir Robert Gordon Menzies, Australia's longest-serving prime minister who guided the country's post-war development, died today at his home in Melbourne, the government announced.

Sir Robert, the son of a country storekeeper, was 83 and had been living in retirement since 1966.

Known as the Australian Winston Churchill, he dominated Australian politics as prime minister from 1949 to 1966 and also headed a wartime coalition government from 1939 until 1941.

A staunch conservative, lawyer, orator, Anglophile, and cricket fan, Sir Robert was unswervingly loyal to the British Crown, loved good food, cigars and witty conversation, and made no attempt to hide his contempt for journalists, socialists and the United Nations.

The need for capital investment and defence partners as well as his own sympathies kept Sir Robert's governments in close alliance with the British and U.S.

Roddy Says No Marriage

LONDON — Roddy Llewellyn told reporters Sunday "there is no chance of my marrying Princess Margaret."

Llewellyn, 31, socialite and would-be pop star, said he will continue to see the princess, but he insisted he does not consider himself in any way responsible for the divorce plans announced by the princess last week.

Llewellyn, who is 17 years younger than the princess, was speaking in Tangier at York Castle, which is owned by French millionaire Yves Vidal.

Llewellyn, as quoted by Tim Brown of the London Daily Telegrapy, said he believes his friendship with the princess has been "greatly exaggerated."

Pressed to explain why, Llewellyn replied: "I don't want to talk about it any more. I am determined not to talk about that sort of thing."

He denied that he has been sent into exile to Tangier while the Queen and the princess had discussions that led last Wednesday to the announcement by the princess that she and the Earl of Snowdon are to be divorced.

Brown quoted Llewellyn as saying of his absence from London at the time of the royal announcement: "It was purely coincidental. I knew the announcement would be made some time, but I did not know when.

"I do not consider myself in any way responsible for the divorce."

Llewellyn added that he will return to London soon after recuperating in Morocco for the last five weeks from a stomach illness contracted while he was on holiday with Margaret in the Caribbean isle of Mustique.

She Loved Police

TAMPA, Fla. — A 27-year-old woman is serving five days in jail for making harassing telephone calls to the Tampa Police Department — she called Tampa police officers repeatedly to say: "I love you."

Cheryl Davis was convicted after officers said she called them 19 times during an eight-hour period — eight times in one hour.

PELE GETS PEACE PRIZE

NEW YORK — Internationally-celebrated soccer star Pele will be given the International Peace Award at the UN International Peace Ball on Thursday at the United Nations.

Former New York mayor John Lindsay will present the award to a representative of the Brazilian athlete during the dinner-dance.

Cornball Comedy Hemingway's First

NATICK, Mass. — A frothy, cornball comedy called Hokum — never published and only recently discovered — is reported to be the first professional work of Ernest Hemingway, who co-authored the play at the age of 21.

"This is Ernest Hemingway's first book," said William Young, the rare book dealer who hunted down the play. He said the three-act play is a "terribly important" discovery because of Hemingway's position among 20th century authors.

Princeton historian Carlos Baker, a Hemingway biographer, said he has found a letter written by Hemingway to a friend in which Hemingway wrote that he and Morris McNeil Musselman were doing a 50-50 collaboration on a play.

"The fact that Hemingway did collaborate on this hitherto undiscovered thing does give it some significance. His name alone on it is apt to create something of a stir," Baker said in a telephone interview.

But Baker cautioned that Musselman — a high school chum of Hemingway in Oak Park, Ill., who became a successful film writer in Hollywood — probably wrote more of the play than Hemingway.

"I would be skeptical that Hemingway did half of it," Baker said. "But how can you tell who did what in a collaboration?"

Until now, historians believed Hemingway's first book was Three Stories and Ten Poems, published in France in 1923.

TRIAL DATE SET FOR SOPHIA LOREN

ROME — The courts have set a June 24 trial date for movie producer Carlo Ponti and his wife, actress Sophia Loren, on charges of illegally transferring $12 million in Italian lire out of the country.

The couple has not been in Italy since Miss Loren was stopped by customs officials March 9, 1977, as she was on her way through the Rome airport to join her husband in Paris.

They are not expected to return to Italy for the trial. Both gave up their Italian citizenship years ago and took French citizenship.

Ponti is the principal defendant in the case. Miss Loren was charged as an accomplice to the alleged removal of currency from Italy. She was additionally charged with illegal export of art objects.

No Thriller . . .

BONITA SPRINGS, Fla. — The TV directory listed it as Daring Game, a Lloyd Bridges thriller set in Latin America. But viewers tuning in WEVU-TV saw instead naked men and women frolicking in a hay loft and shouting obscenities at each other and police.

The movie was taken off the air at midnight Sunday night after running one-half hour, said Joseph Buerry, the station's general manager who blamed the incident on a mix-up at the film distributors. The title of the film was not known.

Critical Look at Poinsettias

The Christmas poinsettia should now be midway in its dry period of three weeks which gives the plant a rest before starting it on the way to its winter brilliance.

This keeping of poinsettias year after year becomes a sort of ritual in some homes, yet it entails a fair amount of skill and attention.

Initially the plants are sold as temporary decorations, lasting for the season of Christmas and into the New year, with no idea of their becoming a permanent pot plant for the home. As people go to a southern warmer climate each winter for holidays, more see the poinsettia growing outdoors and have the idea that the plant is much hardier than it is.

Perhaps I should say that when the poinsettias are grown in commercial greenhouses in our northern winters (even our comparatively mild coastal winters) to get the young plants at perfection during December without fail, the plants are lacking the hardy wood structure of outdoor grown old specimens seen in southern California and other similar and warmer climates.

To grow on the same plant you enjoyed last winter, look it over critically during the third week of May, noting where new growth is likely to come at points approximately three to four inches above soil level. Cut back the stems to just above three of these growth points spacing them to give a balanced plant.

Then water the plant and let drain. Repotting is next.

Select a pot one inch wider at the top diameter. Have ready a small batch of screened compost soil, leafmould and a tablespoon of sharp sand (half the size of a split pea).

Remove plant with its rootball from the pot. Shake off loose soil but do not tear away roots.

Put drainage stones or pieces of broken clay pot over drainage holes of new pot. cover with about an inch of fresh soil mixture, slightly dampened. Set rootball on soil. Fill in around with prepared soil mixture, tapping the pot sharply on bench to settle it around the rootball without pockets of air.

Bring the soil level up to just about three quarters of an inch below the pot rim. Tap the pot again sharply on bench, adding more soil if needed to bring level to disired height. The space at the surface is to allow thorough watering during the growth season in place of mere trickles which are insufficent for sturdy growth outdoors.

After repotting and another watering, place the plant in a warm but light place indoors; an east or west window is good for the next three weeks. During this time, the new growths should be well started.

When the more settled weather of the second week of June comes, probably with warmer nights, the poinsettia can be gradually introduced to outdoor life by way of standing it out on sunny mild days (in the sun), then bringing it back indoors for the nights.

Finally you leave it out, either set part-way into the soil on the south side of a shrub or fence, or in a sunny spot on balcony or sundeck.

Don't forget to fill the pot with water (in the early part of the day to avoid chilling the roots) about once weekly, or more often if weather turns hot.

Partly burying the pot prevents drying out of soil too rapidly but be sure there are a few stones below the pot to prevent clogging of drainage holes with soil. The poinsettia will not tolerate wet soil.

Growth should be strong and dark green during summer with the potential of the tiny flower buds forming and large leafy bracts turning scarlet in late fall on the plant saved from last winter.

To grow a new plant from cuttings taken now in May from last year's plant, first cut down the old plant; water, and keep in warm window to start the three new growths. Take them when three inches long, root in sandy soil, then pot up three in a five inch pot.

By about mid-June, the potted cuttings should be established well enough to go outdoors for the summer as suggested above for the old plant.

Poinsettias must be taken into the house again before the fall nights have even a hint of frost. They just will not take it here.

HOW TO WRITE A GOOD CLASSIFIED ACTION AD

1—IT'S BEST to start your ad with the name of the article or service you have to offer. If you have an apartment, room etc., for rent, or property for sale: start your ad with the location.

2—BE CLEAR. Readers respond more quickly and favorably when given complete, definite information. Always include the price in your adveertisement.

3—MAKE IT EASY for the reader-prospect to reach you. Always give your telephone number or your name and address. If you do not have regular hours, state a preferred time for the prospect to get in touch with you.

4—PLAY SAFE. You get the greatest reader attention by using consecutive insertions. A six-day order is best and costs less, and you can, of course, stop your ad as soon as you get the results you want. You pay only for the days your ad appeared. Lower yearly rates are available to those who wish to keep their services or products before the public.

5—PLACE YOURSELF in the reader's position and ask yourself what you want to know about your offer. The answer you give will make a good Want Ad.

6—GIVE YOUR PROSPECT every inducement you can with good copy. Classified action ad readers have the money and are already interested in buying the merchandise or service you have to offer; the details and information you give are the most important.

7—TO PLACE YOUR AD, call 386-2121, your direct line number to fast Want Ad action. A courteous, efficient advisor will be glad to help you word and place your order. And remember, Classified Action Ads afford you the most complete coverage. Telephones are open 8:00 a.m. to 6:00 p.m. for you daily, Monday through Friday; 8:00 a.m. to 5:30 p.m. Saturday. Don't allow the reader to speculate.

Seabed Mining Compromise

By FRANK RUTTER
Times London Bureau

GENEVA — Canada and the United States are trying to sell a compromise they hope will settle one of the most divisive issues at the Law of the Sea Conference here.

As the conference enters its last scheduled week, such compromises can spell success or failure for the 158 members of the United Nations trying to negotiate a new law of the sea.

If something worthwhile is not agreed upon by the end of this week many countries will either give up or enact unilateral laws.

The Canada-U.S. deal is a formula to establish how much nickel can be mined from the bottom of the sea.

This might seem a rather academic point. Indeed it would be if the conference resulted in failure. But in fact it is a key question.

There are two main areas of sea law under discussion here — law dealing with pollution and law dealing with exploitation of sea resources.

There are huge amounts of minerals under the world's oceans. These include cobalt, manganese, copper and nickel. It is nickel that has attracted particular interest.

Among the problems being tackled here are who should mine the seabed, and how much should be mined.

In setting up an International Mining Authority, the conference is trying to ensure that all nations have a share in what has been defined as "mankind's common heritage" — the rich, the poor, the coastal and the land-locked states.

But before even determining the share, the conference has to establish how much there is to share.

Canada and the U.S. play an important role here. They are, respectively, the world's largest producers and consumers of nickel — land-mined nickel, at present.

It is all very well to talk about protecting the weaker and poorer countries in the world's resource markets. But the big producers and consumers are the ones which are going to try and dictate the terms.

A draft formula previously under discussion here was rejected by both Canada and the U.S. for reasons at extreme opposites: That it was too restrictive and too generous.

So the two delegations privately worked out a formula themselves and it has been submitted by Canada as an amendment to the draft treaty on sea law which the conference will eventually accept or reject.

The formula would allow seabed mineral production to begin in 1980 at an amount equal to the previous five years total world increase in nickel consumption. Seabed production could then be increased annually over the ensuing 20 years at a rate equalling sixty per cent of the previous year's increase in world consumption.

The details matter because up to now no one has been able to agree even on a starting date for seabed mining, which the Canada-U.S. deal sets at 1980. Nor has anyone been able to agree on production ceilings or even the base on which to measure increases, both also spelled out in the new formula.

Canadian negotiators here are gleeful about the compromise proposal. But they give considerable credit to the man who was, just a few weeks ago, most brutally critical and skeptical of the Geneva conference, chief U.S. negotiator Elliot Richardson, former Attorney General and cabinet member in the Ford and Nixon administrations.

"This could be the biggest thing to come out of this session," said a Canadian team member.

"It is not perfect and it is not exactly what either of us would want. But it might be called an equal distribution of rain to the producers and consumers.

"If anything comes out of this session that could conceivably be called a breakthrough this is it."

If his language was somewhat enthusiastic, it has to be considered in context here — to get 158 nations to agree on anything is remarkable. Of course they might not agree to the Canada-U.S. formula. Then they might not agree to anything.

Much will depend on acceptance by the "group of 77", the developing nations.

But if there is to be any progress toward international sea law, and another conference to take things a step farther, then some accomplishment at Geneva is necessary. The Canadians, perhaps over optimistically, believe their formula could be it.

Amin's 'Year of Love' Off to Plausible Start

By WILLIAM CAMPBELL

Correspondent William Campbell is one of the few Western journalists to visit Uganda since President Idi Amin Dada declared 1978 a "year of love and reconciliation." In the following dispatch Campbell assesses the changes that have taken place in Uganda in the last few months.

KAMPALA (UPI) — (Delayed) — Uganda appears to be emerging slowly from a seven-year nightmare of fear and death:

President for Life Idi Amin Dada, a man with more blood on his hands than possibly any other national leader, declared 1978 a "year of love and reconciliation" in this beautiful landlocked African country.

Remarkably, given his unpredictable and often tyrannical record since he seized power in January, 1971, Amin is keeping his word, according to residents and diplomats in this hilltop capital.

Amin has put his dreaded State Research Bureau on a tight leash and there have been no purges or large-scale arrests since last summer, when army and air force officers attempted to assassinate him — at least the 14th such coup or assassination attempt.

The infamous Makindye prison, scene of countless tortures and murders, is quiet. Amin himself has been keeping a low and quiet profile.

Shops are full as they have not been for several years. Wary civilians are cautiously venturing back to the sidewalk cafes, bars, restaurants and nightclubs that once made Kampala one of the liveliest capitals in Africa.

Soldiers are a rare sight in the pleasant, tree-lined streets of Kampala's seven hills.

Even a major government reshuffle that Amin has been conducting in the last few weeks has become a hopeful sign.

Although he strengthened his own position by taking over several ministries and the police and prisons, Amin also got rid of some of the more notorious figures in his regime.

They included Ali Toweli, director of police training and head of the Public Service Unit — second only to the State Research Bureau in spreading terror — and Lt. Col. Nasur, commander of the suicide regiment that Amin has used to crush any opposition to his regime.

Brig. Moses Ali, the country's current finance minister and another longtime Amin crony, dropped from sight and was in apparent disgrace.

Col. Juma Oris, his foreign minister, was shunted aside to the relatively unimportant post of lands and water resources minister.

All those men were deeply involved in the early Amin years when "Big Daddy's" goon squads laid waste to a country Winston Churchill once dubbed "the jewel of Africa."

Amin's apparent change of heart is all the more stunning given the record of his first seven years in office.

After ousting President Milton Obote in what was a popular coup, backed enthusiastically by such nations as Britain and Israel, Amin launched a rule of outright tyranny and murder.

As many as 250,000 Ugandans, including former cabinet ministers, judges, civil servants, police officials and army officers, were killed or simply disappeared.

Tens of thousands of terrified Ugandans fled to neighboring countries.

One of those exiles, former health minister Henry Kyemba, accused Amin of eating parts of his victims.

Amin expelled 40,000 Asian traders to launch his economic war and became famous — or infamous — for his outrageous telegrams and other actions.

In trying to assess Amin's new image, diplomatic sources said he appeared more ready now to face reality.

Buoyed by good coffee sales and the high price of coffee on world markets, Uganda's economy appeared to be in better shape than for several years. But some observers said this was basically illusory.

"Everything is continuing to go downhill," one diplomatic source said. "There are new cars on the roads and new tractors.

"But there are no spare parts and no one to maintain machines, elevators or plant equipment. There's no public transport in Kampala and no trucks to move Ugandan products (most of the coffee is flown out)."

"Amin has realized he must repair his relations with other countries to restore the trade links and get the foreign experts he needs to revive the economy."

Ironically, given his past treatment of the Asians, Amin has moved closer to both India and Pakistan, who have sent advisers to Uganda.

Western nations, however, were much more cautious in responding to Amin's overtures for better relations.

There was no indication Britain, which severed ties in 1976, wished to renew contacts. American officials in East Africa said they would be better able to judge Amin's latest about-face "perhaps in another year."

For the average Ugandan, the most obvious signs of Amin's "year of love and reconciliation" are the full shops and a relaxation of tension throughout the country.

Prices are still outrageous, but goods are on sale for the first time in years and there is no shortage of buyers.

Amin personally is again trying to promote the image he carried when he first came to power — that of a jolly, gentle giant.

Guideline For Bacon

WASHINGTON (UPI) — The amount of suspected cancer-causing nitrosamines in fried bacon will be reduced over the next year under regulations on bacon processing announced today by the Agriculture Department.

Carol Foreman, assistant secretary of agriculture for food and consumers services, said the regulations will cut use of the substance that has caused cancer in laboratory animals but has not been linked to cancer in humans.

"The public has a right to expect that federally inspected meat is wholesome," said Ms. Foreman, the former head of the Consumer Federation of America.

"We don't believe that there is an imminent health hazard involved," she said.

Canadians Give CBC $20-a-Year Subsidy

TORONTO (CP) — Canadian taxpayers pay three times as much as the Japanese, twice as much as Britons and 1½ times as much as Australians to support their public broadcasting system, according to the Star.

For their money, Canadians get one of the biggest broadcasting establishments in the world, the newspaper says. The CBC has one staff member for every 1,925 Canadians.

By comparison, The Star says the Japanese system has one staff member for every 6,642 people, the British system has one staff member for every 2,177, and the Australian system has one staff member for every 2,086 people.

Canadians spent $487 million last year to support the CBC.

Spending estimates recently tabled in the House of Commons call for an increase of $55.4 million in the federal subsidy to the CBC. The estimates now are before the Commons broadcasting committee.

The proposed budget increase would bring the cost of subsidizing the CBC to $22.32 for each Canadian compared with $19.95 a person last year.

Don MacPherson, CBC vice-president and general manager of the English language division, is quoted as saying the comparisons don't bother him.

MacPherson said that the geography of Canada, the necessity of providing programs in two languages, and the regional nature of the country result in higher costs and greater need for manpower than in other countries.

Triple Trailer Taboo

VANCOUVER (CP) — Triple trailer units should not be permitted on British Columbia highways, says the president of the B.C. Automobile Association.

The provincial government should resist trucking company pressure to permit the use of over-length vehicles, he said.

He said introduction of triple trailers — a combination of truck-tractor and three trailers — would mean motorists would have to pass, or be passed by truck units as long as 30 metres instead of the present 22 metres.

"Although the trucking industry claims that triple trailers are safer, have better off-tracking capabilities than current tractor-trailer units and contribute to fuel conservation, the association is not convinced that these claims are based on fact," he said.

'Secret' Hydro Scheme Cited

CHILLIWACK (CP) — British Columbia Hydro and the provincial government are hiding from the public a billion-dollar make-work power construction strategy for B.C., Bill Otway, exective director of the B.C. Wildlife Federation, says.

Otway said both the ministry of economic development and the Crown corporation have a master plan to build more hydro dams, pipelines and coal-fired electrical generation facilities that are geared to attracting industry to B.C., and not based on present power needs.

"There are now enough indications that they are out to attract industry to B.C. by building the facilities before the industry is here," he said in an interview.

Otway told the federation's annual convention that a campaign aimed at creating a better climate for more power development started three months ago when the economic development industry took out large newspaper ads.

He said the advertisements read: "Energy from B.C. can fuel your future. B.C. is energy-rich. Our mighty rivers are being harnessed to generate more hydro-electric power."

The advertisements also said vast deposits of thermal coal will be developed for onsite electricity generation, he said.

Otway told delegates that while Hydro has suspended its McGregor dam proposal "only the engineering studies were suspended, the flooding reserves remain."

The proposed dam, located northeast of Prince George, would divert water from the Fraser River system into the Peace River.

He said that in southeastern B.C., Hydro is studying Murphy Creek north of Trail for a dam, and has plans to take coal.

The 2,400-member federation called for a provincial energy policy that includes:

—an end to Hydro's triple role as forecaster, planner and marketer of energy;

—environmental, social and comprehensive analysis as the pre-prequisites for any energy development proposal;

—coal development must not impose an economic burden on B.C. taxpayers;

—B.C. should not allow itself to be tied to any large-scale export of power to the U.S.

Economic Development Minister Don Phillips denied today that his ministry is involved with Hydro in any secret plans.

"All Hydro's known future projects are a matter of public knowledge," the minister said.

TO CATCH A THIEF

EDMONTON (CP) — A bandit wearing a jogging suit and a toque pulled off a running robbery during the weekend.

Police said the thief ran up to a wholesale grocery company employee, grabbed a cash deposit, and made a swift-footed escape.

The thief was described as six feet three inches tall, slim with blonde hair and about 25 years of age.

U.S. Fishermen Face May 26 Ban If Access Denied

The United States has been given to May 26 to allow Canadian trollers greater access to American waters.

If this doesn't happen the U.S. has been told its fishermen will be barred from Canadian waters.

Angry at the federal government's decision to close the Swiftsure Bank on Friday to placate the Americans, members of the Pacific Trollers Associatiom doubt that the federal government will carry through with its threat.

"It will require a supreme act of faith on our part to believe that," president John Makowichuk of Bamfield said today.

"The minister (Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc) was in British Columbia on Saturday when things became worse. We tried to get in touch with him to receive assurance that they would carry through with their threat to close the fishery."

Makowichuk said all attempts to get the minister's ear had proven useless but the minister was going to try and set up a telephone conference with him and PTA manager Fred Yeung of Vancouver.

Makowichuk said the Canaian fishermen agreed to the May 26 deadline because Canadian halibut fishermen were on their way to Alasks when the Swiftsure Bank closure took place. The halibut season starts today.

"It takes $20,000 for the halibut fishrmen to gear up for this trip," he said.

Makowichuk said the PTA is planning action on behalf of all Canadian trollers but said he is not in a position to give details at this time.

He said PTA directors, like Dick Williams of Victoria and Joe Garcia of Bamfield had been to Ottawa many many times over the years and always come back empty-handed.

He said the PTA is angry because it was not consulted on the closing of the Swiftsure Bank. The Americans claim it is necessary because of the risk of killing juvenile spring salmon that breed there.

In making the annoncement that special negotiators Marcel Cadieux and Lloyd Cutler will meet in Washington May 26 for the final decision on ratification of the 1978 fishing agreement, an Ottawa federal fisheries official said the Swiftsure Bank is only fished by three or four boats.

Garcia said only four boats were fishing on the day it was closed .

LeBlanc Salmon Warning

CHILLIWACK (CP) - The federal government is prepared to get tough with any self-interest group whose activities threaten the salmon fishery, says Fisheries Minister Romeo LeBlanc.

The minister told the B.C.Wildlife Federation convention that to protect fish habitats from indiscriminate logging and the use of substances such as mercury and phantom chemicals, broader powers will be granted under the newly-revised Fisheries Act.

The government intends that there will be no further loss of habitats, he said, and those who destroy one location should be required to create a habitat elsewhere.

Outlining the salmonid program, the minister said the hatcheries, rearing ponds, fish ladders, artificial spawning channels, stream clearing and inland lake fertilization should bring $150 million to B.C.

He also warned that while native Indians will continue to enjoy access to fish for food, the government will not tolerate a commercial fishery disguised as a food fishery.

His ministry, he said, also is planning to introduce a saltwater sport-fishing licence, but no date has been set.

Italian Voters Swing Behind Moro's Party

ROME (AP) — Initial returns from Italian local elections showed a strong swing today to the Christian Democrat party whose leader, Aldo Moro, was slain by the terrorist Red Brigades.

As the votes were being counted, the Brigades struck again, seriously wounding an official of a car factory in Bologna.

In the northeastern city of Trent, partial returns from Sunday's voting showed the Christian Democrats scoring a strong increase in their share of the vote while the Communists and Socialists lost some ground.

Political analysts had predicted a strong sympathy vote for the Christian Democrats after the Red Brigades kidnapped and killed former premier Moro, the president of the party, but the shift seemed to be stronger than predicted. Moro, 61, was kidnapped March 16. His bullet-riddled body was found in Rome last week after the government refused to deal with the terrorists who demanded the release of some of their comrades.

The government is Christian Democrat but is supported in Parliament by the Communists, the nation's second-largest party.

In the Bologna incident, police said three men and a woman jumped out of a car, shot 48-year-old Antonio Mazzotti as he was entering the Menarini car factory and fled in the car. It was found abandoned in the vicinity a few minutes later.

Mazzotti, who heads the Menarini personnel department, was wounded in the legs, stomach and chest, police said. He was reported in critical condition.

A few minutes after the attack an anonymous telephone caller told the Bologna office of the Italian news agency ANSA: "This is the Red Brigades. We have executed Dr. Mazzotti of the Menarini, a servant of the state."

CBC STRIKE CANCELLED

George McLean said Sunday the walkout was cancelled because members of other CBC unions might be unwilling to cross the announcers' picket line.

Youth Is Killed When Jeep Rolls

Fredie Lanoue, 17, of Logan Street, Saanich, was killed when the jeep in which he was a passenger rolled on top of him Sunday at Jordan River.

Driver Raymond Gustafson, 19, of 648 Grenville, received undetermined injuries and was admitted to Victoria General Hospital for observation. His condition was satisfactory today.

A second passenger, Joseph Leroux, 17, of 1037 Russell, was treated for minor injuries and released.

According to a passerby the jeep was being driven on West Coast Road at the Jordan River campsite, where it apparently turned off into an unpaved parking area and began swerving in loose gravel.

A two-car head-on collision on Trans-Canada Highway near Bamberton about 6:30 a.m. today sent three unidentified persons to hospital in Duncan with multiple injuries.

Shawnigan Lake RCMP said a Shawnigan Lake man with a woman passenger was driving one car and a woman was driving the other vehicle on wet pavement about a quarter-mile north of Bamberton lookout.

'No New City' On West Bank

Times News Services

Israel plans to expand an existing area of Jewish settlement on the occupied West Bank of Jordan in line with a decision made by the government of Prime Minister Menachem Begin in November, a government official said today in Tel Aviv.

The official, an aide to Agriculture Minister Ariel Sharon, denied a report on the state-supervised television Sunday that plans were underway to build a city in the area, situated 22 miles south of Jerusalem on the road to Hebron.

Sharon is charged with carrying out settlement policy.

Begin's government, under intense criticism from the United States because of past decisions to build Jewish settlements in the West Bank and Sinai, has frozen all new settlement activity in those areas as a matter of policy.

"The government has decided there will be no new settlements, and this will not be a new settlement and we're not intending to build a city," the official said.

What will be built, he said, will be a shopping center-like

Tories Eye The Noose

Times Ottawa Bureau

OTTAWA — A Progressive Conservative government would allow the issue of capital punishment to be re-opened in Parliament with a true free vote and if it carried the death penalty would be restored, John Fraser Conservative MP for Vancouver South said Sunday.

"There is nothing in principle wrong with re-opening this issue. Prime Minister Trudeau says 'it's closed forever.' I don't agree with that."

Zaire Seeks Help After Attacks

Times News Services

KINSHASA, Zaire — About 4,000 Zairean rebels allegedly spearheaded by Cuban troops have again attacked Zaire's copper-rich Shaba province and apparently captured the strategic mining town of Kolwezi, prompting President Mobutu Sese Seko to ask other countries for help.

Persons in Brussels and Paris claiming to speak for the rebels denied Zairean charges the Cubans were involved, that the attack originated in neighboring Marxist Angola, and that the revolt was aimed at winning Shaba's independence.

Zaire is the former Belgian Congo and Shaba was called Katanga then. The invaders are members of the Luanda tribe who fled to Angola after the defeat of the late Moise Tshombe's Katangan secession movement in the 1960s, after the Congo got its independence from Belgium.

The official Zaire news agency AZAP said about 4,000 invaders in civilian clothes infiltrated Kolwezi, 40 kilometres from the Zambian border, and launched an attack there Sunday night. In Brussels, the Belgian foreign ministry said some fighting was still going on there Sunday night.

AZAP said Zairean troops repelled another attack Sunday at the town of Mutshatsha, 100 kilometres west of Kolwezi. It said Cuban troops were with the invaders there.

A Belgian spokesman in Brussels said the invasion "looks at least as serious" as the last one.

Confirmation of the Cuban involvement was not available.

Last year, in March, between 2,000 and 5,000 Katangan-exiles crossed the Angola-Zaire border 500 kilometres west of Kolwezi and advanced toward Kolwezi along the Benguela-Kolwezi railway. They occupied about one-third of the province, but the intervention of Moroccan troops bolstered the Zaire army, and the invaders were driven back across the border in late May.

This time the Katangans apparently took a short cut across Zambia.

CLOSE ENCOUNER IN ARGENTINE?

BUENOS AIRES (AP) — A long, cylindrical object fell to earth May 6 and disappeared in dense jungle near the Argentine-Bolivian border, Argentine newspapers reported today.

The English-language Buenos Aires Herald, in a report from the border province of Salta, 1,900 kilometres northwest of here, said U.S. experts from the National Aeronautics and Space Administration (NASA) arrived in the area today to investigate the sighting.

Oh! Calcutta! Oh! What A Flop!

By PAUL MOSS
Times Staff

One of the most controversial let-it-all-hang-out shows in the history of live theatre came here Sunday and flopped in a spectacular way.

"Oh! Calcutta!" a world-wide shocker for nearly a decade, featuring nudity, dirty jokes, four-letter words and similar titillations, descended on staid old Victoria with all the impact of a jello pudding.

From a box-office point of view the two performances at the municipally-owned Royal Theatre were a disaster.

The first attracted an audience of 580, the second a scant 400 for a total of under 1,000. The theatre holds 1,455.

But Vancouver's Queen Elizabeth Theatre, where "Oh! Calcutta!" plays tonight and tomorrow, has had to put on a second Tuesday performance because the original two sold out so quickly.

Why such a difference on this side of the Georgia Strait?

Interviews with civic officials, theatre buffs, church leaders and others produce this general theory:

Victoria, belieing its Victorian image of dyed-in-the-tweed prudery, batted not an eyelid at the thought of all that naked flesh and raunchy humor being unleashed on-stage at the Royal.

Instead, the reaction was one big, collective yawn, as if to say, "So what?"

Result: No public outcry, no outraged citizens rushing into print with letters to the editor, no lecturing from pulpits, no fierce debates at the municipal level between the supporters and opponents of censorhsip and, therefore, no real demand for seats.

In fact, there was nothing even remotely resembling controversy.

And "Oh! Calcutta!" whose notoriety has been fed and fertilized with well-publicized restraining orders, legal fights and clashes with bureaucracy in numerous U.S. cities, wilted under the ennui onslaught.

Contrast the Victoria experience with the situation in Vancouver, where there was heated city council argument (diligently reported by the news media) on whether the show should be banned from the Queen Elizabeth Theatre.

Leading the anti-porn brigade, as ever, was the worthy Ald. Bernice Gerard, who came out with such comments as: "If Oh! Calcutta! with its group masturbation, mass copulation and bondage sex is welcome at the theatre, then anything would be welcome."

With lurid denunciations like that, what promoter needs to spend money on advertising?

If ticket sales had been lagging — and according to the Q.E. manager they weren't — Gerard's outburst would surely have guaranteed that the prurient, the voyeurs and the sexually curious would trample each other underfoot in the stampede for tickets.

The interesting thing is that someone apparently tried to engineer a fuss here by sending material anonymously through the mail to a Victoria clergyman who in the past has criticized nudity and sexual permissiveness in local stage productions.

Last week, a few days before the two Sunday-night shows at the Royal, the Rev. E.A. Follows told the Times: "I have been getting anonymous duplicate copies of things like their ad . . . not from people I know.

"This has been dropped in the mail to me, and I know that it is from the promoters of this thing to stir up some local controversy so that they will increase their take at the doors. But I am not biting."

Meanwhile, there was an equal lack of interest at the civic level,

In fact, Oak Bay Ald. John Goult, the acting chairman of the Royal Theatre committee, cheerfully admitted that he learned the show was coming to the Royal only about 10 days before it opened.

And city recreation manager Jack Morgan said although he informed the committee chairman, Victoria Ald. Ron McKenzie, when the first approach came last February, he had not bothered to seek the committee's formal approval to confirm the booking.

Victoria Mayor Mike Young said he had received a couple of calls from residents who were concerned that a civic theatre (owned jointly by Victoria, Saanich and Oak Bay) should be used for such purposes.

But Young, who termed "Oh! Calcutta!" a lewd and vulgar show, said last week that while he was reluctant to see such entertainment inflicted on Victoria, he was also loath to issue any prior comment on the matter.

"I could rant and rave about it but I have to question whether that would only provide advance publicity," he added.

"I tend to believe that if someone is making a nuisance of themselves and you ignore them, they go away."

Judging by Sunday night's dismal turnout, that's precisely what happened.

A SHOWER of pledge money was still being counted today from the United Way's Great Kilometer Kaper Saturday. More than 460 participated, some of them seen here during a rainy start at the Johnson Street Scout House. A total of 337 finished the 10- and 20-mile courses which wound through Victoria, Oak Bay and Saanich as far north as Mount Douglas Park. Some marchers had up to $300 in pledges. Every walker turning in $20 or more will receive a United Way T-shirt. (John McKay photo.)

'Touchy' Death Probed

Victoria city police today were investigating a sudden death Sunday at a Queens Avenue address in what were described as "touchy" circumstances.

Insp. Angus Stewart said no details of the fatality were being made public pending completion of the investigation.

"There is the possibility of homicide or suicide, but we don't know yet," Stewart said.

He would not reveal any circumstances, identify or describe the deceased person.

No one was being held in custody.

10 CARS IN TILLICUM TANGLES

Ten cars were involved in two separate accidents near the Gorge-Tillicum intersection Saturday.

Three persons were hurt and there was extensive damage.

Police said that shortly before 4 p.m. Jean Pelletier, 19, of 611 Constance, hit the accelerator instead of the brake when attempting to park his car at the Gorge shopping centre. He hit another car and set off a chain collision involving seven other vehicles.

About 90 minutes later on Gorge just west of Tillicum, a car driven by Margaret Brucker, 34, of 1950 Fairfield, was in collision with a vehicle driven by Nester Melnyk, 66, of 1233 Topaz.

Mrs. Brucker is in fair condition at Victoria General Hospital and her husband, Maurice, of Lloydminster, Altá., was treated and released. Melnyk also was examined and released.

Peninsula Water Rates Up 50%

Water bills for residents of the Saanich Peninsula have shot up an average 50 per cent since February when the peninsula began drawing its water from the Greater Victoria Water District's Sooke watershed.

Now the whole peninsula is hooked to the system and homeowners in Sidney, Central Saanich and North Saanich are beginning to find out just how costly the luxury of an abundant water supply can be.

Homeowners on the peninsula pay more than triple what residents in other parts of the Greater Victoria are paying.

Yet surprisingly, the peninsula residents aren't complaining — at least not in public.

"We've had a couple of callers blasting us about the bills, but not nearly as many as we expected," a spokesman for North Saanich municipal hall said.

"Most of the people seem to accept the increases as just another example of inflation over which they have no control."

North Saanich went onto the new rates on March 16, a month after Central Saanich. Sidney made the switch the first of May.

The three municipalities pay exactly the same for the water — 70 cents per 1,000 gallons — but you'd never know it by the widely different methods they use in calculating the price to homeowners.

North Saanich, for instance, charges a basic rate of $3 a month plus $1.50 for every 1,000 gallons consumed. In addition the municipality has set a parcel tax of $18 which will be included in the annual tax notice. Before the water rate was either $10.50 for 7,000 gallons or $11.50 for 8,000 gallons depending on where the person lived in the municipality.

Central Saanich charges only 58 cents per 1,000 gallons. The crunch comes in the basic user rate — $9 a month. Before, the municipality charged a flat $6 a month plus 35 cents per 1,000 gallons.

In Sidney, residents pay only for what they use. There's no base rate. The charge is a straight $2 per 1,000 gallons. But the homeowners also must pay a parcel tax of $34 a year. A month ago residents paid a minimum rate of $6.50 plus 15 cents per hundred gallons over 4,000 gallons.

Together it all adds up to the most expensive water in the Capital Region. The average family, consuming water at the rate of 5,000 gallons a month, will pay $154 this year in Sidney, $144 in North Saanich and $142.80 in Central Saanich.

By comparison the average homeowner, given the same set of conditions, will pay $49.89 in Oak Bay, $47.58 in Victoria and Esquimalt and $42 in Saanich. And in the western communities where 9,500 residents buy their water directly from the GVWD, the average will be about $51.06.

Ron Upward, manager of the Greater Victoria Water District, says one of the main reasons peninsula water is more expensive is the wholesale cost.

The water authority, owned by the four core municipalities, sells the water for 18 cents a thousand gallons wholesale. But it attaches an additional 12 cents a thousand for peninsula users to cover the costs of extending the waterline to Elk Lake.

The 30 cent rate hasn't yet been approved by the Water Utilities Commission of B.C., says Upward, but the three peninsula municipalities have agreed to pay it in a two-year contract with the GVWD that expires next May.

From Elk Lake the water distribution is in the hands of the Saanich Peninsula Water Commission which, through the Capital Region District, collects an additional 40 cents a gallon to offset costs for a 5 million gallon reservoir and a network of waterlines built to the tip of the peninsula.

Upward agrees variations in retail costs has produced some inequities in the system which should be changed. But on the whole he feels Greater Victoria residents are getting a good deal on their water.

There are some on the peninsula, however, who would differ in that opinion.

Police Accept

Things were back to normal at the Saanich police department today after members of the policemen's union voted Sunday night to accept a new contract.

The two year agreement provides for a four percent wage hike this year to be followed by a six percent hike in 1979.

The union had sought a 10 per cent wage increase over two years.

The contract also contains a cost of living allowance clause in the second year of the agreement.

Pharmacy Post

Victoria pharmacist Joseph J. Despot, former president of the B.C. Pharmacists Society, has been named president of the Canadian Pharmaceutical Association effective in 1979. Leroy Fevang, a registrar of the College of Pharmacists of B.C., was named executive director of the association at its convention here.

Alderman Fears Lawsuits Over Heritage Wording

Victoria's heritage program is in jeopardy and the city could face millions of dollars in lawsuits because of badly drafted provincial heritage legislation, Ald. Bob Wright charged today.

Under the legislation, the owners of heritage buildings could demand compensation from the city if they suffered financially from heritage designation.

"We don't quarrel with the concept of compensation, but Victoria doesn't have a heritage fund (to pay the bills), and the risk we're talking about could run into the millions," said Wright.

The legal bind in which the city has been placed has frozen the designation of 32 commercial downtown buildings and council could back down on one of the structures that is facing demoliton.

Wright said that Recreation and Conservation Minister Sam Bawlf's Heritage Conservation Act is so poorly put together there seems to be no way the city can save two old houses now facing demolition on Belleville Street.

The houses at 321 and 327 Belleville, which operate as tourist attractions known as Judge Hunter's Haunted House and The Land of The Little People, stand in the way of a new hotel proposed by A.J. Butler and Belleville Developments Ltd.

Judge Hunter's Haunted House — on the list of 32 buildings the city approved for heritage designation several months ago.

Wright said lawyers for Butler have demanded that demolition permits be issued immediately, and because of Bawlf's legislation the city is in no position to go to court to block demoliton.

The developers first applied for permits on Jan. 30 but the city held off, Wright said, in the hope that some way of saving the structures could be found.

"But we are at risk if we refuse the permits any longer and, in fact, our solicitor (city solicitor Jakob de Villiers) tells us they could go to court and get the permits immediately."

Wright said that the situation on Belleville is an immediate crisis, but that in the long run the city's entire heritage program may be destroyed by Bawlf's badly worded legislation.

"It puts our whole heritage program in jeopardy — it puts the whole city in jeopardy financially," said Wright.

"We've petitioned the minister for changes but we've go no indiciation he will."

Wright said that the main problem lies in the area of compensation.

"The act tries to compensate the owner for any possible economic loss — but if the owner feels the compensation is not fair he can take us to court and claim the difference. That's a blank cheque."

Wright said that in the Belleville Street case, where a multi-million dollar hotel project may be affected by the city's actions, Victoria could be hit with a claim for $2 million or more.

In addition, he said, there are the 32 commercial downtown buildings that are awaiting official designation as heritage structures.

"If we designate them now, any time up to a year from now the owners can take the city to court," Wright said.

He said that the Belleville Street matter will be dealt with in a planning committee meeting Tuesday and indicated—it's unlikely the city will try to hold up the demolition permits any longer.

"We're not prepared to make a decision where the taxpayers could be faced with having to pay for our boo-boo," said Wright.

RECREATIONAL LABEL SOUGHT

The Central Saanich Ratepayers Association has asked Premier Bill Bennett to designate Saanich inlet as a recreational area.

The move, an attempt to ensure that the inlet is not polluted, follows rumors that Victoria's oil tank farm may be shifted to the Bamberton cement factory site on the west side of the inlet.

The inlet was designated by the federal government in the 1930's as a sport fishing reserve but the province has so far taken no steps to protect it from pollution, a danger which has been increasing over the years.

Jim Gilbert, biologist and fishing guide, said Saanich inlet is more vulnerable to pollution than most inlets in the province.

"The inlet doesn't flush itself out as others do," he said.

He said the the change of water is slow in the inlet due to weak currents,

Gilbert said the inlet is no place for industrial or housing developments.

Housing developments without adequate sewage disposal systems could also cause a serious pollution problem, he said.

The government is reported to be in favor of removing the oil tanks farm from the harbor to a site which has not yet been disclosed.

Some Notes on a Working Partnership

AMONG THE GAMES the well-married play is one which you may recognize as 'What-If.'

Win and I drifted into it the other evening. We'd settled in comfortably to watch TV, with rain and a lonely wind outside our snug house, when my wife asked a 'What-If' question.

"I was just wondering," she said. "Suppose I'd decided not to go downtown that day. Or got the next streetcar, or something."

In those now-distant years, we had drifted out of each other's ken. But that fortuitous meeting in a streetcar banging along Hastings Street in Vancouver brought us together again, and in this happy state we have remained for better or worse.

"Well," I said, slipping into the game, "maybe we'd have run into each other somewhere else."

"And maybe not," Win said. She considered a moment, while the last of our winter alder purred with a little ripple of flame in our fireplace. "We might never have met again. I wonder what would have happened?"

We weighed the bleak prospect. No good years together. No Ron. No Susan. No anything.

Then, having enjoyed the luxury of scaring ourselves with what might have happened but didn't, we returned to the very satisfactory present which finds us getting on with the adventure that started when we were young.

In this we are by no means unique. The squeaky wheel gets the grease: attention centres on men and women who don't get along — who, in fact, are caught up in an adversary situation. You know couples of that sort. They are so hostile toward each other, so jealously aggressive where the maintaining of individual rights is concerned, that it's hard to believe they wouldn't be better apart.

But, even though divorce and separation figures have climbed sky-high, there remains a comfortable majority of couples who go their unpublicized way in amity. They want to be together — they enjoy each other's company — and they have obviously discovered the secret of getting along.

I'm sure that couples of this order were living amiably under the wind in the years when woman was no better than a chattel without property rights or equality in law.

And I'm equally sure that when woman wins her ultimate emancipation, those couples who have arrived at a working partnership will be no less easy to find.

It takes more than romantic love to make a good marriage. More than anything else, it calls for a deeply-felt sense of equality: a sense of personal worth, and a respect for the worth and values of your partner.

More times than I can recall, a party to such a marriage has told me casually and without embarrassment, "My wife's a lot better at handling the money than I am. She looks after our business."

Or, "I'm all right when short-term decisions need making. But Jim's the one who does our long-term planning."

This casual appreciation of another's superiority in certain departments of the complex state of marriage tells volumes about the speaker. Trust . . . pride in a partner's ability . . . and enough personal maturity to admit a weakness . . . all are reflected in it.

Usually in a failed marriage, the villian of the piece is a stubborn and lingering juvenility on the part of one or both contributors. If you must always be right, if getting your own way matters more to you than the good of the team, stay single.

But, Lord help us, there's a great deal of luck in marriage. Luck in the choice of a mate, a matter most of us approach quite unguided by such considerations as commonsense and shrewd observation.
